POLICE TO QUIZ SUSPECT IN OLD KIDNAPING CASE

Berg Involved in Alleged Effort to Abduct Rich Man in 1925.

JERSEY AUTHORITIES DENY RACKETEER AID

Spitale and Bitz Reported in "Indirect Contact" With Guilty Persons.

Trenton, N. J., March 14 (A.P.).—Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf announced tonight that Frank Berg, who police said was involved in the attempted kidnaping several years ago of Max Phillips, Eatontown, N. J., manufacturer, had been located and arrangements made to question him tomorrow in the Lindbergh investigation.

The 1925 attempt was thwarted when Phillips learned of the plan and confided in police. Three women and Berg were arrested, but were never indicted.

At the time Berg defended himself vigorously, saying "the whole thing is a publicity melodrama."

How Trap Was Laid.

Phillips was invited by a fake Russian countess to go on a yachting trip aboard the craft named "Asor," supposedly owned by Berg. Berg's wife, Anita, posing as the Countess Del y' Boursky, of Leningrad, met Phillips on the beach at Seabright, where she was staying with a friend, Beatrice Johnson, of Florence, Italy, and her maid, Hattie Hager, of New York.

Learning of the plot to hold him aboard the yacht, police installed a listening apparatus in the dining room of Phillips' home and he invited the "countess" and her friend to dinner. Their arrest followed and Berg was charged with carrying concealed, deadly weapons. The women, charged with conspiracy, were released in $10,000 bail.

It was learned last Saturday that Phillips had conferred with Col. Schwarzkopf in Hopewell in connection with the Lindbergh baby kidnaping.

Other New Trails Futile.

Hopewell, N. J., March 14 (A.P.).—New trails pointing toward the kidnapers of Charles Augustus Lindbergh, jr., appeared and faded with the speed of the falling snow which enveloped the Sourland countryside today.

Police first told of their interest in a group of hoodlums from Denver, Colo., who had come East by plane and were engaged in "mysterious activities in and around New York."

Then, in response to questions, Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, State police superintendent, late in the day said:

"Information on Roma and associates, whose supposed headquarters were on President street, Brooklyn, was carefully investigated. The home of Roma on President street, Brooklyn, and those of his associates were thoroughly searched for any evidence that would connect them with this crime. Having no further information that would in any way connect them with this crime we have vindicated them from any connection."

Rosner's Moves Concealed.

He did not further identify the "Roma" of whom he spoke, but in Denver a Joseph T. Roma, reputed gang czar, who traveled to New Jersey by plane recently, termed any mention of his name in this case "too silly to discuss."

Silence and secrecy cloaked the movements of Morris Rosner, under-

Zaro Agha 'Oldest Man,' Collapses in England

London, March 14 (U.P.).—Zaro Agha, the ancient Turk who toured the United States in 1930 and was advertised as being 156 years old, was critically ill tonight of heart trouble. The wrinkled, brown-skinned Turk collapsed in a tea room and was taken to St. Mary Abbotts Hospital in West Kensington.

He was breathing with great difficulty tonight. His face was ashen.

Former Senator Reed Shows Improvement

Rochester, Minn., March 14 (A.P.).—Improvement in the condition of James A. Reed, former United States Senator from Missouri, ill in a hospital here, was reported tonight by his surgeon. Mr. Reed was operated on for gall bladder trouble Friday. His condition is serious.

Mr. Reed's surgeon said his condition was satisfactory and as well as could be expected, considering the nature of his illness.

U. S. Is Asked To Recognize Manchu State

By HAROLD J. T. HORAN.

Formal request for American recognition of the recently organized "puppet" state of Manchuria was received at the Department of State yesterday from the self-styled "minister of foreign affairs," Hsieh Chieh-shih.

The request came in the form of a lengthy cable of some 700 words from Changchun, the capital of the new state. While the State Department declined to verify the receipt of the petition, it was learned on the most authoritative grounds that no reply to the message will be sent.

These precautions will be taken to prevent any gesture whatsoever of this Government from being distorted or misinterpreted as a form of recognition. The United States will stand on the principles of the newly promulgated Stimson doctrine which forbids the recognition of "any situation, treaty or agreement which may be brought about by means contrary to the nine-power treaty or the

SECTIONAL BATTLE RAGES ON TAX BILL

New England and Midwest Members Clash Over Oil Import Levy.

By J. B. McDONNELL.

Bolt of Democratic and Republican opponents of the sale tax which threatened for a brief while to become a stampede seemingly had been turned into a milling about yesterday because of lack of a common objective in the form of a substitute.

Not that opponents of the sales tax liked it any better yesterday than they did last week when consideration of the new $1,096,000,000 revenue bill was begun in the House, but none of the various substitutes which had been proposed had served as the gathering point, not even the suggestion that it was unnecessary to balance the budget next year.

Attack on the measure shifted in the course of debate on the floor yesterday from the sales tax to the oil-import tax, with representatives of New England attacking it and Midwestern representatives replying that an attack on such a protective tariff measure came with ill grace from a section of the Nation which had grown industrially and financially fat under tariff preference.

Worried party leaders saw a turn in the tide of rebellion against the heavy tax measure, and this was indicated by the decision of the ways and means committee to stand pat, for the time being, at least, on the question of changes. Last week they were willing to consider various amendments, though careful not to go beyond a promise to consider. They kept their promise yesterday, but the committee ended its executive session with the conclusion that it would be impolitic to tinker with amendments at this time, apparently feeling that if they permitted a little water to spill over the dike in this place they might not be able to stave off a

JAPAN ORDERS PART OF ARMY TO QUIT CHINA

Improvement in Situation Is Seen by Tokyo War Office.

LEAGUE INQUISITORS ARRIVE IN SHANGHAI

12,000 Men in Invading Force to Return Home; Emperor Approves.

Tokyo, March 14 (A.P.).—Part of Japan's expeditionary force to China—numbering about 12,000 men—has been ordered to leave Shanghai for home "in view of the steady improvement in the situation," the war office announced today.

After obtaining the approval of Emperor Hirohito it was decided to withdraw the Eleventh division of Lieut. Gen. Kenkichi Uyeda's forces, one brigade of the Twelfth division and some auxiliary units. Contrary to previous reports, the Ninth and the Fourteenth divisions will remain in China.

The war office said rumors that troops would be sent to Formosa to handle domestic difficulties were without foundation and that the units to be evacuated from Shanghai would return to their regular stations.

Still at Peace Strength.

Observers noted that the Eleventh and Twelfth divisions were still at their peace strength of about 11,000 men each, but that the Ninth and Fourteenth divisions have mobilized part of their reserves and together have an estimated strength of about 30,000 men.

Gen. Uyeda's expedition was dispatched to Shanghai about a month ago, after bluejackets from the fleet regularly stationed in Chinese waters had been unable to drive the defending Chinese army from their positions in Chapei, Kiangwan and Woosung. It was subsequently augmented by reinforcements and Gen. Uyeda was replaced in command by Gen. Yoshinori Shirakawa.

Shanghai, March 14 (A.P.).—The League of Nations commission of inquiry, led by the Earl of Lytton, arrived in Shanghai today to seek out the reasons why Japan and China have been at each other's throats for the past six months.

Members View Ruins.

Coming up the Whangpoo River on the liner President Adams from Japan, the five members caught a first-hand view of the destruction wrought at Woosung. They looked through binoculars to inspect the ruins of the forts and village and to see a line of Japanese warships still stripped for action.

On disembarking, Lord Lytton said the commission's plan of investigation had not been fully mapped out, but that it would willingly arrange a truce in the present warfare and a subsequent round-table conference if both sides solicited its assistance.

The commission was willing to extend its cooperation within the limits of its authority, he said, but its members could not participate as such in any conference on the conflict here.

Post's Essay Test Closes; Judges to Begin Work Soon

Many Contributions Are Received on Final Day; Progress in Selection of Winners To Be Detailed Only in Paper.

The Post Washington Essay Contest came to a glorious finish at midnight last night. Many last-minute contestants brought in their essays personally, or their parents did for them, just before the clock in the city room pointed to the hour of 12. The last mails brought in so many essays that the editors are having a busy time separating them in age groups so that all the essays will be ready for the committee of distinguished men and women judges to begin their work of deciding the awards at once.

The thousands of boys and girls of Washington who have sent in such well written and finished essays on George Washington are to be congratulated. The editors of the contest wish that every boy and girl in the contest could win one of the 108 cash awards. Many of the boys and girls and their parents have called up during the last few days to express appreciation of The Washington Post for the splendid motion picture show given on Saturday for the contestants.

The success of the contest was increased by the interest and cooperation of the citizens of Washington, the principals and teachers in public and private schools and the school board authorities, the officials of the local and national Bicentennial commissions and organizations of men and women, all of whom The Post wishes to thank.

It will not be possible to answer questions about the awards at the office of The Post while the work of judging the essays is in progress, but information will be printed in The Post. Every one will be looking for the announcement of the awards which will be made as soon as possible.

Among the hundreds of essays received yesterday were those from the following:

Marguerite Allen (age 12), 3200 Nichols avenue southeast; Catherine Agnes Bogan (age 9), 67 W street northwest; Marion Toomey (age 15), 3823 Morrison street, Chevy Chase, D. Wets Gain in House As Rum Referendum Loses by 227 to 187

Advocates Lack 89 Votes in Total of Those Present to Carry Proposal; Four Women for Resolution; Many Surprises Are Revealed in Ballot.

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD.

A distinct wet trend in Congress, stronger even than the wets themselves believed it to be, was revealed in the House yesterday.

In the first real prohibition test since the passage of the Volstead act in 1919 the House indirectly turned down a proposal to permit the States to vote again on the liquor question.

The vote was 227 to 187.

That the proposal would be defeated was, of course, taken for granted. The surprising thing was that it should bring out as many favorable votes as it did. The expectation had been that the affirmative votes would total only about 175.

The 187 who, in effect, voted for resubmission of the eighteenth amendment to the States yesterday was 59 more than voted against the eighteenth amendment in 1917, and 87 more than voted against the Volstead act in 1919.

Quite a few of those who voted yesterday to clear the way for a new national referdum on prohibition insist that they should not be labeled as "wets." Their sole purpose, they say, is to give the people another chance to pass on the liquor question.

However, that is all that the out-and-out wets are asking.

What will be the effect of yesterday's vote? That is the question politicians were pondering last night.

Exultant wet leaders predicted that many of those who voted dry will find that they guessed wrong and will be defeated when they come up for reelection. They predicted further that the next Congress would be sunfficiently wet to resubmit the prohibition question.

"The fight is all but won," said Representative J. Charles Linthicum (Democrat), of Maryland, leader of the Democratic wets. "All we need now is one more election."

Representative John G. Cooper (Republican), of Ohio, a dry, conceded that the wets "have made considerable gains since last year."

"But," he added, "it is a long way from the two-thirds necessary to submit the question to the people."

In yesterday's test, the wets were only 20 shy of half of those present, and 89 shy of the two-thirds present, the number needed to submit a constitutional amendment to the States.

Looked at from the standpoint of partisan politics, yesterday's vote presents something of a paradox. The Democratic party is virtually certain

PITTS' AIDS INVITED TO DOCUMENT PROBE

Jurors to Start Hearings for Determining Guilt on Alleged False Papers.

Formal invitations to appear before the Federal grand jury were sent yesterday to a group of men whom the jurors wish to question in connection with the latest attempt of the Department of Justice to find out who, if any one, of Pitts' associates had any guilty knowledge of the preparation or use of several score of alleged spurious authorizations used in the first trial of G. Bryan Pitts on charges of embezzlement.

Government prosecutors yesterday stressed the fact that no formal subpenas had been or would be issued to compel the attendance before the grand jury of any of the principal witnesses.

It was learned that the unofficial invitations had been issued to G. Bryan Pitts, who is now serving a 14-year sentence at Lorton; Frank G. Raichle, John H. Edwards, jr., and C. Elbert Anadale, the latter two of whom are former vice presidents of the F. H. Smith Co.

Japanese Airplane Downed on Siberia

Situation Tense; Troops Mobilized on Both Sides of Border.

London, March 14 (A.P.).—A Japanese airplane was reported in an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Harbin, Manchuria, today to have crossed the Siberian border at Pogranichnaya. Planes of Soviet Russia pursued the Japanese ship and forced her down, the dispatch said.

No further details of the incident were given but the same message said a riot had occured at Manchuli, another point near the Siberian border in Manchuria, and that a Japanese merchant was killed. A Japanese army division was reported under orders to proceed to the frontier to restore order.

Observers were reported as of the opinion that the approach by Japanese troops to a point close to the border was particularly dangerous in view of the recent mobilization of Soviet troops on the border.

10,000 to Walk Out As Protest at Gangs

New York, March 14 (A.P.).—More than 10,000 members of the Cloth Hat, Cap and Millinery Workers' Union of New York will walk out this week in protest against gang terrorization, which, it is charged, has become so rampant many legitimate businesses are threatened with destruction.

The workers, meeting at Cooper Union today, charge that organized racketeers have levied "protection" tribute on about 100 millinery plants in New York, some of the payments to the underworld reaching $1,000 a year.

DRASTIC DUTY VOTED BY FRENCH CHAMBER

Ambassador Edge Registers Protests Against Ban on Fruits From U. S.

Paris, March 14 (U.P.).—Drastic new import restrictions, affecting virtually all countries trading with France, were approved by the Chamberof Deputies tonight shortly after United States Ambassador Walter E Edge had protested to the government against the effect of the fruit embargo on American fruits.

The new restrictions were included in the general import tax measure which was incorporated in the 1932 budget.

The measure imposes an ad valorum tax of 2 per cent on raw materials, 4 per cent on semifinished materials, and 6 per cent on finished products, in addition to existing tariffs.

It was believed the measure would reduce imports heavily by making prices of foreign-made articles prohibitive. The chamber virtually completed discussion of the budget, which now goes to the Senate.

Prior to the chamber action, the government called a meeting of of-

President Attends Funeral of Cousin

George Clyde Hoover Is to Be Buried at Former Home in Iowa.

President and Mrs. Hoover attended the funeral yesterday afternoon of George Clyde Hoover, 65 years old, the President's first cousin, who died Saturday night. The services were conducted at Friends Church, Thirteenth and Irving streets northwest. The body will be taken to West Branch, Iowa, Mr. Hoover's home, for burial.

Mr. Hoover was employed as an attorney in the Bureau of Valuation of the Interstate Commerce Commission for seven years. He was stricken with a heart attack last Thursday. He is survived by the widow, a son, Clyde, and a daughter, Mrs. Helen Yoder, of West Branch.

A resolution, expressing sadness over Mr. Hoover's death, was adopted yesterday by a committee of attorneys representing the legal section of the Bureau of Valuation. The resolution was signed by Charles W. Needham, Thomas M. Ross and Urban C. Stover.

De Sibours Land Safely In Central Africa Town

London, March 14 (A.P.).—Anxiety for the safety of the Viscountess de Sibour, daughter of Gordon Selfridge, the department store magnate, was dispelled today when a message reached London from Central Africa, where she and the viscount are on a flying tour, announcing that they had reached Naimey.

They left Paris for Simri, Central Africa, on February 11 with a spare engine for the French flier, Mlle. Maryse Hiltz, who was stranded there on a flight of her own. A delay in hearing from them gave rise to reports that they had met with a mishap.

BUREAU FAVORS ESTATE TAX TO BOOST REVENUE

Efficiency Board Agrees in Principle to Plan of Mapes Bill.

URGES AMENDMENTS TO SPECIFIED LEVIES

Will Report to Senate Group on Gasoline and Auto Bills Tomorrow.

An estate tax for the District, part of the drastic Mapes program voted by the House, was approved in principle yesterday by the Bureau of Efficiency but the bureau, whose District tax findings were rejected by the Mapes committee, rewrote significant provisions of the House bill, adding twelve amendments.

Computation methods in the bill were attacked as capable of dual interpretation; some of the valuation provisions declared "grossly inequitable;" while amendments were offered to remove nonresident intangible tax features of the bill as drafted by the Mapes committee.

The measure is one of five bills submitted to the bureau for analysis and report by Senator Arthur Capper. Two other Mapes bills, providing a 2-cent increase in the gasoline tax and a levy on automobiles by weight, will be sent to the Senate District committee tomorrow. The bureau will be a week more in redrafting the income tax bill, nor is it yet ready to report on proposed abolition of the 60-40 Federal lump-sum plan.

Estate Tax Least Controversial.

The estate tax was one of the least controversial of the bills by which the House hoped to collect $4,000,000 in additional District taxes, thus obviating the necessity of Congress voting the full amount of its usual $9,500,000 lump sum.

Under its terms a tax would be imposed on the estates of decedents ranging from 1 per cent on net estates not in excess of $50,000, to 15 per cent on an estate over $5,000,000. Representative Carl F. Mapes' House fiscal relations committee estimated the tax would yield $750,000, and the bureau conceded yesterday this was "reasonable."

As the Federal Government permits a credit up to 80 per cent of the Federal estate taxes on all inheritance taxes levied in the States or in the District, House members declared there could be no sound opposition to this measure. The Bureau of Efficiency yesterday agreed with the House on this score.

"The enactment of an estate tax law for the District of Columbia at the rates prescribed in the bill fits into a balanced plan of taxation," the bureau reported.

Holds Taxation Equitable.

"In economic theory the tax can be defended as being in complete harmony with the principles of equitable taxation. It is found in almost every country and the more democratic the country, the more developed is the tax."

Based on the $750,000 estimate, the bureau said the effect of the bill would be to increase the District revenues by that amount and to re-

NOTE DECLARES "WORK IS DONE"

Bachelor Donated More Than $75,000,000 to Philanthropy.

Rochester, N. Y., March 14 (A.P.), George Eastman shot and killed himself at 12:50 p. m. today, leaving this simple note for his friends:

"My work is done. Why wait?"

He was multimillionaire of diversified interests, long recognized as the developer and head of one of the world's greatest industries and celebrated for philanthropy that reached the staggering total of more than $75,000,000.

Lately, in failing health, he had been confined to his bed in his Rochester home on East avenue. There today he asked attendants to leave his side.

A moment later they heard the shot that destroyed him. Among them was his personal physician, Dr. Oudley D. Stewart, who announced the suicide nearly two hours later.

Bachelor in Seventy-eighth Year.

Mr. Eastman was a bachelor in his seventy-eighth year. He had few, if any, relatives.

With the report of his death, the stock of the Eastman Kodak Co. was depressed $8 on the New York Exchange. It recovered partially, but the news was a severe shock to the market, coming, as it did, on the heels of the suicide of Ivar Kreuger, match king.

Mr. Eastman's simple note, which was addressed "to my friends," was left at his bedside.

There was nothing in his long and effective career to indicate a motive for suicide. Dr. Stewart said only that he "apparently was in such mental state." He had been ill for several years, but had recovered to a degree that encouraged his friends, the physician added.

Sick Room Conference.

Several friends, most of them connected with the Eastman Co., held a sick-room conference with him earlier in the day. He seemed cheerful, they said, and the business of the company was not discussed. They signed a codicil to his will as witnesses, but failed to suspect his plan.

Before sending the attendants from his room he dictated a letter to a private secretary. Its contents were not divulged. The suicide note he wrote in his own hand.

Bankers familiar with Eastman affairs were convinced that his act was the result of mature years and ill health, and nothing more.

(United Press.)

The rise of George Eastman in America's industrial and financial world was one of those outstanding romances of business that ran parallel with the amazing creative and inventive processes of the turn of the century.

His start, like that of Edison, and of Ford, and of Alexander Graham Bell, came from an overwhelming curiosity in the field of science. At 20, which was in 1874, he was working as a bank clerk in Rochester, N. Y., at $20 a week.

One of his friends, knowing he was planning a vacation, suggested he take a camera along—one of those cumbersome boxes using the wet-plate process. Eastman paid his

TWO SUICIDES SHAKE NERVE OF MARKETS

Kreuger Issues Off Sharply and Eastman Kodak Also Suffers Drop.

New York, March 14 (A.P.).—Financial markets were somewhat unnerved today by the deaths by suicide of two world leaders in industry and finance within 48 hours.

Particularly disturbing to world markets was the death of Ivar Kreuger, Swedish match king, but news in the last few minutes of trading in the New York market that George Eastman, founder of one of America's leading industrial enterprises, had taken his life was momentarily unsettling.

Highest banking quarters in Wall street, however, asserted after the close of the market that there was no parallel between the Eastman and Kreuger deaths. While Kreuger was known to have been driven to the verge of nervous collapse by the entanglement of his world-wide financial affairs, the Eastman enterprises were in an unassailable financial position, bankers asserted. They attributed Eastman's death to advanced years and ill health rather than to the worries incident to the economic situation over the world.

On the whole, international bankers expressed themselves as encouraged by the comparative calm maintained by markets in the face of the Kreuger affair. Although the Kreuger issues broke sharply in all world markets, securities in New York held up fairly well until late afternoon, when marked weakness cropped out in the rail shares, and considerable liquidation came into most groups in the bond market. Outside of the Kreuger group, however, selling was at no time in impressive volume. The news of Eastman's death came at a time when the market was already slipping decidedly, and within a few minutes the drop was checked.

Of foreign markets, only the Stock-

Latest Hawaiian Attack Draws Rapid Indictment

Honolulu, March 14 (A.P.).—Moving swiftly after the latest attack upon a woman here, a grand jury in special session returned an indictment today charging Joseph Young with criminal assault.

Young, Korean-Hawaiian, was arrested yesterday, accused of beating and assaulting Bernice Lum, 17-year-old Chinese girl, late Saturday night. Prosecutor John C. Kelley said he expected Young's trial would begin next week.

Kerens' $2,000,000 Plea Refused by Supreme Court

(Associated Press.)

Vincent Kerens will have to make another try for the $2,000,000 prize which depends upon convincing a court he has been sober and behaved himself for five years.

The supreme court yesterday refused to review the decision of a circuit court of appeals that the son of the late Richard C. Kerens, St. Louis millionaire and former Ambassador to Austria-Hungary, had not conducted himself properly for five years.

The father had tried to reform his son during his lifetime and these efforts failing, he left a provision in his will which said Vincent should get his $2,000,000 share in the estate if he could convince the trustee he had "passed five consecutive years of continued sobriety and good behavior."

He finally succeeded in convincing the trustee, the St. Louis Union Trust Co., that he had been good from 1923 to 1928, but his sisters, Mrs. Gladys Kerens Colket and Mrs. Madeline Kerens Kenna, were not convinced.

They took the case to the courts and the appellate court said it was evident the trustee had made no attempt to investigate charges against Kerens and had not taken into account attempts he made to deceive the trustee to get his money in the past.

Kerens secured a divorce from his first wife, Jane Kerens, in 1924, and in about a week married Mrs. Mae Linn, of Dallas, Tex.

The circuit court said that during about a year and a half of the period when Kerens was supposed to have been on his good behavior that he was living with Mrs. Linn, although at that time he was not divorced.

CARDOZO SWORN IN BEFORE BIG CROWD

New Yorker Takes Place as Successor of Associate Justice Holmes.

(Associated Press.)

A crowd which took all standing and sitting room in the small Supreme Court chamber yesterday watched Benjamin Nathan Cardozo deliver the responses which made him an associate justice of the Supreme Court.

The voice of the successor to Oliver Wendell Holmes was steady and firm, but a slight tremble in his upraised right hand showed his emotion.

He swore to "administer justice without respect to persons" and then moved a few paces to take his seat beside Justice Harlan F. Stone, at the left end of the bench. Owen J. Roberts, until yesterday the last to take such an oath, began delivering an opinion. Cardozo made a few notes and then leaned back at his ease. He has been a judge in New York for years.

Six-Cent Gasoline Tax Upheld.

The new justice is short in stature, but like his predecessor, Holmes, he has an impressive head. His hair is thick and silvery and his eyebrows are formidable.

Lawyers and officials composed the bulk of the crowd in the courtroom. Among them were Attorney General Mitchell and Solicitor General Thacher.

Several seats were reserved for friends and relatives of the new justice. Like Justice McReynolds, he is a bachelor.

Thirty-seven cases awaited decision. Sixteen of these were disposed of, but several of the more important were left for future decision days.

Chief Justice Hughes delivered an opinion which upheld the 6-cent tax on gasoline bought in South Carolina. The court took a few cases up for decision later, but it swept more than twice as many off its docket.

Gangster's Appeal Rejected.

Among those it refused to hear were the appeal of Jack Guzick, Chicago gangster and associate of Al Capone, from his conviction for evading income taxes.

The New York reapportionment case, involving the right of the State legislature to redistrict without submitting the resolution of Gov. Roosevelt for approval was presented to the court yesterday with a request that its hearing be expedited.

The court refused John W. Keogh, of Chicago, permission to file a petition to compel the Illinois Legislature to redistrict that State. He asserted the apportionment in 1901 did not give Chicago, with 52 per cent of the population of the State, proper representation in the State legislature.

Senate Votes Alien Ban On Instrumental Artists

(Associated Press.)

The Senate yesterday voted to extend the immigration ban to alien instrumental musicians.

A House bill requiring that the instrumental musicians be subject to the contract labor regulation was passed and sent to the White House.

New York Critic Assists Sirovich's Theater Inquiry

By JOHN J. DALY.

Robert Bruce Coleman, drama critic of the New York Mirror, appeared yesterday as the star performer before Representative Sirovich's committee on patents, a John the Baptist of Broadway who came down from New York voluntarily to testify. At the conclusion of a good-natured grilling Coleman expressed the opinion that all his confreres would have met with the representatives had the critics known the caliber of the committee. He then extended this blanket invitation:

"It would give me great pleasure to have the learned chairman of this committee, Dr. Sirovich, with the other members of the committee, come to New York and follow, as my guest, the work of this critic from the opening of a play until the issue of the criticism."

Dr. Sirovich accepted the invitation—and soon he will sit in with the Broadway critical fraternity on the opening of a new play.

"Only God can make a dramatic critic," Coleman said, dramatically, paraphrasing Joyce Kilmer's line. "Critics are born—not made," he said. "Even through study, a critic can not always attain the stature of an Aristotle. Every barrister is not an Oliver Wendell Holmes, nor a Benjamin Cardozo. So, every critic is not a George Bernard Shaw, or a George Brandes."

The investigation led all over the lot, so that Representative Cole asked: "What is this, a fishing expedition?" Coleman was asked:

"What is the cause of the decline in the theater?"

"It has not declined like other industries," he answered. "The steel industry, without criticism, is doing only 40 per cent of normal business. The theater is off only 50 per cent. The hotel business, down to 25. So the theater is in a healthy state. There has been overproduction of theaters, just as of automobiles. Every man with a vacant lot in the Broadway sector figured he could make money if he put a theater on it—so he did. New York could support 30 or 40 theaters, whereas there are at least 60. My views on this are shared by Charles Dillingham. I also believe producers should be held to account for booking inferior attractions in their houses."

Representative Rich, of Pennsylvania, took up the question of ticket speculation, and wanted to know how the scalpers affected the show business.

"Ticket speculators finance producers, in some cases," Coleman said. "Also, producers sometimes figure they have an assured guarantee for their plays when the speculators get behind them—buying big blocks of seats."

"Who is responsible for the practice of ticket speculators?" Rich asked.

"The public," Coleman replied. "The selfish theatergoer who wants to get good seats on short notice helps breed the speculator."

Representative Perkins, of New Jersey, wanted to know if any good drama was ever destroyed by dramatic criticism.

"Truth crushed to earth shall rise again," said Coleman.

"Is the trouble with drama the unfair criticism or the drama itself?" Perkins wanted to know.

Mr. Coleman thought that in some cases it might be the drama—and cited the dirty shows.

He admitted the field of dramatic criticism harbored some fakers and charlatans.

"Doesn't wise-cracking destroy the critic rather than the drama?" Perkins asked.

"It does," said Coleman. "No one has respect for a clown. Criticism is a dignified profession and most critics take their profession seriously. We deplore the clowns."

"You are not like those critics who have pilloried and excoriated me as chairman of this committee—but we will go on in spite of them because we want to write a copyright law that will stand the test of time," Dr. Sirovitch said.

"And let me say," interrupted Coleman, "that I read your speech made in the House of Representatives, and I heard your radio address last night, and I think they were very fair. I approve of them thoroughly. I find that instead of attacking critics you are attacking incompetent critics. That's right."

Coleman protested against the admissions tax contemplated in the new revenue bill. He argued that it would destroy little theaters and prevent an outlet for new talent.

EFFICIENCY BUREAU APPROVES ESTATE TAXATION IN DISTRICT

duce the revenues of the Federal Government by $600,000 a year.

"Because of the 80 per cent credit allowed by the Federal Government, the net additional cost to decedents' estates under the proposed bill would be surprisingly low," the bureau stated. "Even in the case of a large estate the additional cost would not exceed 2 per cent of the net estate. This, of course, would be in addition to any estate tax paid to the Federal Government."

Virtually all of the twelve changes proposed were patterned after provisions of the Federal estate tax law or the "model succession and estate law" drafted by a special committee of the National Tax Association.

Would Amend Intangibles.

Holding it the intent of the Mapes bill to tax intangible property of nonresidents, the bureau cited the Supreme Court case of the First National Bank of Boston, versus the State of Maine, which held States can not tax the intangible property of nonresidents. The bureau asked amendment of the bill to conform with this provision.

Second, it urged that the bill allow deductions for losses from casualties or theft during settlement of an estate. This is done in the Federal estate law.

Finding that the Mapes bill would allow greater exemptions to a brother and sister than to the child of the deceased, the report asked that exemptions to lineal ancestors and children, now $2,000, be increased to $5,000; that exemptions for brothers and sisters be decreased to $2,000.

Probably the most serious exception was taken to the method of tax computation provided in the Mapes bill. Asking clarification of this section, the bureau urged that the language used in the Federal estate tax law be followed.

"Different interpretations might be given to the language used in this bill," the report stated. "Under one interpretation the tax on a net estate of $75,000 would be 2 per cent, or $1,500, as the estate was 'over $50,000 and not exceeding $100,000.' If the computation for the same estate of $75,000 is made on in increasing rate plan the tax would be 1 per cent for the first $50,000, or $500, and 2 per cent for the remaining $25,000, or $500, making a total of 1,000."

The bureau further took exception to Mapes' provisions for taxing all property in an estate, regardless of any former death duty that may have been imposed—pointing out the possibility of repeated taxation where several deaths occur close together. It suggested allowance for death taxes paid within two years.

Provisions for filing a duplicate United States tax return with the Probate Court was held unnecessary. The bureau declared the court is "without interest" in the matter, proposing instead that the duplication be filed with the District Commissioners.

The bureau declared the Mapes plan goes too far in evaluating an estate. The bill provides for appraisement of stocks and bonds, using average market value as listed on stock exchanges for six months preceding death. In rising markets the estate would gain, in falling markets it would lose, argues the bureau, asking that this provision be stricken from the bill.

Other Amendments Suggested.

Additional amendments would substitute "90 days after the due date of an inventory" for "90 days after completion of an inventory" for the assessment date; would provide for appeal 60 days after assessment; would strike provisions for a special fund for refunding estate taxes erroneously collected; would provide for immediate payment of insurance policies, delayed 10 days under the Mapes bill; and would attach a saving clause, making the rest of the act effective in any portion should be held invalid in the courts.

Rates under the bill and under the Federal estate tax law are very closely parallel on estates up to $5,000,000, where the rate is 15 per cent in each case. Here the scale for the District ends, while the Federal estate tax continues, stopping with 20 per cent on $10,000,000.

Exemptions under the bill range from $1,000 to distant relatives or strangers, to $20,000 on property transferred to widows. In the Federal law, general exemption of $100,000 is allowed, regardless of the relationship of the beneficiary to the decedent. With practically equal rates and lowered exemptions, the bill would normally produce revenue somewhat in excess of the Federal estate tax, the bureau pointed out.

$60,000,000 IS ASKED FOR RIVER PROJECTS

President Requests House to Speed Appropriation Lest Jobless Total Rise.

(Associated Press.)

Immediate appropriation of $60,000,000 to maintain full employment on Federal waterway improvement work was asked of Congress yesterday by President Hoover.

A special message to the House urged action, "in order that we may avoid the unemployment and dislocation that would result from delays."

The President explained that expecting enactment of the War Department supply bill at the customary time "the engineers have entered upon certain contracts, the continuance of which have depended upon the passage of the appropriation at the usual time."

"It appears that the regular War Department appropriation act for the fiscal year 1933 will be delayed beyond the usual time," the President's message said.

"The budget estimate for the maintenance and improvement of existing river and harbor works for 1933 is $60,000,000, which should become immediately available upon the passage of the act.

"I am now advised by the Secretary of War that, depending upon the usual course of appropriations, the engineers have entered upon certain contracts, the continuance of which have depended upon the passage of the appropriation at the usual time.

"As delay seems inevitable and unless some action be taken, a large number of men will be thrown out of work and other expenses incurred by suspension of work, I therefore recommend that Congress give consideration to immediate appropriation of the funds for the maintenance and improvement of existing river and harbor works."

Secretary Hurley of the War Department, in a statement accompanying the President's message, said:

"Anticipating the passage of the War Department appropriation bill before April, this year, contracts contingent upon this appropriation have been entered into and contractors have engaged labor and material to proceed with the work. * * * It will soon be necessary to suspend operation on many important projects and lay off a considerable force of men unless additional funds are appropriated."

Guard Blinded by Lye As 18 Prisoners Escape

Raleigh, N. C., March 14 (A.P.).—Eighteen Negro prisoners, including eleven who escaped when one of their number hurled a can of lye into the face of a guard, probably permanently blinding him, were being sought tonight after three State prison camp breaks.

John Stevenson, guard at the Stokesdale camp, in Guilford County, was the victim of the largest break, in which three life-termers escaped. Physicians said it was probable he would not recover his sight. Three "honor" prisoners "walked off" from a camp at Elizabethtown and four more escaped at Troy.

Missionary Group Approves Budget

Southern Methodist Women Vote $302,904 for Home Missions.

Atlanta, Ga., March 14 (A.P.).—The woman's missionary council of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, today adopted a budget of $302,904.69 for home missions in 1932, and $559,724 for foreign missions.

It also approved a committee report in support of disarmament, international cooperation and abolition of public military training. Of the foreign missions appropriation $121,724 was set aside for work in China.

The committee on international relations and world peace suggested four objectives for 1932: That ratification of the world court protocols be urged; that increased and sustained cooperation with the League of Nations continue; that compulsory military training be opposed, especially reserve officers' training corps units in schools, and citizens military training camps, and that opinions favorable to armament reduction be registered with the State Department at Washington and with the United States' representatives at the Geneva conference.

Federal Body Sued In A. F. of L. Split

U. S. Employes Maintain Severance Vote Was Held Illegally.

The severance of the National Federation of Federal Employes from the American Federation of Labor was attacked in the District Supreme Court yesterday when a group of 12 members of the Federal union filed a bill asserting that the voting which was held to find out how the members stood on the question of severance was illegal.

David R. Glass, and 12 others, members of local Unions No. 2, 249, 252, 260, 261, and 262, through Attorneys James S. and Frank S. Easby-Smith, declared that the voting was in violation of the Constitution and they asked the Court to enjoin the Federal Union from severing relations with the Federation of Labor.

The bill asked that the per capita tax, nonpayment of which would automatically create a severance, be directed to be paid. Luther C. Steward, president; Gertrude M. McNally, secretary-treasurer, and other officers of the Government union were listed as defendants.

Settlement Nears In U. S.-Radio Suit

Attorney General Reports to Senate Body on Steps in R. C. A. Case.

(Associated Press.)

A report from the Attorney General saying negotiations are in progress for settlement of the Government's suit against the Radio Corporation of America and other companies by entering a consent decree was considered yesterday by the Senate judiciary committee.

The report, requested by the Senate, added that some differences remain to be reconciled before a settlement is reached. The judiciary committee took no action.

The request by the Senate asked that no compromise be agreed to pending receipt of the information.

"We spent a good deal of time discussing the letter of the Attorney General," said Senator Norris, of Nebraska, chairman of the committee.

SENATE UNIT FAVORS NORRIS SHOALS BILL

Group Challenges Friends of Private Production of Fertilizer.

(Associated Press.)

The Senate agriculture committee yesterday threw out a challenge to advocates of private production of fertilizer at Muscle Shoals to accept the lease provisions of the Norris bill for Government operation of the power plant.

Recommending the Norris bill to the Senate, the committee said it would give "ample authority" for the production of cheap fertilizer by private interests.

In its report submitted by Senator Norris (Republican), Nebraska, author of the bill, the committee charged, however, that a Nation-wide propaganda campaign had been carried on for eight years to obtain the power at Muscle Shoals for private profit under the guise of making cheap fertilizer for the farmer.

Farm Bureau Lobbyists.

The committee said the American Farm Bureau Federation had maintained a "high-priced representative and lobbyists" in Washington, asking for a leasing proposition, and that they had always been in close touch with the President, both during the present and preceding administrations.

"If all of these people have been acting in good faith, and have not been practicing any deception on the American farmer," the committee said, "they will enthusiastically embrace the opportunity which this resolution will give them, and will at once organize a farmer-owned and farmer-controlled corporation, and secure a lease from the President to these nitrate plants."

"If there are any provisions in these leasing sections which are not fair or which are too harsh, the committee will welcome any amendment which will liberalize them without giving to the lessee an outright bonus from the Federal Treasury."

Favorable Contract.

The committee added that there was no doubt that the leasing provisions would give the lessee "an exceedingly favorable contract in regard to power" and the only condition demanded was that he should "in good faith, make fertilizer."

The Norris bill provides that if the nitrate plant is not leased within a year it shall be operated by the Government for experimental production of fertilizer.

The Government, in any event, would operate the power plant and construct transmission lines for the sale of power with preference to States, counties, municipalities and farmer organizations.

Critics Shy at Telling All In Capitol Music Hall

By JOHN J. DALY

CHALLENGED to come down from Broadway and face the music on Capitoline Hill, the wise-cracking dramatic critics failed to show up for Dr. Sirovich's performance. Only one, a very dignified member of the craft, had the temerity to make a personal appearance.

As star of the Greatest Show on Earth, Mr. Robert Bruce Coleman, of the New York Mirror, who holds it up to nature, as nature is portrayed on the Broadway boards, indulged in a fine display of forensic oratory while he faced the patents committee. He dragged out the dear, dead hosts of First Nighters from Aristotle on down, to prove the need of dramatic critics, and the right of a critic to criticize.

There is room for the dramatic critic, all right, but the chairman of the House committee investigating the nefarious doings of these people—who are accused with ruining the American theater—thought they ought to have more time for writing their reviews.

* * * *

"I DO not agree to that," the spokesman of the critical fraternity interrupted, "Some of the world's best work is written at fever heat—white heat! Take, for example, Schubert's work, 'Hark, Hark, the Lark.'"

"But there are samples to show that the reverse is true," the chairman interposed. "Now, there is Wagner's 'Faust'—that took a lifetime."

"Oh, yes," said the critic, still on the job, "Goethe began that at the age of 25 and finished it at the age of 83."

It merely proved the old adage, "Once a critic, always a critic." The chairman was getting his musicians and poets mixed.

Asked how critics got that way, the Head Man from Broadway remarked, quite poetically:

"Only God can make a critic—critics are born. Even through intensive study, every critic can not attain the stature of Aristotle."

* * * *

A PAUSE. Silence descended upon the crowded committee room as auditors, committeemen and the witness pondered a sublime thought:

I think that I, though analytic,
Could never be a drama critic;

A critic who reviews a play
And shoots it full of holes next day;

A critic who, in tempered moods,
Drives all the playwrights to the woods;

Who sits sublimely on the aisle
And never condescends to smile;

A critic who, when forced to throttle
Some budding play, cites Aristotle.

Plays are made by miss or hit-ic;
But only Broadway makes a critic.

GREATER AUTHORITY GIVEN SAVINGS BODY

Special Group Empowered to Work on Bills to Merge and End Bureaus.

(Associated Press.)

The special economy committee set up to effect savings in Government departments was authorized yesterday by the House to report legislation directly to abolish bureaus and institute consolidations.

The vote on a special resolution granting this power was 258 to 115. The life of the committee was extended from April 15 to the end of the session. It was created after the Democratic leadership discarded President Hoover's request for authority for him to effect economies through reorganization.

The committee of seven is composed of four Democrats and three Republicans, headed by Representative Byrns (Democrat), Tennessee, chairman of the appropriations committee.

Called Political Gesture.

Republican opposition was led by Representative Michener, of Michigan, and Representative LaGuardia, of New York. Mr. Michener said the committee was created "as a political gesture by the Democrats, who want to make a record, but they have accomplished nothing."

He added it was created "for publicity," but said he favored anything that would effect economy.

Mr. LaGuardia told the House "its purpose is to destroy good work being carried on by Government agencies."

Chairman Pou of the rules committee, who sponsored the resolution for its author, Representative Byrns, said: "It will enable the economy committee to bring in before the House concrete recommendations on the results of their deliberations. It does not take away any power from any other committee, but permits expeditious action on the findings of the committee."

Postal Recommendations.

Postmaster General Brown yesterday informed Chairman Byrns, of the House economy committee, that further savings in the postal service depend largely on fundamental changes in employment policy which only Congress can authorize.

Mr. Brown expressed the opinion in a letter to Mr. Byrns that the Postoffice budget could not be balanced by a retrenchment of expenditures only but it would be necessary to increase postal rates with a view to obtaining increased revenues.

"The bulk of the Postoffice budget," the Postmaster General said, "goes for salaries and wages, and the question of reducing the cost of Postoffice operations is, therefore, very largely a question of reducing the pay roll.

Economies Outlined.

"To the greatest possible extent the department is cutting down its expenses for transportation, housing, supplies, but the pay roll, practically speaking, is beyond administrative reach."

Mr. Brown suggested the possibilities of reducing the force, of modifying the wage scale, and the consolidation of rural routes as possible means of saving. He said that the department did not wish to be understood as advocating these changes, but presents them as matters "to which the select committee must give attention if any effort is to be made to reduce postal expenditures."

He assured Mr. Byrns that the department would cooperate "to the fullest possible extent in any effort made to reduce the charge upon the general treasury for the support of the postal function."

AMENDMENTS ADD $535,000 TO HOWARD

$300,000 Extra Is Provided for New Library Building on Campus.

Amendments voting $535,000 in additional funds to Howard University were attached yesterday by the Senate to the Interior Department appropriations bill.

One provided $300,000 additional for a new library building on the Howard campus. Its adoption followed a lively debate, with two Southern senators arrayed against four from the West and North.

Senator Huey P. Long (Democrat), Louisiana, said if Congress can vote funds for a colored institution in Washington, it can vote money for colored education in his own State.

He proposed an amendment calling for $200,000 for the State of Louisiana to use in "eradicating illiteracy among the colored people."

Long Withdraws Appeal.

Senator Smoot (Republican), Utah, made the point of order that the Long proposal had not been estimated for by the budget bureau or reported by a standing committee. Senator La Follette (Republican), Wisconsin, in the chair, sustained him. Senator Long asked a roll call vote on the ruling, then changed his mand and withdrew the appeal.

The amendment increasing the House estimate of $100,000 for a new Howard library building was offered by Senator Henry D. Hatfield, Republican, who recited the history and unique character of the local colored institution.

Three amendments proposed by Senator Edward P. Costigan (Democrat), Colorado, were approved by the Senate. One would increase appropriations for a new power plant at the university from $300,000 to $460,000; another would increase appropriations for salaries from $450,000 to $475,000, and a third would increase funds for general expenses from $225,000 to $275,000.

Six in Argument.

Senator Hatfield, Senator Costigan, Senator Lewis (Democrat), Illinois, and Senator Kean (Republican), New Jersey, spoke in favor of the increased appropriations, while Senator Long and Senator Trammell (Democrat), Florida, argued it would be discriminatory not to make similar provisions for colored institutions in the States.

When Senator Lewis referred to the 300,000 Negroes in Chicago, lauding their contribution to industry and good citizenship, Senator Long interrupted to ask how many of the 300,000 vote.

Senator Lewis replied it was "not a matter of votes but of humanity."

Union Men Say 25,000 Repudiate Coal Strike

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., March 14 (A.P.).—Union leaders said today that less than 7,000 anthracite mine workers answered a call for a strike in the Wyoming and Lackawanna Valleys, voted by some of the local unions at a meeting last Friday night. It was claimed 25,000 men failed to answer the strike call.

The strike does not have the sanction of the district organization of the miners' union. It was called by a committee headed by Thomas Maloney, who has been at odds with the district organization. Equalization of work in all the mines and discontinuance of wage cutting were among the grievances cited for the strike call.

Co. case that is now undergoing investigation is that of the use of several score of alleged spurious authorizations used by Pitts in his first trial in an attempt to explain the taking of $5,000,000 from the F. H. Smith Co., or from some of its many subsidiaries. These authorizations purported to give to Pitts the right to take or withdraw the millions of dollars which he was charged with embezzling.

The Government has already produced in court testimony to the effect that these authorizations were made by Pitts and others at the Pitts home in Florida, in the fall of 1930, and were relied upon by the one-time millionaire as strong defense testimony.

The Government's' move to place the matter before the grand jury, as was exclusively reported in The Sunday Post, came as a distinct surprise to those familiar with the case. Just a few months ago Pitts was haled before Justice F. D. Letts on a charge of criminal contempt of court, was tried without an indictment, and was found guilty. For this Judge Letts sentenced him to one year and one day in the penitentiary.

At that time Justice Letts was requested by Government prosecutors to cite for criminal contempt of court others who might be shown to have had any material part in the preparation or use of these alleged false documents. This Justice Letts refused to do, informing the Government men that they should move for contempt citation in the proper manner, which was by formal motion to the court.

It had been expected that this was the procedure that the Government had elected to follow.

Representatives of the Department of Justice last night refused to comment upon the many rumors that floated around the courthouse as to whom the grand jury would be asked to indict. They did intimate, however, that sensational results might be expected from the inquisition.

INQUIRY ORDERED BY HOWARD BOARD

Trustees Name Committee of Five to Prepare for Operation Quiz.

Trustees of Howard University, who met in special session yesterday at the Prince George Hotel, New York, according to announcement made last night by Dr. Emmett J. Scott, secretary-treasurer, appointed a committee of five of its members to select a disinterested person or agency "for the purpose of ascertaining and reporting to the board all facts regarding the organization and operation of Howard University."

The trustees gave consideration not only to a proposed investigation of university affairs which served as the basis for a resolution introduced in Congress by Representative Robert S. Hall, of Mississippi, calling upon the subcommittee of the committee on appropriations in charge of the Interior Department appropriation bill, to scrutinize the university administration, but also to a large volume of anonymous criticism of Dr. Mordecai W. Johnson, university president, which has been published in colored Democratic newspapers.

The case of E. H. Gough, head janitor of the university, indicted for alleged pay roll padding, to which he has entered a plea of not guilty, and action favorable to him, taken by a subcommittee of the board, was also reported in detail. This matter, together with events which led to the separation of Dean Arnold Donawha from the college of denistry, were the principal matters discussed, with a view to a correct interpretation of legislation affecting the university administration under the Interior Department, as contrasted with administrations previous to that of Dr. Johnson.

Gen. John H. Sherburne, of Boston, chairman of the board of trustees, named as the committee of five to select the disinterested person or agency to conduct the investigation: Dr. Abram Flexner, of New York; George W. Crawford, of New Haven, Conn.; Dr. Peter M. Murray, Dr. Thomas Jesse Jones and Dr. Sara W. Brown, now resident in New York. This committee will report its recommendations, with expenses, at the next annual meeting of the board here April 12.

Appointment of the committee was calculated to bring into the open the widespread anonymous attack on the university president. Its complexion, with three colored members and two white members nationally known, was calculated to satisfy the university constituents and alumni, the latter being represented on the board and committee by Dr. Brown.

NORTH DAKOTA VOTE POLITICAL HUB TODAY

Murray and Roosevelt Chief Democratic Contenders on Primary Ticket.

Bismarck, N. Dak., March 14 (A.P.).—North Dakota becomes a political testing ground tomorrow as its citizens elect national party convention delegates and designate presidential preferences in a primary election.

Election officials tonight said they expected heavy balloting due to the high interest in the primary and a proposed State constitution amendment which would move the capital from Bismarck to Jamestown.

The contest between Govs. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York and W. H. Murray of Oklahoma for control of the State's delegates to the Democratic national convention commands chief attention. Each has a set of pledged candidates entered and each is bidding for the preference vote.

Votes cast on preference ballots have little significance beyond indicating the attitude of North Dakotans toward contesting candidates. Whether party convention delegates will be governed by the results is optional.

Delegates will be voted on individually, so there is possibility of a split delegation being sent to the convention.

On the Republican ticket, President Hoover has a pledged slate of eleven delegates competing with a slate of uninstructed delegates regarded as anti-Hoover and instructed by nonpartisan leaguers to vote for a "progressive."

"Gen." Jacob S. Coxey, mayor of Massillon, Ohio, and former United States Senator J. I. France, of Maryland, are the only candidates for the Republican preference vote. Mr. Hoover not being entered. Mr. Coxey and Mr. France have no convention delegates on the ballot.

In the 1928 primary Alfred E. Smith, Democratic presidential candidate, received 10,822 votes, while Frank O. Lowden, Republican, received 95,857. In the general election in 1928 Mr. Smith received 106,648 votes and Mr. Hoover 131,441.

De Jute Kidnap Suspect Waives Ohio Jury Trial

Warren, Ohio, March 14 (A.P.).—A jury trial was waived by Dowell Hargraves, 21, when he appeared in common pleas court late today charged with kidnaping James De Jute, 12, from his Niles home March 2. The State is asking life imprisonment.

Judge Lynn B. Griffith will hear testimony and then announce his verdict. Under the new Ohio criminal code a prisoner has the option of waiving a jury trial.

DIED

ALLISON—On Sunday, March 13, 1932, at George Washington University Hospital, WADE H., beloved husband of Margaret Richardson Allison and father of Leslie R., the Rev. EUGENE MEYER.

EUGENE MEYER went to Wall street from Yale. But beneath his long training in banking and international trade lay the native financial acumen which made the new West in a last quarter of the nineteenth century. He was born in Los Angeles, Calif., and was inured in his early life to what Kipling once called the "meaner damnabilities" of economics.

After schooling himself in the University of California and at Yale, where he took his A. B. degree in 1895, Meyer traveled in Europe for two years specializing in international finance. During this visit he acquainted himself with the fundamentals of the economic organization of every country on the Continent, as well as with that of the British Empire. As a result, he still has an uncanny faculty, in the most commonplace conversation, of pulling distressingly accurate and incisive facts and figures from under his hat.

Before the war it was said of him in Wall street that he had a more quickly available knowledge of what makes the world's financial wheels go 'round than any man of his years in the Street.

After heading the firm of Eugene Meyer & Co. from 1901 until 1917, during which time he also was director in many important corporations, he entered the war service of the Government, as adviser on nonferrous metals in the Council of National Defense. A few months later he became a member of the War Industries Board, and in April, 1918, President Wilson appointed him director of the War Finance Corporation.

President Coolidge appointed him Farm Loan Commissioner in May, 1927, which post he held until a few months after President Hoover's inauguration.

Last year he was recalled to the Government's service, as chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, and in January of the present year President Hoover designated him to be chairman of the board of the newly organized Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Meyer is noted as one of the most tacitturn officials in Washington. But when, as and if he talks to you, you may bank on his figures.

Next October 31 Mr. Meyer will celebrate his fifty-seventh birthday.

ROOSEVELT ENTERS 3 STATE PRIMARIES

Files in California, Florida and West Virginia; Vote Today Is Awaited.

New York, March 14 (A.P.).—Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt today made a formal bid for the support of Florida, West Virginia and California in the contest for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Chairman James A. Farley, of the Democratic State committee, announced the New York governor had signed certificates of candidacy entering his name in the presidential primaries to be held in Florida on June 7, in West Virginia on May 10, and in California on May 3.

Mr. Farley said telegrams had been received from Roosevelt supporters in all three States indicating they looked for little opposition from Speaker John N. Garner or Gov. William H. Murray.

Campaign headquarters for the Roosevelt movement have been organized in San Francisco and Los Angeles, with William H. McCarthy directing operations in northern California. Selection of a campaign manager for southern California is yet to be made, Mr. Farley said.

Definite announcement as to what course Gov. Roosevelt plans to take in Massachusetts, where a bitter primary fight is expected to develop between him and former Gov. Alfred E. Smith, was delayed for another day or two.

No attempt was being made at the Roosevelt headquarters here to conceal the interest felt over the outcome of tomorrow's primary in North Dakota, where Gov. Murray made an aggressive speaking campaign last week.

The North Dakota contest was regarded as just as important in the Middle West as was the New Hampshire primary in the East, in which Roosevelt emerged victorious.

Mr. Farley will leave tomorrow night for Detroit, where he will line up Roosevelt workers in preparation for the Michigan State convention on April 13 and 14.

POLICE WILL QUIZ KIDNAPING SUSPECT

cover man in the private hunt Col. Lindbergh is making for his son.

From the attorney of Salvy Spitale and Irving Bitz, underworld figures first designated as the Lindberghs' "go-betweens," came the statement that the pair had been in "indirect contact" with the kidnapers and would soon make a trip to Detroit in connection with their negotiations.

Bitz was quoted as saying the 20-month-old infant, missing for 13 days, was alive and safe.

Denies Underworld Aid.

Of the underworld, Col. Schwarzkopf had this to say in one of his bulletins:

"While we have been credited through the press with appealing to the underworld for help, there is absolutely no connection directly or indirectly between the underworld and the police officially in charge of the investigation. Therefore, if any information has been learned from the underworld of importance with reference to the investigation, it has never been made known to this department."

Fresh clews from such farflung cities as Jackson, Ky., and Hamburg, Germany, engaged police attention during the day, but near nightfall "there are no new developments" was reiterated.

The master of the S. S. City of Baltimore docking at Hamburg, informed police the child aboard the ship about whom they had inquired was a girl.

The sheriff of Breathitt County at Jackson, Ky., investigated a story of a New Jersey licensed car carrying a blonde infant and found that the machine actually was from Michigan and satisfied himself its occupants were beyond suspicion.

ficials whose departments are involved for Tuesday or Wednesday for discussion of the American protest on the embargo which has chiefly affected American apples. Edge was understood to have suggested that the ban be lifted on all uncontaminated fruits.

Acting on instructions from the State Department at Washington Mr. Edge pointed out to the ministry that American exporters had been given no advance warning that the embargo would be applied, and therefore were threatened with heavy losses in connection with shipments already en route to France.

Entry for Fruit Asked.

The ambassador insisted that fruit which is now enroute to France, as well as fruit which is being held up at the ports under terms of the embargo, should be granted the privilege of entry.

He emphasized that American fruit has been imported to France for many years without contaminating the French orchards and, therefore, there should not be any alarm in permitting these shipments to enter.

The embargo was declared on the ground that pests had been found in fruit imports.

Mr. Edge pointed out that the United States spends millions of dollars every year fighting fruit pests, and he recalled that no San Jose scale had been found in the American boxed fruit, which is barred under terms of the embargo.

Meanwhile, the American embassy commercial attache has been in constant communication with the State Department and Commerce Department at Washington, and it is expected that Mr. Edge later will make a determined effort to induce the French government to make important exceptions to the embargo in favor of American fruit imports.

New Bill to Free Filipinos Favored

House Group Also Would Allow Laborers to Go to Hawaii.

(Associated Press.)

A new bill providing for Philippine independence after eight years instead of five, as previously agreed upon, was approved yesterday by the House insular committee.

The committee also decided to allow free entry of Filipino laborers to Hawaii, while maintaining an annual quota of 50 in the United States.

Original limits on free importations of Philippine products were changed, as follows: Refined sugar, 50,000 long tons would be admitted duty free instead of 40,000; cocoanut oil, 200,000 long tons instead of 300,000; cordage, 3,000,000 pounds instead of 5,000,000. A total of 800,000 long tons of raw sugar was left unchanged. Chairman Hare announced he would report the bill today in the House.

SMITH PLEDGES NOT BINDING, HE WRITES

Bay State Delegates Free to Shift Vote if Name Fades From Consideration.

Cambridge, Mass., March 14 (A.P.).—Alfred E. Smith, in a letter received here today, said a Smith-pledged Massachusetts delegation to the Democratic national convention would be free to vote for any candidate it selects should Smith become eliminated from consideration. He was not yet prepared to say which candidate he would favor if he were eliminated.

The statements were made in a letter to Mrs. Jessie W. Sayre, daughter of the late President Wilson. Smith also said he did not consider the League of Nations a political issue today and that the attitude of the United States on this question would be determined by the rank and file of the people. When the majority of the rank and file became convinced the league was the way to world peace that majority would make itself known, he said.

Smith answered a letter from Mrs. Sayre containing three questions, which Mrs. Sayre said were asked "to clarify the situation for myself and many others here in Massachusetts."

Refuses to Take Sides.

Asked in the event his name should be withdrawn at the convention, whether he would favor the nomination of Franklin D. Roosevelt or some other candidate, Smith said: "I have already stated that I am neither for nor against any of the men so far mentioned and I gave as my reason for that, as leader of the party by virtue of my nomination in 1928, I should not take sides but should rather leave the whole question to the Democratic national convention."

Mayor James M. Curley, of Boston, Roosevelt leader here, was working today on selection of a Roosevelt-pledged slate to oppose the Smith-pledged slate in the coming State primary. He said it is almost completed and will be announced later in the week.

At the State House, Roland D. Sawyer, of Ware, heretofore a Smith supporter, attacked the Smith-pledged slate personnel on the ground it was more "anti-Roosevelt" than "pro-Smith."

To Go Direct to Voters.

Later Sawyer, a State representative, took out papers at the office of the secretary of state as an independent Smith delegate-at-large. In doing so, he said:

"I shall go direct to the voters, challenging Mr. Donahue's right to be a czar in Democratic politics. His procedure thus far has cost Smith thousands of votes in this State. I am pledged on my honor to be with Smith first and with Franklin D. Roosevelt as my second choice if Smith can not be nominated."

NEW MANCHU STATE SEEKS RECOGNITION FROM AMERICA

covenant of the Kellogg-Briand Pact."

Secretary Stimson on January 7 formally notified both the Chinese government and the Japanese government that any situation created by the presence of Japanese troops in China would not be regarded as constituting a basis for permanency. He followed up this pronouncement on February 24 by an open letter to Senator Borah in which he reiterated this principle and invited other nations of the world to do likewise.

The new Manchurian Government was ushered into existence March 9 when Henry Pu-Yi, former boy Emperor of China, was inaugurated as chingchen (dictator) of the State of Manchukuo. The presence of Japanese Gens. Honjo and Mori and of Count Uchida, president of the South Manchurian Railway, at the official birth of the government indicated the interest which Japan attached to the newly organized state.

The new dictator had never before set his foot in Manchuria, the land his forefathers ruled up to 250 years ago, when they set out to effect the subjugation of all China.

No Reply to Be Made.

American diplomatic or consular agents at Harbin or Mukden would certainly have declined to receive any emissary of the new state, and here in Washington the same rigorous policy of nonintercourse would have been followed. Instead of a personal appeal, however, the "minister of foreign affairs" chose the telegraph as a mode of approach, and the formal request came over the telegraph and was deposited in the State Department.

It is believed that the message was transmitted to Secretary Stimson, but no reply will be made by this Government. Similar moves to enlist the official cognizance of other nations will also be made by the new Manchurian government.

There was considerable speculation as to the attitude which will be taken in this present situation by the Japanese government. A formal request for Japanese recognition would be sure to meet with friendly and favorable support from the Tokyo authorities. In the face of negative position by the other powers, however, it is believed that Japan will hesitate before according to the outlaw government the protection of Japanese formal recognition.

The petition for recognition was couched in formal diplomatic language and recited the historical and political antecedents of the new government and then ended with "and we hereby request that formal diplomatic relations be established between this country and the United States."

Coming so soon upon the heels of the league assembly's courageous resolution against Japanese occupation of Chinese territory, the Manchurian move for international recognition will provoke considerable comment in the League of Nations. Just as the ceremony of inauguration in the Manchurian city of Changchun was said to have been arranged and paid for by Japanese agents, so also this diplomatic move of the illegitimate government is believed to have been motivated by the same Japanese influences.

The United States is prevented from taking any formal action toward recognizing by virtue of the statement of Secretary Stimson last January 7. At that time he notified the Nanking and the Tokyo governments that "the United States can not admit the legality of any situation de facto nor does it intend to recognize any treaty or agreement entered into between those governments or agents thereof, which may impair the treaty rights of the United States or its citizens in China, including those which relate to the sovereignty, the independence, or the territorial and administrative integrity of the Republic of China, or to the international policy relative to China, commonly known as the open door policy; and that it does not intend to recognize any situation, treaty or agreement which may be brought about by means contrary to the covenants and obligations of the Pact of Paris."

Same Principle Followed.

The same principle with an additional corrolary was followed by Secretary Stimson in his open letter to Senator Borah, who is chairman of the Senate committee on foreign relations. In his letter to the senator, Secretary Stimson said:

"We see no reason for abandoning the enlightened principles which are embodied in these (Kellogg and Pact of Paris) treaties. We believe that this present situation would have been avoided had these covenants been faithfully observed, and no evidence has come to us to indicate that a due compliance with them would have interfered with the adequate protection of the legitimate rights in China of the signatories of those treaties and their nationals."

G. O. P. WILL SELECT "KEYNOTER" APRIL 9

Committee Allots 4 Booths for Broadcasting; Lets Several Contracts.

(Associated Press.)

An orator to sound the keynote at the Republican national convention in Chicago June 14 will be selected in the Illinois city April 9 by the committee on arrangements.

This was decided at a meeting of the committee yesterday after preparations had been made for decorations and broadcasting and press arrangements.

Charles G. Dawes, head of the Reconstruction Corporation, was understood by several members present to have been offered the keynote temporary chairmanship assignment, but to have turned it down on the ground that it would mix politics with his present job.

President Hoover will be consulted before a selection is made, and there still is hope among some of the party leaders that the fiery and eloquent Dawes will take the job.

Senators Watson, of Indiana, majority leader in the Senate; Reed, of Pennsylvania, and Hastings, of Delaware, were others mentioned in lobby conservation yesterday for the keynote position held in 1928 by the present Republican national chairman, Senator Fess, of Ohio.

It would not be surprising if a senator got the assignment. In fact, it's hardly ever given to any other. Root, of New York; Burrows, of Michigan; Harding and Burton, of Ohio, and Lodge, of Massachusetts, have been named keynoters in the past 28 years.

The arrangements committee at its meeting yesterday allotted four booths for broadcasting facilities to the National and Columbia systems, the Chicago Tribune and the Independents.

Bastian Brothers, of Rochester, N. Y., were given a contract for convention badges; Dr. A. M. Harvey, of Chicago, was named chief of staff of physicians and nurses, and a committee of three was chosen to meet next Saturday in Chicago to make final arrangements for the press and photographers. Ralph Williams, of Oregon; David W. Mulvane, of Kansas, and Clarence Hamlin, of Colorado, make up this subcommittee.

Kidnapers Thought Known to Locality

Nearby Chief of Police Believes Familiarity Was Essential.

Hopewell, N. J., March 14 (A.P.).—Police Chief Clifford Snook, of Hopewell Township, a community to the east of this town, contributes a theory about the Lindbergh kidnaping.

As he expressed it tonight, he feels that the kidnap plot could not have been carried out without the assistance of some of the people living in the vicinity of the Lindbergh estate. Some one, he reasons, must have had detailed knowledge about the hilly terrain, or a speedy getaway could not have been accomplished.

He believes, too, he said, that a car similar to this area was used, for a foreign car would have been spotted immediately.

Lindberghs Get Little Sleep as Hunt Goes On

Hopewell, N. J., March 14 (A.P.).—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh gets an average of about five hours sleep these nights. Restless and eager for some trace of his kidnaped son, the colonel rarely retires until 4 or 5 a. m. He usually is up by 9 a. m.

Mrs. Lindbergh, still bearing up with calm fortitude, took her daily walk as usual today and spent most of the time with her mother, Mrs. Dwight Morrow. She has slept for a brief period each night recently.

ULTIMATUM GIVEN BRAZIL PRESIDENT

Rio Grande do Sul Leaders Demand Speedy Return to Constitution.

Santa Ana, Brazil, March 14 (A.P.).—Political leaders of the state of Rio Grande do Sul were reported today to have served a demand on the de facto president, Getulio Vargas, for speedy return to constitutional government in Brazil.

The same leaders were said to be confident the states of Sao Paulo and Minas Geraes shared their eagerness for a prompt return to constitutionalism.

A representative of the Rio Grande do Sul leaders, J. F. De Assis Basil, former minister of agriculture, was reported to have demanded a definite promise of Vargas of speedy constitutionalism as a price of continued support in the south.

Basil returned to Puerto Alegre but was uncommunicative and a censorship prevented communication with Rio de Janeiro.

It was known, however, that the Rio Grande leaders sent the former minister to see Vargas last week after all of the Rio Grande members of the federal cabinet had resigned in protest against a "militarist destructive attack" on the newspaper Cariocas recently.

The Rio Grande dealers indicated they believed it was imperative that Vargas expedite plans to terminate his Junta or yield to another who will. They were secret about their demands, however, but it was indicated that their period of grace was a fortnight.

Despite this apparent threat, there was no anticipation that the revolution of 1930 would be repeated, and the conviction here was that any political turnover would be a peaceful one.

A report here today said that the government had closed the Rio de Janeiro newspaper O Globo on Saturday for a 24-hour period without giving any reason.

Porto Rico Has New Party.

San Juan, Porto Rico, March 14 (A.P.).—The Unionist party, which for many years stood for independence for Porto Rico under the leadership of Antonio R. Barcelo, was succeeded today by a new party known as the Liberal party. The Unionists lost the right to use that name by a court order recently. The platform of the new Liberal party is considerably modified from that of the Unionists. It provides that the organization may continue to work with the existing government until its final aim has been attained.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

MR. HUBBARD KEAVY, chief of this desk's West Coast finger-in-the-wind department, takes his Associated Press wire on his lap to tap out some interesting information about the difficulties encountered in the attempt to transmute one of Mr. Eugene O'Neill's more complicated charades into terms of the cinema.

Translation of Mr. O'Neill's play, "Strange Interlude," to the screen, says Mr. Keavy, has presented a problem unlike any ever before tackled by Hollywood. This problem consisted of how the spoken thoughts, technically known as "asides," were to be accomplished. On the stage, you remember, the players registered their thoughts by halting the action and speaking to the audience.

For instance, one of the characters might smile and extend his hand in greeting to another.

"How are you, old chap?" he would ask with obvious cordiality.

"Insolent fool! What does he want here? I'd like to throw him out on his head!" That would be the other's aside.

Four methods of delivering the asides were considered and the first sequence of the story was filmed by Robert Z. Leonard, the director, in all of the four ways.

The first had the players speak the regular lines, then react to the thoughts which were heard, although the player's lips remained motionless.

Another followed the stage play exactly in technique, the players turning and speaking their thoughts directly to the camera. Another used transparencies, or "ghosts" of the characters, which would appear about them as their "second selves." A fourth "faded" the actors into transparencies during the "thought" recitals.

"We chose the second of our methods," Leonard said, "after seeing the four test reels several times, because it seemd the most intelligent and effective way. More than a month of steady work, by technicians as well as the cast, was devoted to these preparatory experiments."

Two recordings are employed, Leonard explained. First the players, including Norma Shearer, Clark Gable and Henry B. Walthall, read their lines, regular as well as "thought" speeches. Only the words are recorded; no camera is used. However, the entire play is acted out to aid the reading of the speeches.

The regular lines are then removed from the sound track and the thought lines remain. Then the sequence that has been previously recorded is filmed. Members of the cast act and speak for this "take" as they ordinarily would, except that they pause when the thought speeches are "played back" from the sound track for recording.

The player who made the thought speech reacts to it; the person he addresses reacts only to the regular lines.

On the stage, "Strange Interlude" ran about five hours. Obviously much of the dialogue had to be eliminated because of picture time limits.

"We have retained all nine periods of the play," said Leonard, "and the essentials of each. Also, some of O'Neill's dialogue is 'censorable,' so that had to be cut. I think approximately 50 per cent of the dialogue, including the censorable parts, has been cut.

"We estimate now that the picture will run twelve reels. (Eight is the average.) A picture so radically different is, of course, an experiment. We hope we have simplified, but not stifled, the story O'Neill told."

This cutting of the O'Neill dialogue almost exactly in two will precipitate a lively and inevitable controversy. To some, this drastic curtailment will leave "Strange Interlude" only half as engrosanig as it was in the original form; to others, it will render it twice as good!

Ever since his sudden resignation from the post of vice president and sales manager of Paramount-Publix, speculation has been practically rife as to what new affiliation would be made by Sidney R. Kent, one of the most able veterans of the motion picture industry.

It is now possible for this column to state on excellent authority that Mr. Kent will soon announce his acceptance of the vice presidency of Fox Films, where he will serve in close alliance with President Tinker and Chase Securities and supersede in authority both Winfield R. Sheehan and James R. Grainger, veterans of the organization, formerly in charge of production and sales, respectively.

Now don't say I didn't tell you!

Although the temptation is strong to limit these observations to the downtown, first-run picture houses, there come along occasional weeks when the neighborhood film theaters fare particularly well. This seems to be the case with the Tivoli, Fourteenth street and Park road, this week.

Having opened with Will Rogers in "Business and Pleasure" on Sunday and Monday, the Tivoli has for today and tomorrow, Constance Bennett and Ben Lyon in "Lady With a Past;" Thursday and Friday, Joe E. Brown in "Fireman, Save My Child;" Saturday, George O'Brien, Victor McLaglen, Linda Watkins and Conchita Montenegro in "The Gay Caballero," written by that Washington globe-trotter, Tom Gill, and Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy in "Beau Hunks," the last-day combination comprising virtually two features for the price of one.

Speaking of the Warner Brothers houses, as we were inferentially, a group of almost a hundred unemployed Veterans of Foreign Wars were the guests of the Metropolitan Theater management yesterday afternoon at a showing of "Broken Lullaby," the Ernst Lubitsch picture of the war's aftermath, featuring Lionel Barrymore, Nancy Carroll and Phillips Holmes.

This Paramount subject, which is a vivid preachment against war, the scenes of which are laid in postwar France and Germany, was loudly cheered by this group of former soldiers from The Shelter, a self-supporting refuge for service men who have seen better and happier days.

The erudite and vocal Mr. Alexander Woollcott is at it again.

In his cogent review of the world premiere of Shaw's "Too True to Be Good," in Boston recently, published in the March 12 issue of the New Yorker, he says: "I think that the unregenerate half of the first audience in Boston rather counted on Dear Lady Peel to upset the apple cart. But as some one must have already remarked by this time, that would have been Lillieing the Guild!"

Mr. Woollcott will have his brief moment!

Personal nomination for the most flagrant piece of miscasting of the week: Minna Gombell as the perfidious wife of William Collier, sr., and heartless mother of Marian Nixon in "After Tomorrow" at the Fox. Miss Gombell, a competent actress in parts suited to her talents, portrays the role, to quote Mordaunt Hall, in the New York Times of Sunday, "like a duchess posing on a sofa in an East Side tenement."

Tonight will witness the completion of the District One-Act Play Tournament of 1932, when the finals are held in the McKinley Auditorium, Second and T streets northeast, at 8:15.

The four plays to compete in the finals will be played in the following order: "No Sabe," by Elisha Cook, presented by the Montgomery Players; "One Little Kiss," by Ethelwyn H. Frank, presented by the Drama Section of the Women's Club of Chevy Chase; "Fog," by J. H. Neebe, presented by the East Washington Community Players, and "Quare Medicine," by Paul Green, presented by the Columbia Players.

It pays to get around more socially, I find. When I dragged out the trousers to the evening clothes a few nights ago, I discovered, much to my chagrin, you may be sure, that the moths had mistaken me for the author of "Riddle Me This" and thought I meant it!

THE THEATER LAST NIGHT

By NELSON B. BELL

"TOO TRUE TO BE GOOD." The Theater Guild, Inc., presents a new play in three acts by George Bernard Shaw. Settings and costumes designed by Jose Jorgulesco; production committee, Theresa Helburn and Philip Moeller. At the National Theater.

The Cast:

The Monster ..... Julius Evans
The Elderly Lady ..... Minna Phillips
The Doctor ..... Alexander Clark, jr.
The Patient ..... Hope Williams
The Nurse ..... Beatrice Lillie
The Burglar ..... Hugh Sinclair
Col. Tallboys, V. C., D. S. O. ..... Ernest Cossart
Private Meek ..... Leo G. Carroll
Sergt. Fielding ..... Frank Shannon
The Elder ..... Pedro de Cordoba

Those who would contend that "Too True to Be Good" is not so much a play as a discursive and gusty succession of wordy passages dealing with the woes to which the world has fallen heir since the war, Bernard Shaw has naively disarmed by inserting with shrewd cunning a parenthetical program note describing his latest work as "A Collection of Stage Sermons by a Fellow of the Royal Society of Literature."

Nothing more aptly denominating it could have been devised. It is a play in the usual sense only to the extent that it employs a deft sort of dramaturgic symbolism, permitting its author to expound his personal views through the agency of ten sharply and amusingly drawn characters that serve as his convenient mouthpieces.

One of these is so grotesque a thing as the apprehensive bacillus that fears he will perish with the victim of the disease he has caused—a fear unfounded, since the patient promptly responds to the treatment applied by a former hotel chambermaid posing as a nurse, and a regimental chaplain turned thief, with whom she flees her home in search of freedom, health and happiness.

This and a trumped-up plot to secure a huge sum in ransom are the slender, yet ample, devices upon which Shaw festoons his gorgeous satires, his pungent identifications of the evils that harass the world and his penetrating but still baffled speculations as to what may be at the bottom of the abyss into which we are blindly plunging.

To an attentive and intelligent listener, "Too True to Be Good" is a marvelous exhibition of the Shavian intellect functioning with undiminished brilliance in his seventy-sixth year and a genuinely exhilarating experience.

There is scarcely an activity of world importance that Shaw does not touch upon at greater or less length during the course of his sermons, of which the premise is that for three hundred years society hung together by virtue of its steadfast, though not necessarily infallible, idealism; that the only solid foundation upon which man can thrive is dogma—and that now since the war, the only recognizable and enduring dogma is that there is no dogma!

In the elaboration of this not indefensible thesis, the author's doubtful respects are paid religion, the state, the reputedly sacred institution of matrimony, the League of Nations, Einstein and his theories, the atom, the electron, the Army, atheism, the writers of "outlines" of this and that—an obvious dig at his profound contemporary, Mr. H. G. Wells—the medical profession and probably much more that at the hasty hour of midnight is momentarily lost in the wealth of the play's intellectual riches.

Much of his exhorting Shaw has written with his tongue in his cheek. And much of it he has not. Over it all he has cast the spell of his keen humor and ready wit—at times almost to the point of farce. Never, even in the periods of his play given over to the most abstruse philosophical discussions, is he ever dull or uninteresting.

The figures through which are poured the vast stores of Shavian wisdom that are "To True to Be Good," are a mother, her daughter, a doctor, the nurse, the burglar, Col. Tallboys, V. C., D. S. O., Private Meek, Sergeant Fielding and The Elder, who happens to be the burglar's father.

Preeminence among the cast, I believe, is bestowed upon the Misses Beatrice Lillie and Hope Williams, as the bogus nurse and the daughter of wealth, who exchange social stations for purposes of emancipation and ransom. It is not wholly equitable that any individual player should be singled out of so capable a group of artists as the Theater Guild has assembled for this acting company above any of the others.

Miss Lillie's performance is, to be sure, amusing, unctious and vocal. And Miss Williams', likewise, is frank, honest and quite within the spirit of the young Amazon she is supposed to be. But neither of these surpasses Hugh Sinclair's especially fine portrayal of the burglar, who is puzzled by a society that condemns him for stealing a pearl necklace but applauded him for bombing innocent noncombatants from an airplane during the war; or Pedro de Cordoba's splendid reading of the lines of the atheist; or Ernest Cossart's crotchety Col. Tallboys, Leo G. Carroll's quietly efficient Private Meek and Frank Shannon's sincerely convincing Sergt. Fielding. Alexander Clark, jr., in the brief role of the doctor; Minna Phillips, the mother, and Julius Evans, the bacillus, in lesser parts, complete a sterling roster.

Never within the recollection of this observer has Bernard Shaw written more magnificently than in the stirring valedictory upon which the last act curtain slowly descends. If that be the symbol of waning powers, may senility overtake more of our modern dramatists!

GAYETY

"THE KIKI-POO KUTIES." A Columbia burlesque attraction, with Harry Steppe, Ned Dandy, Palmer Cote, Arda Karlova, Gladys McCormack and Ann Claire. Marion "Kiki" Roberts, special added attraction. Reviewed by William L. Wright.

The beautiful Marion "Kiki" Roberts, former Ziegfeld star, who recently received much publicity due to her association with the late Jack "Legs" Diamond, scored a decided hit at the Gayety last night. Tastefully attired, "Kiki" presents a graceful dance with pep and enthusiasm and wins much well deserved applause.

The "Kuties," with Harry Steppe and Ned Dandy supplying the merriment, hand out a brand of entertainment of the better sort. "Celery Tonic" and "The Hypnotist" were the best comic scenes, judging by the roars of laughter and the many interruptions that stopped the show.

Shapely Gladys McCormack led the feminine forces with her insinuating dances and typical songs. Marie Robbins and Ann Claire, a pair of brunettes that are easy on the eyes, kept the boys pleased for some time.

Arda Karlova and Palmer Cote present a number of snappy dance routines that click in a big way to round out an excellent show.

Row to Oust Mayor Key Ends in Fever Pitch

Atlanta, March 14 (A.P.).—With registration lists indicating the highest pitch of public interest ever reached by a political contest here, Mayor James L. Key and the forces seeking his recall in a movement begun because of his criticisms of prohibition, brought their campaigns for tomorrow's special election to a climax with radio appeals tonight.

Last Saturday night the list of voters numbered 24,341, only a little more than 2,000 under the record registration of 26,401. Nobody in the city clerk's office had time to count names today, but deputies said it was assured the registration record would be surpassed.

ARGO LODGE HOLDS INITIATIONS FOR 30

B'nai B'rith Preparing to Open Annual Convention at Hotel Sunday.

Thirty new members were initiated last night by Argo Lodge, Independent Order of B'nai B'rith, at a meeting in the Jewish Community Center, Sixteenth and Q streets.

The initiation meeting was held as a prelude to the annual convention of District Grand Lodge, No. 5, which will open Sunday morning at the Willard Hotel, with several hundred members from Florida, Georgia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Virginia, Maryland and the District of Columbia in attendance.

Ray Tucker, of the United Press, delivered an address on "Presidential Possibilities" at last night's meeting. Mr. Tucker discusseed the prospects of potential candidates of both parties to win the nomination.

The degree team in charge of the Argo Lodge initiation was composed of Hyman Goldstein, chairman; Abraham Shefferman, Morris Gewirz, Julius Eanet and Simon Hirschman, president of Argo Lodge, who was in charge of the meeting. Edward Rosenblum was chairman of the entertainment committee.

Julius Reis, cochairman of the committee in charge of arrangements for the grand lodge convention, outlined the social and patriotic program formulated for the celebration which will be one of the features of Jewish participation in the George Washington Bicentennial.

Fraud Defendants Attack Trial Here

Convicted Man and Woman Dispute Court's Jurisdiction.

(Associated Press.)

Herman O. and Julia C. Hagner, convicted here of having used the mails to defraud the Merchants Transfer & Storage Co., of this city, yesterday were heard in court through William E. Leahy, their counsel, in a protest against the jurisdiction of the District Supreme Court to entertain the case.

The indictment charged that they used the mails at Scranton, Pa., in a scheme to defraud. Mr. Leahy contended that the indictment did not allege an offense committed in the District of Columbia, and insisted that, although his clients had gone to trial here, they did not waive their rights to challenge the jurisdiction of the courts.

Solicitor General Thacher construed the indictment to charge an offense committed in the District, asserting that it charged that the letters were addressed to and delivered to persons living here.

$200,000,000 Farm Loan Fund Voted

Senate Passes Resolution; Measure Now Goes to House for Approval.

(Associated Press.)

A resolution to make the entire $200,000,000 farm loan fund of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation immediately available was adopted yesterday by the Senate. The resolution, which was introduced by Senator Smith (Democrat), South Carolina, now goes to the House.

It would make an additional $125,000,000 available for loans to farmers without waiting for sale of the corporation's debentures. There is now $75,000,000 in the fund, but Congress authorized a total of $200,000,000, the last $150,000,00 of which would come from sale of the debentures.

The purpose of the resolution is to make the funds available for loans on the 1932 crop. The resolution was approved without a record vote.

POLICE AND FIREMEN TO PARADE LABOR DAY

Board of Trade Will Back Combined Fete in September; Convention Planned.

Announcement that this year's Labor Day celebration in Washington will be in the form of a combined police and firemen's parade, to be backed by the Washington Board of Trade through its Greater National Capital committee, was made yesterday at a luncheon meeting of the public order committee of the trade board at the Raleigh Hotel.

Working in cooperation with the G. N. C., the committee in planning the celebration will be Brig. Gen. Pelham D. Glassford, superintendent of Metropolitan Police; Fire Chief George S. Watson and Sergt. A. J. Bargagni, marshal of the parade. Gen. Glassford is already starting plans for an elaborate exhibition of police uniforms and patrol wagons, showing the evolution of police forces up to the present day of motorization.

Smith Named Chairman.

Odell S. Smith, chairman of the public order committee, has been appointed general chairman of the parade.

The celebration is expected to bring to Washington police force contingents from ten States and bands from a number of cities. Firemen will come from at least fifteen States, it is announced.

Plans are also being made for a two-day convention of fire and police chiefs immediately preceding Labor Day. A feature of the Labor Day program will be the award of special medals, cast by the French government, to policemen and firemen who participated in the defense of Verdun.

This will be the first time that Washington will witness a combined police and firemen's celebration, only firemen having participated in the parade in the past.

Greater Parade Planned.

Last year's parade brought 52,000 visitors to the city, and was witnessed by more than 200,000. The Board of Trade backed last year's parade, and the success of the event encouraged the organization to assume responsibility for a celebration on a larger scale this year. Gen. Glassford, Chief Watson and Sergt. Bargagni will meet next week to discuss further plans for the convention and parade.

The public order committee, at its meeting yesterday, reaffirmed its opposition to the bill providing for the abolition of capital punishment in Washington.

Dr. Luther H. Reichelderfer, president of the Board of District Commissioners, congratulated the G. N. C. committee on its successful work since it was organized last year.

Goodrich, Tire Magnate, Suffers Another Shock

York, Me., March 14 (A.P.).—Charles C. Goodrich, retired tire manufacturer, was stricken today by a second paralytic shock. His condition was reported serious.

Mr. Goodrich, who suffered the first shock two weeks ago, had been removed to the nearby home here of his sister, Mrs. John C. Breckenridge, of New York. He had been reported as recovering.

INDIAN BEING TRIED IN SLAYING OF GIRL

Apache Faces Jury in Killing as Tribesmen Squat in Sun Outside Room.

Globe, Ariz., March 14 (A.P.).—MacGolney Seymour, who in the 21 years of his life knew only the hardy environment of the reservation Indian, came into a scene of bewilderment today where two men in a language strange to his untutored ears began an argument for his life.

They talked of death and liquor and a woman to other men who kept filing in and out of a box on one side of a somber-hued room.

So began the murder trial of a strong, youthful Apache buck for the killing last summer of Henrietta Schmerler, intellectual Columbia University coed.

Was Studying Indians.

Her home, of which Seymour knew nothing, was New York. She came to study the Apache, once fearsome renegade of the Southwest Indians, as a reward for her scholastic accomplishments at the university. She wanted to learn the innermost secrets of the taciturn Apache and presumably her eagerness led to her death.

She met Seymour and later her body was found in a gully after she had left her cottage for a Saturday night dance of the Indians.

Seymour came to the room which his white father called a "court." One of the two men he saw talking today was his attorney, John P. Dougherty—the other was John Gung'l, United States district attorney for Arizona. The men in the box were twelve prospective jurors, from whom Gung'l will seek to obtain the penalty of death.

Tribesmen Wait Outside.

But Seymour was not entirely alone. Shy of the mysterious room where their tribal kinsman sat, others of the Apache Nation from White River squatted in the sunshine outside, waiting stolidly.

Dougherty, in questioning prospective jurors, and later in discussions indicating he will seek to justify the killing or at least show extenuating circumstances of all possible grounds, including self-defense. The possibility of self-defense will be raised through the story of Robert Gatewood, Apache witness for the Government, that Miss Schmerler had threatened to kill Seymour because he would not marry her and had tried to stab him.

Both La Follettes In National Talks

Wisconsin Governor and Senator Stress Their Depression Cures.

(Associated Press.)

The Wisconsin La Follettes—Robert, the senator, and Philip, the governor—last night laid before the country the Progressives' plans for attacking the evils they see besetting America.

In radio addresses, the senator spoke for his $5,500,000,000 public works construction bill to stimulate employment and business; the governor pointed to the need for modernized machinery for economic government, and told what Wisconsin is doing. The former spoke from Washington, and the latter from Chicago, both over Nation-wide hookups.

"Unless the Federal Government does share in this emergency," Senator La Follette said, "the social progress we have made in raising the standards of living in this country will be lost."

Farm Board Abolition Hearings to Open Today

(Associated Press.)

The Senate agriculture committee will open hearings today on a bill calling for abolition of the Farm Board.

The bill, introduced by Senator Byrnes (Democrat), South Carolina, would transfer the board's duties to the Agriculture Department, which would be directed to wind up its surplus control operations at the earliest possible date. The board's efforts to encourage the growth of cooperatives would be continued.

City Asks That Railway Remove Tracks at Close of Its Franchise.

Annapolis, Md., March 14.—The Washington, Baltimore & Annapolis Electric Railroad must discontinue operation of its cars over streets of Annapolis upon the expiration of its 25-year franchise on July 1 of this year.

This conclusion was reached tonight at a meeting of the city council when the railroad's request for a six-month extension was not only tabled, and the "clincher" applied, but to make doubly certain that the issue would not again be brought forward, a motion subsequently made that officials of the road be notified that the council would not entertain any proposal bearing upon an extension or renewal of the franchise, and request the road to remove its tracks as soon after July 1 as possible.

The railroad, which has been operated under receivership for more than a year, asked the extension largely to accommodate the Claiborne Annapolis Ferry Co., trolley cars being operated to and from the ferry's pier at the foot of King George street. The railway now has only part of the original loop of trackage, running from the West street terminal to Church Circle, down College avenue to King George street. The other portion of the loop was abandoned and tracks removed over three years ago after strong protests because of continual interference with traffic. Under the present arrangement, the cars operate via a left turn at Church Circle, coming out of West street, in violation of all traffic regulations.

Bus Service Likely.

The municipal authorities and citizens were almost unanimously opposed to the project rejected tonight. What the railroad will do in order to carry on with the ferry traffic is conjectural, though the installation of bus service from the West street station has been suggested as the logical course.

Maintaining that the act passed by the Maryland Legislature in 1931 exempting the railroad from taxation for a period of two years is unconstitutional, the mayor and city council, through City Counselor Rosco E. Rowe, have appealed to the United States District Court at Baltimore to decide the issue. It also is reported that Baltimore City authorities plan to attack the validity of the measure.

Annapolis and Anne Arundel County combined stand to lose more than $25,000 revenue annually through taxation and franchise privileges by the operation of the law.

Since the railroad operates through Baltimore City, Baltimore and Prince Georges Counties, in addition to Anne Arundel, decision of the test case brought by the Annapolis municipal authorities will be awaited with interest by officials of the respective sections.

Fight on Exemption.

Annapolis and Anne Arundel County taxpayers launched the initial fight against the exemption law. Led by the Taxpayers League, relief through the referendum was sought. Petitions bearing more than the requisite 10,000 signers, according to officials of the league, were prepared and filed in the executive offices at Annapolis. A recheck of the lists there revealed a shortage, it was stated, League officials, however, asserted that all of the lists were sworn to and duly filed and have since hinted that some of the petitions must have been removed by parties unknown to them, although pointing out that representatives of the railroad spend a good deal of time in going over them.

When the discrepancies were discovered it was too late for the league to take further action along that line, and under the circumstances Attorney General W. Preston Lane could not direct the referendum.

Winn Clear in One Of Three Charges

Former Pastor Is Acquitted in Strongest of Misconduct Cases at Danville.

Danville, Va., March 14 (A.P.).—With a verdict of acquittal returned late this afternoon in what the prosecution regarded as the strongest of three cases alleging misconduct, J. Arthur Winn, former pastor of Moseley Memorial Methodist Church, will go into Court tomorrow morning to stand trial on the two remaining charges against him.

Miss Bertha Mabes was complainant in the case tried today and the jury's verdict was returned after half an hour of deliberation at conclusion of an all-day session of court. The charges to be heard tomorrow were brought by Mrs. E. Haley and Mrs. Ben Hales.

Miss Mabes, a former member of Moseley Church related on the stand alleged experiences in the pastor's study at the church last July, which led to the issuance of warrants. Originally there were 14 warrants against Mr. Winn, these being consolidated into three cases by the Commonwealth at the beginning of the present term of corporation court.

Radio Service Men To Hear W. L. Jones

The first meeting of the Washington Section of the Institute of Radio Service Men will be held tonight at Room 217, the Riggs National Bank Building, at 8 o'clock. W. L. Jones, a representative of the RCA-Victor Co., will talk on "Superheterodynes." The institute's main offices are in Chicago. Ken Hathaway, well known in Chicago radio circles, is the executive secretary.

The Washington group will comprise those radio service men residing in the District and outlying communities.

Impressive ceremonies will be employed by Admiral Robert E. Coontz tonight when colors are dedicated and presented to two units of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, Follow Me Post and Advance Post, at 8:30 o'clock in the Interior Department Auditorium.

Senator Walter F. George will make the principal address at the ceremonies. Other speakers, high in military circles, will be heard. Charles B. Jennings, commander of the District department of the order, will assist Admiral Coontz.

Women Satirize Own Sex In Politics at Press Fete

Most Prominent Female Members in Public Life Witness Travesty Given by Feminine Journalists at Their Annual National Club Dinner.

Broad hints that women in politics are as foolish, selfish, and amusing as men, and that the political scene with both sexes participating is side-splitting were given last night by the Women's National Press Club at its annual dinner.

With the most prominent women in public life as their guests at their annual dinner at the Willard Hotel, the women journalists in a series of skits assumed the double personality role of best friends and severest critics.

Prohibition was depicted as twin babies left by Miss Volstead on the Republican and Democratic doorsteps, only to have each parent attempt to deposit "his" baby on the steps of the other.

"Inside dope" on a motive for the political campaigning of Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, the Vice President's sister, was given to music adopted from Gilbert and Sullivan in columnist style by "Winnie Watch-All:"

"And sleuthing for the missing votes with wit of Charlie Chan
"Is the latest avocation of jolly
Dolly Gann.
"She's filled with facts and figures
all varied and profuse;
"But Dolly's really running in hopes that she'll reduce.
"Though her arguments are weighty,
she's no mean antagonist,
"And here's a secret, hist! I've got her diet list."

Chorus:

"She's got her diet list, she's got her diet list,
"And if you'll insist, she'll print
her diet list."

The honor guests, satirized in these and other skits, did not insist.

Members of the club wrote and acted out all the program, which opened with a newspaper reporter observing while a scientist brings to earth "Spirit of Stratosphere" with a rocket, with the result of a series of exchanges between the reporter and the spirit, who was likened in one spot to newspaper club gin.

The spirit brings back George and Martha Washington to the "Martha Washington Bicentennial Commission," Mrs. Sol Bloom presiding, during the planning of a birth-moment celebration to consist of the quaffing of 1,000,000,000 cups of tea all over the land. The spirit of Martha is outraged; the spirit of the general, after difficulties, fails to keep her in check, and she denounces the commission for seeking to reveal her birthday.

The exclusively feminine audience was treated to the sight of a chorus extracting hoarded money from their neatly-filled silk stockings, with "Mr. Hoover" trying to get it, as the hoarders sang:

"Mr. Hoover, here we come
With our little hoarded sum—
We've got it, here in our socks,
"You take it, to Col. Knox—
Wait a minute—just be slow—
Will we lose it, Yes or No?
Guess we'll hang on to our dough,
Mr. Hoover, here we go."

A glimpse of 2032, with a Senate of women debating a plan to safeguard the home by prohibiting Government salaries to married men—the reverse of the present agitation for elimination of married women from the pay roll—was vouchsafed by the "Spirit of Stratosphere." This drama of the Senate winds up with a Senate vote to abolish war by taxing all the instruments of war—a substitute for a proposed tax on cosmetics—followed immediately by a fight, caused by the female senator from Ohio calling the female senator from Maine a catty little upstart.

President Hoover's Christmas shopping pictures drew this captain from the club's "city editor:"

"He Found a Million Dollars Worth of Publicity in a Five and Ten Cent Store."

A "hunger march" on the White House by Mrs. Alvin T. Hert, Mrs. John F. Sippel, Mrs. Alice Longworth and Mabel Walker Willebrandt, was the next scene. "Dick Jervis" disapproved the banners they carried and their cries for "jobs," while "Theodore Joslin" was polite but futile, and "Ike Hoover," the White House usher, broke up the demonstration by conveying Mrs. Hoover's invitation to the women for a trip to the Rapidan.

Polly Tix, broadcasting advice to the lovelorn, reads a letter from Ruth Hanna McCormick, expressing fear that she is breaking out with Hooveritis, which may become chronic. "Ruthie" is advised to "see Dr. Franklin Roosevelt."

The closing scene is between a country and a city delegate at the Chicago conventions.

"We just love it," they tell a reporter, who asks them about politics, but they get excited when the questions of Clark Gable's arrival and campaign souvenirs come up. The reporter and the chorus have the last word, first to the "lady politicians" in the skit, and then to the guests of honor, when they sing this song:

Ever since you ladies got the ballot
You keep me busy;
You drive me dizzy daily;
But despite the senseless things you do, dears,
There's a lot of copy in you.

The guests included Mrs. Charles Evans Hughes, wife of the Chief Justice of the United States; Mrs. Henry L. Stimson, Mrs. Ogden L. Mills, Mrs. Patrick J. Hurley, Mrs. William D. Mitchell, Mrs. Walter F. Brown, Mrs. Charles Francis Adams, Mrs. Ray Lyman Wilbur, Mrs. Arthur M. Hyde, Mrs. Robert P. Lamont, Mrs. William N. Doak (the entire Cabinet group); Representatives Ruth Baker Pratt, Ruth Bryan Owen, Effiegene Wingo, Edith Nourse Rogers, Florence Prag Kahn and Mary T. Norton; Mrs. Leonidas Dyer, president of the Congressional Club; Miss Annabel Matthews, member of the United States Board of Tax Appeals; Mrs. William Randolph Hearst; Mrs. Peter Goelet Gerry, of Rhode Island; Mrs. Frank S. Hight and Lady Willmott Harsant Lewis.

SECTIONAL BATTLE RAGES IN HOUSE OVER TAX BILL

flood. They believed they had the strength to resist opposition.

Representative Fiorella H. LaGuardia (Republican), New York, reiterated his opposition to the sales tax and his confidence that it would be beaten before the tax measure got through the House. Representative Bertrand H. Snell (Republican), New York, minority leader, said a majority of his party would support the bill as submitted by the committee. Representative Henry T. Rainey (Democrat), Illinois, majority leader, said the bill would find greater and greater strength in the Democratic ranks as members of the House had time to study the various substitutes proposed for the sales tax, all of which, he added, were more unpalatable.

Oil Tax Called "Bribe."

The oil import tax was described as a bribe in the course of an attack by Representative John E. Nelson (Republican), Maine. He said it had been put into the bill to bribe Midwestern votes for the sales tax. It was a tax, he said, on one section of the country and predicted that the 1-cent-a-gallon duty would prove a disastrous blow to New England industry, but would not help the domestic oil industry very much.

Representative Homer Hoch (Republican), of Kansas, took exception. He charged that New England wished to deny to other sections the protection under which it had prospered, and challenged New England to forego tariff protection and pledged the Midwest would also go free trade. The tax, Mr. Hoch said, would mean an ultimate saving to Eastern industry, because it would preserve the life of the independent oil producers. He warned that if the great oil companies obtained complete control of the industry, industry would be made to pay much more. The buying power of the Midwest had to be restored if New England were to find an adequate market for its manufactured products, he urged.

Curtis Promise Charge.

Representative Charles L. Gifford (Republican), of Massachusetts, attacked the oil tariff, saying that members from Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas had promised the sales tax in return for the oil import tax.

Representative William W. Hastings (Republican), of Oklahoma, tossed into the heated discussion a reminder of the last national campaign, saying that Vice President Curtis had promised, in campaign speeches in Oklahoma, that the Republican party would give an oil tariff.

There apparently was no early end of the debate in sight as the House adjourned. Party leaders have determined to give every member a chance to blow off steam and to spread his individual position on the record in the course of the debate.

Wrathy opponents of the sales or other tax provisions of the measure are being met with the statement that the leaders themselves do not like the bill, but national welfare demands a balanced budget, and what has the individual to offer in place of the committee recommendations? Representative Rainey said the opposition is crumbling under the weight of finding a less objectionable measure.

Cautious on Amendments.

Representative Charles R. Crisp (Democrat), of Georgia, acting chairman of the ways and means committee, was cautious at the conclusion of the committee meeting to consider amendments. He intended to offer no amendments on the floor but those recommended by the committee, he said, adding that the committee had so far decided on none.

At its meeting the committee considered exemptions from the manufacturers sales tax of canned goods, electricity used by farmers on irrigation projects, low-priced clothing and press messages sent over other than leased telegraph wires. Special leased wires carrying news throughout the Nation are exempt. Some of these changes probably will be approved by the committee but the approval will be delayed long enough to disabuse the minds of dissatisfied members that they can get anything they demand from the committee just for the asking.

The next big fight over the bill is expected to come on the question of taxing beer. Support for this proposed tax will be given generally by the wets and will not be a true indication of the final line-up of sentiment on the committee measure.

Contracts Let For Shrubs Along Road to Baltimore

Special to The Washington Post.

Baltimore, March 14.—The State Roads Commission got under way its highway beautification program for the Washington Boulevard today by opening bids for plants and sod.

Contracts will be let Wednesday and actual work will start a few days later, Harry C. Williar, jr., chief engineer, announced.

Explaining that the project had been divided into two sections, one from Baltimore to Laurel and the other from Laurel to the District line, Mr. Williar said the following low bids were received by his office:

Elkridge to Laurel—John F. Engleman, Glenburnie, 17,400 plants, $1,152; J. Schumff, Ellicott City, 2,500 square feet of sod, $500. Laurel to the District line—Liberty Heights Nursery, Randallstown, 10,500 plants, $856; Frank F. Wilson, Rockville, 2,600 square feet of sod, $520.

The commission will plant 800 barberry plants, 4,500 Virginia creeper vines, 1,000 coralberry bushes and 4,200 honeysuckle vines for the Laurel-Washington section, and 1,400 barberry plants, 5,000 Virginia creeper vines, 1,000 coralberry bushes and 10,000 honeysuckle vines for the Laurel-Elkridge stretch.

The beautification program is a part of Maryland's celebration of the George Washington Bicentennial, and the funds are being furnished from the $14,000 derived from the billboard tax in Maryland.

CYR'S OUSTER SUIT DISMISSED IN COURT

No Jurisdiction Contention Is Upheld; Expected, Declares Long.

Lake Charles, La., March 14 (A.P.).—District Judge Porter today dismissed the ouster suit which Dr. Paul N. Cyr, elected lieutenant governor of Louisiana, filed here several weeks ago against Alvin O. King, governor de facto, in which Cyr sought to have himself declared governor to succeed Huey P. Long.

Judge Porter upheld exceptions filed by King asking that the litigation be dropped for lack of the court's jurisdiction. King claimed that only the Legislature is empowered to remove a governor.

The suit was similar to one filed by Cyr against Long before the latter took his seat in the United States Senate. That suit was declared against Cyr in the lower court, at Shreveport, and was dismissed for lack of jurisdiction by the State Supreme Court on appeal.

Cyr originally claimed Long was illegally holding State and Federal offices because of his election to the United States Senate while serving as governor. He took the oath of governor and sought to oust Long.

King stepped up from president pro tempore of the Senate into the lieutenant governor's office, and, after Long had vacated the governor's office for his Senate seat, King became governor.

Cyr then declared he was the rightful governor and sought to remove King in the courts while King held the office, surrounded himself for days with armed guards, and was recognized by the courts as the de facto governor of Louisiana.

Cyr now has an appeal to the Supreme Court in the King case.

O. K. Allen, the Democratic nominee for governor, is to be inaugurated May 16.

(Associated Press.)

Huey P. Long, Louisiana's self-styled "kingfish" and senator, yesterday asserted dismissal of the ouster suit brought by Dr. Paul M. Cyr against Alvin O. King, governor de facto, "was expected."

Bustling from the Senate floor to an adjoining waiting room, Long, whose removal as governor also was sought by Cyr, declared "that's passed out as an issue down there."

BIDS DUE ON ROAD AND SCHOOL BONDS

$1,000,000 Issue Again Will Be Offered Today in Montgomery.

The Montgomery County commissioners today will offer the $1,000,000 issue of road and school bonds of 1932 which recently was withdrawn from sale because of the condition of the bond market. A smaller portion of it, offered later, drew no bids.

The issue is to be advertised for sale in county newspapers and necessary resolutions will be adopted by the commissioners at their regular meeting today in Rockville. Bids will be received for all or part of the issue, to be opened April 5 at noon.

Lacy Shaw, president of the board of county commissioners, has returned from New York, where he consulted with special counsel which has guarded the legal steps in the preparation for the sale. The issue has been approved legally and now can be printed and ready for the successful bidder or bidders. It was authorized by the Maryland General Assembly of 1931 and approved by the Montgomery County Civic Federation and Montgomery Government Club as well as other civic groups.

Condition of the municipal bond market has improved greatly since the $520,000 parcel remained bidless, Mr. Shaw said yesterday, and all or a large part of the issue will be disposed of, he believes.

The issue will provide $411,000 for schools and $589,000 for road construction of the 1932 program.

THE WET-DRY LINE-UP.

While the House of Representatives is still dry by a considerable margin, the wets have unquestionably gained strength since the eighteenth amendment was adopted. The exact strength of the wet bloc can not be measured by yesterday's vote, because some drys, who think their cause would win in a resubmission of the eighteenth amendment, cast their votes in favor of bringing up the Linthicum-Beck resolution. When these few votes are deducted, however, they leave a formidable opposition to the existing anti-liquor system.

Perhaps the most significant fact in the vote is the almost equal division of Republicans and Democrats on both sides of the question. Democrats opposing a new vote on the eighteenth amendment number 114, Republicans 112. Of the so-called wet votes 90 were cast by Democrats and 97 by Republicans. In this respect the vote proves what has been evident for many years—that prohibition is not an issue between the two major parties, but that it criss-crosses through both of them.

The line-up of representatives on the wet and dry sides may prove significant in the election next November. Only a few members of the House, including Speaker Garner, declined to commit themselves. Those few who did not vote can hardly expect to go through the next campaign without taking a definite stand. Results of the 1932 election will, therefore, throw some additional light upon the sentiment of the people with respect to prohibition. But many other issues of more importance to the country than prohibition are also at stake in the political contests this year. The results will not by any means represent a clear-cut registration of national opinion on the liquor question.

This vote in the House demonstrates that neither party is in reality either wet or dry. To commit either party to the wet cause is to risk alienation of large blocks of dry voters, and vice versa. The election of a wet President would decide nothing, because any change in the Constitution must be made by Congress and the State Legislatures or the people in conventions.

In congressional districts prohibition may be expected to be a lively issue in the 1932 campaigns. The only practicable means of bringing about a test of wet and dry national sentiment is to elect a Congress that will approve a resolution proposing to repeal the eighteenth amendment. The drys will, of course, exert themselves to hold their present advantage in Congress.

A CALL TO THE "ANGELS."

John W. Davis' optimism is equaled only by John J. Raskob's patience and generosity. Several months ago Mr. Davis set out to raise a "victory fund" to lift the Raskob mortgage on the Democratic party and to provide running expenses until the national convention is held in June. Mr. Davis reports that $555,000 is in sight—not collected, but pledged. The goal of his "victory fund campaign" is $1,500,000. With the convention only three and a half months away, Mr. Davis is much encouraged with this result.

At first glance these figures seem to contain some reason for Mr. Davis' feeling of satisfaction. But when they are broken down and their source is revealed it does not appear that the rank and file of the Democratic party are quite so confident of victory as are the party's warhorses. Small individual contributions amount to $45,817, instead of more than half a million. Mr. Davis includes in his total figure $200,000 pledged to the Democratic national committee by Chicago for the national convention and a $100,000 contribution from Mr. Raskob, which is contingent upon the success of the "victory" drive.

The discouraging thing about the whole affair is that all of the money thus far pledged, and more, is needed to pay off the debt incurred in 1928. Four years ago the Democrats were not able to raise sufficient money to finance their campaign, in spite of the fact that the country was in the heyday of prosperity. The fact that they ran into debt trying to get Al Smith elected and have carried that debt into this year's campaign is a blow to the 1932 candidate, whoever he may be. Democratic enthusiasts are keenly aware of this difficulty, but that does not make it any easier to dig deep into their pockets to pay for Al Smith's defeat before they have a chance to invest in any prospects for 1932.

The Democratic organization thinks that it has a better chance of taking over control of the Government than for many years. Perhaps the membership of the party should not be censured if it is still skeptical this far in advance of the election. It is easy to make optimistic statements and predictions, but to back them up with substantial contributions is quite a different thing. Unfortunately, the party has only one John J. Raskob, and he has drawn a line beyond which his benevolence will not go. A new coterie of "angels" for the Democratic party is very much in demand.

CITIZENS MUST HELP.

In the face of a peak development of lawlessness, society is philosophically invited to study the basic causes of crime. Doubtless society will take advantage of the suggestion. Readers of history are aware that society has been studying the causes of crime ever since there first was any such thing as society. There are individuals who do nothing else all their lives.

But meanwhile there is a crisis in this country, and before there can be any further calm discussion of what has created that crisis, the situation itself must be corrected. It is all very well to say that the people in general can leave the problem to the police. Granted that they are hired to protect every one, it remains true that it is the individual citizen's duty to aid them in every possible way.

Let us take as an example a small incident in a Washington street not long ago. A man saw a thief snatch a woman's pocketbook. There was no police officer in the vicinity. Should the man have contented himself with the reflection that the theft was none of his personal business, or should he have done what in fact he did do, namely: run after the thief, catch him, drag him back, force him to restore the purse he had stolen, and hold him until a police officer appeared?

The exercise of discretion by the citizen in coping with criminals does not mean that he should be cautious to the point of cowardice, philosophical to the point of spiritual bankruptcy, or pacifistic to the point of annihilation. A man should defend his home, his family, his property and own life against criminal attack. There is a basic law in the human soul—an elemental law upon which all formal codes depend—and that is the law of the right of the innocent and peaceable to survive.

When civilization is threatened, it is every man's responsibility to defend it. Present conditions demand that the citizens shall actively aid the peace authorities in detecting criminals.

GEORGE EASTMAN.

In what appears to have been a fit of depression caused by prolonged and perhaps hopeless illness, George Eastman has ended his life. He left a note reading: "My work is done. Why wait?"

Through his invention of the kodak and his great business ability Mr. Eastman accumulated an enormous fortune. He was most generous in his benefactions, having distributed millions in humanitarian work. His active mind led him into many activities not connected with his business interests, and it might be supposed that these hobbies, as well as the satisfaction derived from doing good to others, would have made him satisfied with life. But the cares of business weighed heavily upon him, and with his health gone beyond recovery at his advanced age he decided to end his existence.

Philosophers in all ages have pondered the question of the right of a man to terminate his life. Reason and religion deny the existence of this right; but both reason and religion are sometimes overwhelmed by the pressure of combined ills, which drive a man to frenzy and despair. In such cases it is proper to assume that an overwrought soul is not its true self, and no longer capable of exercising sound reason or taking refuge in unshakable religious faith.

George Eastman's good deeds remain, and will cause his name to be remembered.

POLITICAL MURDERS.

One of the most widely reported phases of the current international wave of lawlessness is that of a series of assassinations motivated, apparently, by political passion.

In Japan the former Liberal finance minister, Junnosuke Inouye, was shot to death on February 9, and Baron Takuma Dan, head of the Mitsui banking and commercial interests, was murdered on March 5. They were the victims of an organized band of superpatriotic fanatics.

In Peru President Luis M. Sanchez Cerro was seriously wounded by an assailant who shot at him as he was attending mass in Miraflores on March 7. The assault was instigated by political differences, the would-be assassin claiming membership in the Aprista (opposition) party.

At Marseilles, France, Server Djemel Bey, Turkish Consul General, was killed by a young consular clerk, who later committed suicide, on March 4. Personal difficulties may have been at the bottom of this crime.

At Moscow, Russia, however, political causes were at work when Dr. Fritz von Twardowski, Counselor of the German Embassy, was twice wounded by Judas Stern, a man of Russian birth, on March 5.

It is no new thing for a man to be slain because of his political convictions, but it never will be a thing about which the world can be tolerant. Murder is murder, even when proclaiming that it is perpetrated for the purpose of striking down tyranny.

PEACE-TIME PREPARATION.

The War Policies Commission has made its report to the President. No better summary of the purpose of this commission can be given than is expressed in the title of the joint resolution of Congress that created it, "to promote peace, and to equalize the burdens and minimize the profits of war." The commission that has had this important work in charge consists of fourteen members, including Cabinet officers and representatives of both parties in Congress. That there may be no doubt concerning the power of Congress to stabilize prices and prevent profiteering in time of war the commission proposes that a constitutional amendment be submitted to the States so that such authority may be clearly defined.

Until these powers are delegated to Congress the commission proposes that Congress empower the President in time of war to institute a program under which prices may be stabilized at levels to minimize inflation, following a declaration from Congress that such action is necessary. The commission specifically opposes taking the property without compensation, but would provide for commandeering property and compelling acceptance of orders, and taxing to the extent of 95 per cent of all above normal profits.

In peace times the commission's counsel is for continuous planning by the Government, particularly by the War and Navy Departments, in view of constantly changing national and international conditions, so that in the event of war the Nation may be prepared to conduct necessary operations with efficiency and economy. No program of national defense and preparedness could be simpler in the outline of its general principles; the ramifications under this broad statement, naturally, are manifold.

The first brief and bald demands along this line that started a few years ago called for the "drafting" of both capital and labor on equitable terms. Capital, it is held, can not be handled in the same manner as individuals, but more terms must not be taken too literally. The commission, in recommending that Congress be given powers that will enable it to minimize profits and equalize burdens, meets the case in other words. What Americans demand is that never again shall the profiteer at home wax fat while other citizens are at the front. The descriptive phraseology and the method of arriving at this end are immaterial; that it be assured beyond question is all important.

The War Policy Commission's recommendations for peace time planning will not escape attack from those who oppose preparedness at all times as a matter of principle. Fortunately, however, pacifist sentiment in the United States that would sacrifice necessary defense measures falls far short of counting upon a majority of the people. War is abhorrent to all, but no one can look upon the world today and sincerely claim that any nation can count impotence and pacific intentions as competent defense. The recommendations of the War Policy Commission should be carried out, not in the spirit of preparation for war, but as the surest method of maintaining peace.

PHILIPPINE INDUSTRIES

By VICENTE VILLAMIN.

At the recent congressional hearings representatives of the Philippine sugar and coconut oil industries were heard and the effects of the loss of American tariff protection were made known to the legislators. There are other industries which have not been discussed whose life depends on that protection.

Thousands of Philippine women in their homes are engaged in making handmade embroideries for the United States market, which absorbs the entire output. These articles are protected by a duty of 90 per cent ad valorem, meaning that for every dollar received now only 10 cents would remain if the duty were paid. The industry will be wiped out.

About two-thirds of the cigars made in Manila and environs are shipped to the United States. Cigars are protected by $4.50 a pound specific duty plus 25 per cent ad valorem. Based on the average price of $2 per hundred, the tariff protection is equivalent to 250 per cent ad valorem. This simply means that cigar exports to the United States will stop, which will be disastrous to the 12,000 cigar workers in Manila and the thousands in the provinces engaged in the agricultural end of the industry.

The entire production of Philippine desiccated coconut is sent to the United States, where it is used in the confectionery trade. This article enjoys a protection of 3½ cents a pound, equivalent to an ad valorem rate of 50 per cent. The loss of even a third of the protection will shut down the industry in favor of Ceylon, India, where production costs are lower.

Philippine cordage is protected by a duty of 2 cents a pound, shell manufactures by 35 per cent and woods 20 per cent. Computed on prices during the last two years, the sugar duty amounts to roughly 60 per cent and that of coconut oil 45 per cent ad valorem. Manila hemp and copra are free.

Invisible items of income, either direct or indirect, belong to the present discussion. There are around 50,000 Filipinos at work in Hawaii. They send home no less than $3,000,000 a year. The Senate bill permits Filipino laborers to enter Hawaii even after Philippine independence, but the House bill excludes them even before independence.

The presence of the United States Army and Navy increases the Philippine monetary circulation by at least $10,000,000 annually. This item will be lost in the event of independence. This sum offsets the estimated remittances of Chinese residents in the Philippines to China through the ports of Amoy and Hongkong alone.

The Philippine government pays an average of 4 per cent interest on its bonded debt, which is about half of what it would be if the obligation did not carry the moral backing of the United States Government. This represents a saving of $2,500,000 a year, which is substantial considering that the government income is less than $40,000,000.

The Philippines, surrounded by silver-standard countries, are on a gold-exchange standard, with the United States as the support. The easily balanced budget, the economical government, the favorable trade balanced under the Philippine-American free trade reciprocity and the stabilizing cooperation of the United States have saved the Philippines from the violent exchange fluctuations which periodically bring poverty, commercial dislocations and frenzied finance to other countries.

Needless to say, these economic considerations are vital to the Filipino people. One of the strong points of the Hawes-Cutting bill is that it provides for a longer preparatory period before independence than the Hare bill in the House, whose drastic provisions are almost describable as punitive.

The sponsor of the Senate bill, Senator Hawes, is displaying a courageous, intellectual independence, for the measure satisfies no group completely, which may be its best recommendation. It is condemned by the visionaries and criticized by the realists. It is not the bill the Filipinos paraded for, nor is it what the Philippine mission formally asked for. It is not approved by the American farm organizations, and the American interests in the Philippines are not enamored of it. But when all is said and done the Hawes-Cutting bill, after undergoing perfecting processes, may yet be the measure that will satisfy the reasonable, the practical and the well-intentioned.

PIECE-WORK RATE.

He serves with drudgery and heavy ache
And takes his wages from the time clerk's hand.
'Tis his all day a certain thing to make
And at a certain thundering press to stand.

In figures small 'tis written on a chart
The earning rate of finished bolt or nail,
The money value fixed for every part
And he is paid: "According to the scale."

So much per piece, so many made each day,
Deduct the few inspectors keen return,
And any school boy can compute the pay
In dollars and in cents the toilers earn.

'Twould take too long and yet it would be well
If those who hire could otherwise translate
The money value of the strength men sell
And count in different terms the settled rate.

Read it like this: "For certain tasks we give Fire on the hearth and bread and milk and meat,
Gay window curtains where you choose to live,
Good shoes in winter for your children's feet."

Which looks the more—the piece rate of the day
As in the little envelope it lies,
Or the glad home-place where the children play
Which afterward that bit of money buys?

Why Should the King Avoid Waste If He Robs the Peasants?

By ROBERT QUILLEN

THIS Nation was founded as a protest against taxes. The patriots of the Revolution took up arms to save their pocketbooks.

Yet every generation from that time until the present has endured an increase in the burden of taxation, and not one has made intelligent or determined effort to prevent the looting of its property.

Americans are indeed a docile people. They are as meekly dumb as sheep led to the slaughter.

Taxation, like other evils, escapes public condemnation by adjusting its increase to the increase of public tolerance.

If automobiles had killed 50,000 people the first year they were manufactured, not one of them could have escaped the wrath of a horrified world.

If the whole present burden of taxation had been forced on the people during any one year prior to 1914, no power under heaven could have prevented a revolution.

Do you realize that one-fourth of the money earned by the people and the property of this Nation is required to pay the expenses of government?

Do you realize that one person in each eleven derives all or part of his income from the public treasury?

Never before the year 1917 did any Congress dare appropriate as much as a billion dollars. In 1916 only three-quarters of a billion was required for all fixed charges and all operating expenses. Yet this year the fixed charges—the burden that can not be lightened—will be 1,699 million, and operating costs more than 2,662 million.

That is the cost of Federal Government alone, and the cost of State, county and municipal governments is greater still.

How long will people endure it?

There are bonded debts, interest charges and other fixed obligations that must be met. Most of these burdens are the result of foolish or criminal extravagance, but there is no honest way to evade them.

But all other expenses can be reduced. To say reduction is impossible is childish and stupid.

There are many "necessities" that extravagant people can't do without while they have money or credit, but they somehow contrive to live on bread and water when they can obtain nothing more.

Do you enjoy forcing your family to economize in order to provide money for public servants to waste?

PRO AND CON

Press Comment Upon Acts and Actors in the Great American Show, "Politics."

Comments on Repeal.

Kansas City Star.

Two comments occur in connection with the antiprohibition meeting in Kansas City Saturday night. One is that while nobody enjoys governmental interference in any of his activities, nevertheless, in a complex society, such interference is necessary.

The Government insists if a man and woman wish to live together they must be married. It does not permit the railroads to make what rates they please. It does not permit a man to drive his car downtown without interrupting his progress by red lights.

Modern society is full of instances in which the liberty of the individual is restricted for the common good. The eighteenth amendment is on all fours with all these other regulations that society has deemed necessary for its protection.

The second comment is that the great gain from the eighteenth amendment has come from the abolition of the saloon, and nobody yet has proposed a satisfactory method of distributing liquor to take the place of the demoralizing saloon. The repeal of the amendment or its non-enforcement, as proposed by Mr. Darrow, would leave the way open to the saloon's return.

What sane person, remembering the evils of the saloon days, would want them back?

Cost of Government.

Philadelphia Public Ledger.

If any public official still wonders why the taxpayers have finally taken a vital interest in the expenses of government he can get a pretty clear idea from the figures on the cost of State government as compiled by the Census Bureau. These figures cover one phase of government costs—government is threefold, local, State and national—but their story is roughly representative of the whole picture.

In the thirteen years from 1917 to 1930 the cost of State government in the 48 States increased 342 per cent. For the fiscal year 1917-18 the per capita taxation for this one phase of government was $5.14. For the year 1930-31 it was $18.39. The total cost in 1917-18 was only a little more than half a billion dollars; last year it had risen to more than two and a quarter billions. Meanwhile the total national wealth, both taxable and tax free, had increased only a little more than six billion dollars. And that is wealth, not income.

It is significant, in face of the efforts now being made to trim the costs of government, that approximately 60 per cent, or $11.40 out of every citizen's $18.39 contribution to the cost of State government, last year went to pay the cost of operation and maintenance of the State governments themselves. That is, it went to pay the salaries and expenses of State officials. Only 34.4 per cent of the taxpayer's dollar went into permanent improvements such as roads and 4.4 per cent went to pay interest on State bonds. There, if anywhere, is eloquently told the story of bureaucracy and overstaffing.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Citizen Wilfully Risks Displeasing Japan, Urging Boycott.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Every patriotic and peace-loving American citizen should heartily cooperate with the movement to set up a Nation-wide non-Government boycott against the purchase or use of any Japanese made goods. Press reports state that such activities are said to be frowned upon by "official sources which regard them as indiscreet and likely to cause misunderstanding in Japan." In the face of what Japan has done and is at this moment doing in China in direct violation of her treaty obligations and every sense of justice, where could a single American citizen be found who would care whether Japan thought such action on our part "indiscreet" or not? I rather think that American citizens would prefer to pursue a course which would be frowned on and considered "indiscreet" by the Japanese. To pursue a course of action which would meet with her approval would in itself be quite sufficient proof that such course was wrong and un-American, in view of what has transpired during the last few months.

I for, one will see to it that no Japanese products ever again enter my home, and I hope that every person will join in the movement now being organized to boycott Japanese products. AMERICAN CITIZEN.

Democratic Propaganda Has Humorous Value to Mr. Lyle.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Recently I was informed by a book agent that while the sales of several other types of books had increased considerably, the sale of good joke books had decreased. I replied that that was probably due to the fact that the people were able to satisfy their craving for humor by reading the statements issued by the Democratic politicians in which they attempted to blame the President for every disaster that has befallen the human race since the creation of the world and also that the Democratic plans to end the depression were very humorous reading.

So far the Democrats have not blamed Mr. Hoover for the storm that swept the Eastern States recently or for the lack of common sense that seems to exist among their leaders.

Reader Calls for Tolerance and Brotherhood, Praising Willard Conference.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: That was a great conference of Catholics, Protestants and Jews at the Willard. Its program was singularly sane, and its results should be, and will be, far reaching and wholesome.

It is the bane of our democracy, divided as it is into so many groups, crystallized around narrow interests, although these are for the most part worthy, that so many of them are even in intentional antagonism.

Let all these groups study to cooperate in the spirit of the triune conference at the Willard, and we shall soon have a transformed society, industrially, socially and religiously.

We should all endeavor to cultivate a humane spirit and manifest it in all our dealings with one another.

As we all must dwell together under one government, what a grand sight we would present, if we were marching together, vying with each other in friendly disposition to promote the welfare of all.

Letter From Washington Telling About the Depression.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your article under the title "Washington Refused Pay," leads me to send you copy of a part of a letter I have found in Sawyer's "Washington."

The letter was written in 1784 in reply to a request for money from one of his nephews:

"You very much mistake my circumstances when you suppose me in a condition to advance money. I made no money from my estate during the nine years I was absent from it, and brought none home with me. Those who owed me took advantage of the depreciation and paid me off with six pense on the pound."

Do your readers all know of the comprehensive exhibit of material relating to Washington now in cases on the second floor of the Library of Congress? Every citizen and every visitor should see it.

TO THE DEAD BISHOP.

(Thomas J. Shahan: Died March 9, 1932.)

Silent in death's deep sleep,
That golden tongue,
Full many with ringing, fervent cry
To height of ravishment
Hath sent.

And when our boulderous way
Of knowledge, walled with sky-mounted fears
Of failure, loomed ahead,
We dwelt on thee, on thy keen, noble mind,
Which seemed to hold enthroned there
All wisdom. In thy kind
And gentle wise thou urgedst us
To scale the heights unscaled.

And though thy projects vast—
Whether of pen or tongue or spade—
Demanded much, thou ever wert at rest
Within thy heart of hearts. And we,
Too, sought to be
In this like thee: Ever at peace
In the midst of toil.

To her, thy Queen—thy fealty well known
To all—thou'st built a shrine,
In which, before its final jewel is set,
Thou sleep'st. And she, down-glancing from above,
Smiles at the thought: Mankind,
In honoring thee
For mortised brick and leather tome,
Might fail to see
The childlike heart
Thou gavest Me.

Wives of Tomorrow

FRANCES M'DONALD

What Makes a Real Man?

DEAR Frances McDonald: We are a club of twenty girls who read everything you write—and want more. Will you give it? This is what we want you to write especially for us: What makes a real man? What things must he have, and what can we overlook if we must, &c.? We all have boy friends. In fact, we are always amazed when girls write you that they are 20, and sometimes older, and "never had a date." Do you think any girl is that awful? Or are we too easily suited in a boy?

Will tell you our requirements. Then you tell us where we are wrong or right. The members promise to go with boys who, so far as we can tell, are clean morally, neat in appearance, respectful in behavior, able to pay their way, sociable, good tempered. We do not expect them to be nondrinkers, nonpetters or churchgoers. In fact, perhaps we are wrong in preferring that they shall not be any of those things. Our idea is to try to go with real men. They sometimes disappoint us. So we would like your opinion of what makes a man real. Can we have it? We will watch faithfully for it in the column. We are

TWENTY WIVES OF TOMORROW.

What makes a man a real man? We would say his ability to protect a woman. That covers the ground. It means that he shall be honorable, that he may protect her from disappointment in himself; that he shall be industrious, that he may protect her from want, and that he shall be loyal, that he may protect her from pain; that he shall be tender, that he may protect her from temptation; that he shall be understanding, so that he may protect her from misinterpretation; that he shall be strong, so that he may protect her from regret; that he shall be reverent, so that he may protect her from disillusionment: If a man is these things a woman may safely trust her future to him. Indeed, she will have found almost the perfect man. Few men are all of these things. Most men want to be. It is the exceptional man who is proud of his inability to meet a woman's requirements. There are such, but they are usually the negatives, and easily discernible from the rest of mankind, whose almost universal instinct is to protect and care for woman. However, most men are wanting in some, if not most, of the above requirements. But not hopelessly wanting. They will usually cultivate the qualities a woman demands, if she demands painlessly. Few women understand the art of getting what they want painlessly. We want some certain thing and we order the man to produce it. And he arches his back and narrows his eyes, and after that just try and get it! But if we would use the same method we would with a child we would succeed. How much more satisfying all around to say to a man, "Oh, I feel so thrilled having you do things for me!" than to say, "How is it you can never do the things I want you to do?" The first method is known as stroking his hair the right way and the other is the usual method. One leaves him purring and planning new triumphs, and the other leaves his hair on end and with thrashing tail.

Men, as you have even thus early discovered, are a disappointing, thoroughly unsatisfactory race of beings. They are, however, just about what woman has made them. And they can be everything her heart desires. So proceed with your study of the species. It is well worth the time that you accord it—and vastly exciting, to boot.

Indoor—Outdoor Gardens

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

THE following letter from a reader states how successfully she solved the problem of the grassless area surrounding a Norway maple that we feel the idea should be passed along to others who have trouble in establishing a satisfactory ground cover plant in such a location. "Some days ago you printed a letter from Mrs. A. N. G., asking what would grow under a Norway maple tree. I have a very large maple of this kind, and in the course of time—ten years—have achieved a dense and beautiful ground cover of myrtle vinca minor or periwinkle with lilies-of-the valley, Japanese spurge and wild ginger on the outer region of shadow where the early and late sun shines. The vinca is lovely all the year round. American euonymous will also grow slowly as a ground cover."

Will you please tell me whether platycodon blooms all summer? Does it flower the first season?

MRS. ROLAND E. W.

Platycodons bloom all summer. They nearly always bloom the first season. The roots of these plants should be set about an inch below the surface of the soil. The most successful method of propagation is by seeds. The root stalk is fleshy and so a great deal of care must be exercised in dividing it.

Please tell me what to do for a geranium which fails to open its buds.

MRS. R. E. B.

A geranium which fails to open its buds may be suffering from too little sun or fresh air or too much water or root room, or it may be overfed. Again, a plant that has bloomed all summer can not be expected to bloom all winter, as it will then be resting. In order to have geraniums bloom in winter they must be kept in the sun, a trifle potbound and on the dry side. If grown in large pots, given fertilizer or watered every day they rarely bloom.

ANNA T. R.—Scilla sibrica should be planted 2 inches deep and 3 inches apart; scilla campanulata 3 inches deep and 6 inches apart.

Will coleus cuttings which have been successfully rooted in water be likely to grow if they are planted in good soil? MRS. GERARD F.

Yes.

When should a deutzia bush be pruned? My bush has a great deal of deadwood about its base.

ALICE N.

Remove the dead wood at any time, the sooner the better, but wait until after it has flowered before pruning it. If you prune it early you will cut away the flowering wood as the deutzia blooms on wood made the previous season.

Please give me a reliable formula for grass seed. The ready mixed combinations are not what I want.

CHARLES D. K.

Use the following mixture at the rate of three pounds per 1,000 square feet.

40 per cent Kentucky bluegrass.
40 per cent Chewing's fescue
10 per cent Redtop
5 per cent Italian rye
5 per cent South German mixed bent or white clover, whichever preferred.

Jacques Interprets the Mode

Lightweight wool coat, spring green in color, and buttoned with acier buttons. Do note how it ties in a scarf as well as buttoning. (Courtesy of Bernard et Cie, Paris.)

'S a new song of the couturieres, which just goes to show you how fickle Dame Fashion really is—here, after denying blue all this winter, except in navy, she springs out with it again, and quite unexpectedly.

Have you seen the blue windows of Notre Dame? Perhaps it wasn't such a tragedy to have some of them broken by long-range guns during the war, because in the hunt for glass of the same blue to replace them, the world discovered that it was impossible to do so, hence had much more appreciation for the original windows. The blue glass that finally replaced the broken windows is a crying contrast to a forgotten art.

Well, Maggy Rouff has somehow captured the very same blue of the old church windows, and uses it in lustrous satin for evening gowns with matching turbans.

And another of the Haute Couture, none other than Patou, sponsors three blues this spring; one is called midnight blue, another called flax, and the third is Patou blue. His bridesmaid costume of orchid satin was effectively completed by a wide brimmed hat of midnight blue!

And we are glad to say that the new blues, being usually strong and vivid shades, need not be limited to blondes, as brunettes with fair complexions are usually flattered by strong blues.

• • • •

If you ever get pessimistic about spring not getting around to your side of the world this year, just look at spring indications in miladi's frocks and be assured. Snow and sleet may be right under your little footsies, but spring is here as sure as a robin redbreast has ever cheeped. Bernard et Cie says so, and I had to sketch their spring announcement, since it was in the form of a darling lightweight wool coat, spring green in color, and buttoned with acier buttons.

again, how it ties in a scarf as well as buttoning!

And now four colors! You wouldn't believe it, and I had to rub my eyes and look twice at the rough sketch mam'zelle sent me from Paris; but, sure enough, she says that a white pique summer dress had a yellow-beige crepe collar, a delft blue incrustation down the front in a V rever effect, a black bow tie, and black patent-leather belt

• • • •

Well, I know you are simply passing out to know what "acier" is in button language, so I'll just have to tell you. It's another of those compositions. But you haven't seen anything yet until you send for the leaflet of the week, which tells you how to make buttons yourself! Yes, really good-looking ones, the kind you might order for dollars and dollars at art shops—if you didn't send a stamped envelope, addressed to yourself, to the Dare Department of The Washington Post to find out how to make buttons for yourself. How to make buttons—better send for that leaflet!

Au revoir.

SAUERKRAUT WITH MUSHROOMS.

IN all probability most of us like sauerkraut and yet know it, by and large, almost exclusively as a food to serve "with" various meats, usually the pork products, and not as a dish in itself. How, then, does this Russian recipe for sauerkraut with mushrooms sound? It is in very truth a Russian extravagance and a true Slavic dish which should greatly tempt all of us who are fond of "kraut" in its unadorned state. The directions call for dried mushrooms which are neither expensive nor difficult to obtain. Beyond that this extravagance of Russia is a very simple one, both as to ingredients and preparation, but remember to save up your tag ends of sour cream against the day of making it.

Sauerkraut With Mushrooms.

6 large dried mushrooms
1 pound sauerkraut
1 tablespoonful butter
1 tablespoonful flour
½ cupful sour cream, thick.

Cook the mushrooms in six cupfuls of salted water if sauerkraut is fresh, for one-half hour. If the sauerkraut is canned, use only two cupfuls. If the kraut is fresh, parboil it for fifteen minutes. Drain and put it over fire with liquor from the mushrooms. Add the minced mushrooms to the kraut and simmer together until stew is rich and thick—about one hour for fresh sauerkraut, 20 minutes for canned. Brown one tablespoonful of flour and moisten with one tablespoonful of butter. Add this to the kraut. Pour over all the sour cream and cook for ten minutes before serving.

And now we must remove our interests from foreign lands, and give our undivided attention to a dish of planked eggs with a bacon garnish (could anything sound more American) for tomorrow's dinner.

MENU FOR WEDNESDAY.

Planked Eggs with Bacon Garnish
Corn Custard
Scallions with Drawn Butter Sauce
Dressed Watercress
Prune Fluff
Coffee.

Planked Eggs With Bacon Garnish.

3 cupfuls mashed potatoes.
4 tomatoes.
4 eggs.
1 teaspoonful minced chives or ½ teaspoonful minced onion
1 teaspoonful minced parsley
2-3 teaspoonful salt
⅛ teaspoonful pepper
Butter
Bacon curls and parsley.

Arrange mashed potatoes in nest forms on greased plank. Split tomatoes, place cut side up between nests. Sprinkle tomatoes with blended seasonings and flavorings. Dot with butter and bake until potatoes brown slightly and tomatoes are almost tender. Break eggs into potato nests, season and return to oven until set. Garnish with parsley and bacon curls.

Corn Custard.

1 cupful corn
1 beaten egg
½ cupful milk
3 teaspoonfuls melted butter
½ teaspoonful salt
Paprika.

Mix the ingredients in order given and pour into a greased baking dish. Bake in a slow oven until firm. If cooked too quickly the mixture will curdle or separate.

Scallions With Drawn Butter Sauce.

Soak in salted water an hour or two before cooking. Cover with boiling water and cook until tender. Serve with drawn butter sauce.

Drawn Butter Sauce.

1-3 cupful butter
4 tablespoonfuls flour
1 pint boiling water
¼ teaspoonful salt.

Heat four tablespoonfuls of butter until it bubbles and stir in the flour a little at a time, forming a smooth paste. Gradually add the boiling water, stirring constantly over hot water until sauce comes to the boiling point. Simmer until thick and smooth. When ready to serve add the remaining butter and salt and beat vigorously.

Prune Fluff.

Wash one and one-half pounds of prunes and let them stand in water about twelve hours. Cook in same water until soft. Remove stones and strain through coarse sieve. Add one-half cupful of sugar to three cupfuls of pulp. Beat the whites of two eggs stiff and fold into the mixture. Serve with custard sauce.

Custard Sauce.

Beat together one-quarter cupful of sugar and two egg yolks until creamy. Place in saucepan and pour over them a half pint of hot scalded milk, stirring constantly. Allow mixture to cook a few minutes. Remove from the stove, add one-half teaspoonful of vanilla and whip with an eggbeater until foamy.

THIN without starving

The Modern Way

Do you know that multitudes of people, nowadays, lose excess fat without starving? Look about you—note how slenderness prevails. Everywhere you see the amazing results of this new way of treating obesity.

Modern science has discovered that a great cause of excess fat lies in a weakened gland. That gland secretion helps turn food to energy. When it is lacking, fat piles up and vim goes down.

Doctors, the world over, now feed that lacking factor to the over-fat. And the method has largely changed the world.

Marmola prescription tablets present this method in right form, at small cost. A famous medical laboratory prepares them for that purpose. People have used them for 24 years—millions of boxes of them. The slender figures which surround you now are due largely to the factors in Marmola. Modern doctors know that.

No secrets about Marmola. A book in each box gives the formula—tells you exactly why the weight drops and vim comes up.

Go try this method. All other ways are bound to fail if this gland cause is not corrected. Ask your slender friends who have used Marmola. Go do what they did—now at all druggists.

Culbertson on Contract

by Ely Culbertson

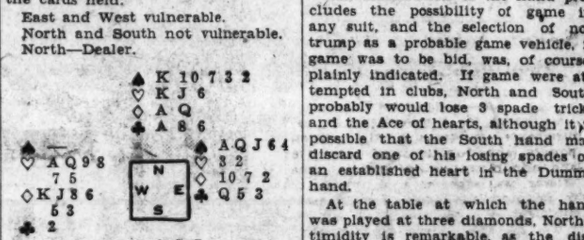
World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

MANY MEN, MANY MINDS.

THE Bridge player who figures results entirely on the cards held by one partnership or the other, and fails to take into account the human equation, misses the entire heart and soul of Contract. How any player will react to any situation is of major importance as regards the results attained upon many hands. Aces, Kings and distribution are all minor factors compared with the man behind the cards.

The hand below, played in a Duplicate team-of-four match for the championship of the city of Winnipeg, Canada, is a vivid illustration of this play of human temperament on the cards held.

East and West vulnerable.
North and South not vulnerable.
North—Dealer.



At one table East played this hand in three diamonds and made three diamonds, losing a club, two diamonds and one heart. At another table, however, North played the same cards in a contract of three no trump, a bid fully justified by the cards he held and the knowledge he had gained of suit distribution through the bidding. At this table the bidding on the hand went as follows:

(Figures after bids in table refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

North	East	South	West
1♠	Pass	2♣	2♡ (1)
2NT (2)	Pass	Pass	3◇ (3)
3NT	Dbl. (4)	Pass	Pass
Pass

1. Beginning to delineate his freak two-suiter.
2. Showing heart stoppers as well as Rebid strength.
3. Completing the picture of his hand.
4. East's Double seems reasonably justified. His vulnerable partner has bid and rebid his hand and East knows that if North is counting on the spade suit for tricks to make his contract, he is doomed to disappointment.

East selected as his Opening lead the Ten of diamonds, because it seemed more probable that a suit in his partner's hand could be established in which he held an honor than the heart suit in which his holding was absolutely worthless. North won this trick with the Queen and correctly diagnosed the situation. He could see the safety of his contract provided he could win a trick in hearts and lose no tricks in clubs. West's bidding suggested the strong probability of shortness in either clubs or spades or both. Therefore, North led the Ace of clubs to guard against a possible singleton Queen in the West hand winning, and followed with a small club which was finessed. When in the Dummy he did not run the remaining clubs, but instead led a heart, correctly reasoning that West's vulnerable bid, lacking as it did top strength in diamonds, must include the Ace and Queen of hearts. West won this trick with the Ace and returned a diamond, clearing the suit, North winning. North now led his last club and continued with the suit, discarding from his own hand three spades. His next play was to lead the remaining heart from Dummy and on this trick West, who had placed the heart honors in the North hand, played the Queen, as he had previously discarded his small hearts on the established clubs. Thus played, North won six clubs, two diamonds and two hearts and scored an overtrick.

The distribution of the hand precludes the possibility of game in any suit, and the selection of no-trump as a probable game vehicle, if game was to be bid, was, of course, plainly indicated. If game were attempted in clubs, North and South probably would lose 3 spade tricks and the Ace of hearts, although it is possible that the South hand may discard one of his losing spades on an established heart in the Dummy hand.

At the table at which the hand was played at three diamonds, North's timidity is remarkable, as the distribution is not such as to suggest the probability of a worthwhile set, while the holding of stoppers in the adversely bid suits does suggest the possibility, if not probability, of game at notrump.

TODAY'S POINTER.

Generally speaking, aggressive bidding pays at the Contract table. The player who timidly waits for an exactly ideal hand will lose many games that more aggressive action would have obtained.

(Copyright, 1932.)

QUESTIONS ANSWERED.

Mr. Culbertson will be glad to answer questions on bidding and play of hands sent in by readers. Address him in care of The Washington Post, inclosing a two-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

To the limit of space questions pertaining to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease.

BUTCHER'S ITCH.

MOST of the eruptions on the hands, which in the good old days went by the name eczema, are now known to be due to exposure in connection with occupation. Recently an issue of a journal of industrial medicine contained six articles, each dealing with a kind of eczema caused by some exposure during a particular occupation.

There are surely 100 kinds of eczema, each due to some occupation, and going by the name of the trade which causes it. The latest is butcher's itch. It appears that butchers have known of this trouble for a long time, just as bakers have been talking about baker's itch for a quarter of a century, but nobody paid any attention to them. Other names for it are swine itch, cattle itch and sheep itch.

The eruption generally starts between the fingers. It extends over the back of the hands, and up the arms as far as the elbows. Other parts of the body are not affected. The eruption has the appearance of a red spot which itches intensely. Up to this point it appears to be hives, or to belong to the hives family. Presently small blisters appear and these are followed by oozing surfaces, scabs and crusts. This later appearance is that formerly known as eczematous, and is quite unlike hives. The itching keeps up and that symptom suggests hives more than eczema.

It generally develops in men after they have been butchering meat for about a month. It tends to heal up and then break out again—to be cured, and to relapse. The behavior of the eruption suggests that the butcher becomes sensitized to something in meat or meat juices after he has been working at the business for a while, but, unlike most eruptions of the kind, butcher's itch tends to disappear spontaneously after several months. The skin seems to become immunized in the course of time.

Dr. B. Schwartz, of the United States Department of Agriculture, who has investigated butcher's itch, finds it rather easily prevented, and cure is not difficult. To prevent it the butcher should wash his hands frequently in clean, cold water. After that he should apply any good, protective fat. In washing he should pay especial attention to the space between the fingers. The nails should be cared for. Washing in hot water does harm.

To cure, Dr. Schwartz recommends that the affected skin of the hands and arms be greased with any simple ointment. Any of the following are effective: Oxide of zinc ointment, vaseline, leaf lard, any of the skin creams and hand lotions. He says that vinegar locally applied is good, as is lemon juice. Butchers have consideralbe faith in these weak acids.

DANGER IN ASIATIC SERVICE.

Citizen writes: If our soldiers contracted flu in the camps during the World War, isn't it quite probable that soldiers could now bring to us from the Far East some very terrible old world diseases—typhus fever, leprosy, etc?

Could anything be done about a quarantine for all soldiers returning home on furlough, or at any time until passed by a board of doctors?

REPLY.

There is considerable danger that soldiers returning from China may bring us some new diseases. Communicable disease is one of the Four Horsemen that follows in the wake of war. Typhoid was widely spread after the Civil War. Malaria and amebic dysentry, after the Spanish-American War. Just the relation of the World War to flu remains unsettled. However, the precautions taken with returning soldiers in 1919 were inadequate.

The United States Public Health Service has been investigating Far East diseases in America, and especially on the West Coast, for ten years or more, and have a very considerable mass of information.

The two illustrations you select are not the best you might have chosen. We are already fairly well supplied with typhus and leprosy.

EPIDEMIC OF ITCH.

S. M. writes: There is an epidemic of itch in some of the schools in my city.

1. How is it spread?
2. Would handling books, doorknobs and furniture convey it?
3. What precautions should one take to prevent catching it?
4. Should clothing worn by persons having itch be burned, or does washing clothing and bedding destroy the itch mite?
5. How about woolen clothing which can not be scalded?

REPLY.

1. By contact. This includes personal contact, clothing contact, and slate, pencil, eraser and other contacts.
2. These are less important than personal contacts. Ninety per cent of the cases are due to contact with persons. Say about 10 per cent to contact with things.
3. Cleanliness and some degree of aloofness.
4. It is not necessary to burn. Both heat and chemical disinfection are effective.
5. As a rule little itch is spread by contact with outer garments. They can be sterilized, but that is seldom advisable.

CROPS OF FLORIDA DAMAGED BY COLD

Subfreezing Temperatures Are Reported Far South; Tropical Contrasts.

Milder Weather Coming But Won't Arrive Today

Despite two momentary snow flurries yesterday, accompanied by a dropping thermometer, there is warm weather in the offing, but not today, according to the Weather Bureau.

Today's prospects are fair and continued cold, with a minimum of 14 predicted for this morning, but tomorrow the forecast is fair and warmer. Thursday's outlook carries the prophecy of "much warmer."

The northwest winds which have brought the frigid days will shift Wednesday to southeast or southwest, and in them the forecaster sees the promise of Thursday's balminess.

The high winds prevented the freezing of Mirror Lake at Lincoln Memorial and officials would not hazard a guess as to when skaters might enjoy their sport.

Jacksonville, Fla., March 14 (A.P.).—Frost and ice, which accompanied winter's latest march through Dixie, caused heavy crop damage, particularly in Florida.

Light to heavy frost was general throughout most of the State last night. Subfreezing temperatures were reported from the Jacksonville area southward through the interior to Moorehaven in the extreme south portion.

Such tender crops as tomatoes, beans, cucumbers, squash, potatoes, peppers, melons and peas, which supply the northern markets suffered most seriously.

Reports to the State marketing bureau from Orlando, in central Florida, said 75 per cent of the cucumber crop in that section was killed and that all crops in Marion and Alachua Counties and at Trenton, seat of Gilchrist County, and at La Crosse had been destroyed.

The potato crop in the Hastings section was damaged at least 50 per cent, according to H. L. Robinson, manager of the Hastings Potato Growers' Association, and similar damage was estimated to cucumbers, tomatoes and beans near Wauchula.

Many of the places experiencing temperature below freezing normally have warm or mild weather throughout the winter, presented the spectacle of ice and frost forming amid settings typically tropical.

Scientists Offer Evidence That World May Never End

Report Describes Models of Universe by Which Californians Upset Calculations That Heat Eventually Will Cease and Everything Freeze.

New York, March 14 (A.P.).—Further mathematical evidence that there may never be an end of the world, and that the "forever and forever" of fundamentalists is borne out by scientific facts, is announced tonight in the Physical Review.

The facts—minus any religious comment—are reported by Dr. Richard Chace Tolman and Morgan Ward, of California Institute of Technology, where Einstein has just completed a study of the "red shift," one of the bits of evidence bearing directly upon a possible end of the world.

Dr. Tolman states that he has constructed a "wide class of nonstatic models of the universe." These upset previously generally accepted calculations that the bulk of known physical facts point to a definite ending of everything in the "heat death," the time when there will be no more radiation of heat, and in consequence everything will be frozen and lifeless.

Last fall Dr. Tolman made a similar report to the National Academy of Sciences at New Haven. Now he appears to carry further his investigations of "models" and to reach more definite conclusions.

These models are only partial. But Dr. Tolman states that they contain some of the conditions which scientists call "irreversible." These irreversibles are the main reasons for expecting an ultimate end of the world. Nevertheless, Dr. Tolman's creations, despite the "irreversibles," stop their progress toward destruction and "reverse," that is begin the life cycle all over again.

An example of an "irreversible" is the outflow of radiation of light and heat from a cooling star. Science has not discovered any source of star fuel yet to show that sun and stars will not one day become cold and lifeless. The "red shift" is another at present seeming irreversible. It is the apparent explosive expansion of the universe in all directions, as seen in the world's largest telescope on Mount Wilson at Pasadena.

After emphasizing that his "cosmological models" are simplified, Dr. Tolman states: "Nevertheless in view of the fairly general nature of the assumptions that were necessary, the result may at least be taken as indicating a possibility that the actual universe, or parts thereof, might also exhibit such a continued succession of expansions and contractions."

Board May Allow New Bus Routings

Virginia Express Vehicles May Use Tenth and Twelfth Streets.

A change in the express routes of the Washington-Alexandria Bus Line and the A. B. & W. Rapid Transit Co. to permit them to cross Pennsylvania avenue at Twelfth and Tenth streets looms as a result of a suggestion made yesterday by the Public Utilities Commission to the former carrier.

After denying an application to run its express buses across Pennsylvania avenue at Thirteenth street to E street, and thence east to Tenth street as the local buses of the R. L. May line now travel, the commission suggested that favorable action might be accorded a request to follow this route:

East on Constitution avenue from Fourteenth street, thence north on Twelfth street to E, east to Tenth street, thence south to Constitution avenue, and out via Fourteenth street.

As soon as Mr. May heard of the proposal he indicated that he would make a similar application, as he has been trying to route his express buses north of Pennsylvania for some time without success. The commission is expected to grant him the same privilege.

Charlottesville-Capital Plane Destroyed by Fire

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., March 14.—A passenger airplane on the Charlottesville-Washington line was destroyed by fire in a field near Mitchell's, Friday. Owing to a broken pipe, a forced landing was made. Almost instantly the plane burst into flames and was soon a mass of ruins.

The mechanic discovering the break signaled the pilot to land. The pilot signaled back, "can't we make the Rapidan landing field?" "No," was the reply, and down they came. Only the pilot and mechanic were aboard the plane. The plane cost $22,000 several years ago. It was insured for $18,000.

Steamer Driven Ashore In Blizzard Is Floated

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., March 14.—The Norwegian tramp steamer Verona, which went aground on the shoals of Sandy Point, twelve miles east of Annapolis, during the blizzard of Sunday a week ago, managed to get under way today, but only after her cargo of some 15,000 bunches of bananas had been lightered. Much of the fruit was cast into waters of Chesapeake Bay.

The freighter proceeded to Baltimore, whither she was bound when she grounded. Continued northwest winds and resultant low tide, thwarted efforts of a tug to release her from her hard and fast position.

Bailey Seat Contest To Be Considered

Senate Elections Group Meets on Carolinian's Case Today.

(Associated Press.)

The Senate elections committee will meet today to consider the contest brought against the election of Senator Bailey (Democrat), North Carolina, by George M. Pritchard, his Republican opponent.

Chairman Shortridge called the committee meeting to act on the demurrer brought on behalf of Bailey to discharge the contest. The committee also will consider a request from North Carolina officials for return of the impounded ballot boxes because of the forthcoming primary in May.

Shortridge said he would ask the committee to decide whether it wants to make a recount of the ballots, so that the boxes can be returned to the State for the primary.

The Senate yesterday appropriated an additional $5,000 for the conduct of the Bankhead-Heflin contest in Alabama.

Swedish Match Lower at Brussels.

Brussels, March 14 (A.P.).—Swedish Match Co. shares, the only Kreuger securities quoted on the Bourse opened today at 360, against 625 last week, causing a slight reaction among other issues.

Belgian banking circles were little affected by Ivar Kreuger's death.

Elkins Man First American To Pierce "Land of Mold"

Dr. Donald S. Wees in Lonely Expedition Through Dense South American Jungle Teeming With Vicious Insects and Beasts Under Torrid Temperatures.

Buenos Aires, March 14 (A.P.).—Out of the jungles of northeastern Paraguay—"a land of mold and blood"—has come the story of an American geologist who is fighting his way to the head waters of the Parana River under the lash of hunger, heat and every creeping thing.

Dr. Donald S. Wees, of Elkins, W. Va., is under commission from the Harvard University Museum to explore the headwaters of the Parana River as far north as the Brazilian border. He left Rio Yuquin with two native companions three weeks ago in a 16-foot canoe and is following the bends of the stream over a region lying about 700 miles west of Rio de Janeiro and the same distance north of Buenos Aires.

"While flicking fire ants from the paper in 90 degrees of heat and 90 per cent humidity, with polvorines devouring me and yatebui crawling up my trousers legs," he writes under date of February 20 a letter that was sent by runner to the nearest river-boat point and thence here.

Harassed by brilliant butterflies which bite like horseflies, and living sometimes on yellow worms, he says, "the final ranch of thatch and split palms has been left far behind. This is the most grandly deserted district outside of Chaco, which lies westward and is less hot, wet, forested or prolific with fauna and insects than this.

"We spent days and nights hunting and when we shot nothing we were hungry in a forest of game. Braised alligator tail tastes like flaked codfish. Here spider webs enmesh birds. Ants drive us from our hammocks into a circle of ashes.

"The hordes of insects for which the region does not provide a living cause us night after night of sleeplessness. One especially virulent species has poisoned us all. Potent does not describe this land of mold and blood, much of which is fully as challenging to the explorer or scientist or adventurer as the Matto Grosso or Chaco jungles.

"There are uncounted leagues of uninhabited forest which support every form of animal life. We are launching into it with a bag of rice, a tin of yerba and eight kilograms of flour, hoping to shoot enough game as we go on."

Dr. Wees, the first American to penetrate the region, left Buenos Aires last October and expects to reach his goal about April 15. He probably will proceed to Corumba, Brazil, and go by rail to Rio de Janeiro.

GEORGE EASTMAN ENDS LIFE; FAILING HEALTH IS BLAMED

friend $5 to show him the intricacies of the machine, and became so engrossed in its mechanism that he forgot about his vacation and remained at home, puzzling over the possibilities of a new, and easier process of picture taking.

Out of his growing hobby came the dry plate and, much later, the film.

Eastman's first manufactured product was not successful. His plates would not "keep." He went to England to study certain of the processes in development there. These, too, were failures. So he returned to the United States and, after patient experimentation, hit upon an explanation.

Upon the patents of this dry plate process, the first to be uniformly successful, he built the fortunes of the Eastman Kodak Co., one of the largest concerns of its kind in the world.

His first kodak film was manufactured in 1889. One month after he had put his product on the market, he received a money order for $2.50 from Thomas A. Edison, who wanted a sample of the new material, 50 feet long and 1 inch wide.

Fortune of $150,000,000.

From that strip of film there came the motion picture industry. The movies today use about half of all the film manufactured in the world. Yet Eastman did not meet Edison until about five years ago.

George Eastman's personal fortune, according to the best guessers, was about $150,000,000. In addition to that, he has given away perhaps $75,000,000, always with great modesty, and generally for the furtherance of technical education, medicine, or music—of which he was extremely fond.

For eleven years the world did not know that a mysterious "Mr. Smith," who donated $11,000,000 to the Massachusetts Institute of Technology was George Eastman, of Rochester.

Founded Music School.

In his own city, Eastman gave $15,000,000 to the University of Rochester's Medical College. He founded the Eastman School of Music, and heavily endowed the institution.

In 1925 he retired from the presidency of the Eastman Kodak Co., but retained the chairmanship of the board of directors.

"The remaining years are very precious to me," he said at that time, "and I am doing what the movies call a 'fade-out.'"

Nevertheless, his associates found, his "retirement" was more fancied than real. During the succeeding years they discovered there was no change in the direction of the great plants. The master mind was still at the controls.

Had Avoided Crowds.

He was a retiring personality, who avoided publicity—and camera men. He disliked posing and supervised even snapshots of himself. He was seldom found where crowds were. He was never a figure in Hollywood, founded on his wares, and he was never seen on Broadway, where his millions of feet of film met the test of popularity.

Instead, his amusements came from the magnificence of his home, the perfect comforts he exacted, the beauties of flower gardens and of orchestral music which he loved.

He was never married and said he had no time for sentimentality. But his closest friends say that beneath the cool, business-like demeanor there existed a wealth of sympathy which is, at its foundation, the finest of sentimentality.

TWO SUICIDES SHAKE NERVE OF MARKETS

holm exchange was closed as result of Kreuger's death. Financial quarters in such nearby capitals as Oslo and Copenhagen were described as placid

The large vote polled by President Von Hindenburg had a bolstering effect in the Berlin boerse for a time, but it subsequently turned heavy. Markets in Paris, Amsterdam and London generally declined, although the London market improved somewhat after the first setback.

Overwhelmed at Opening.

World selling of Kreuger & Toll apparently converged upon the New York market, because of its ability to absorb selling in larger volume than European markets. Specialists in the issue were overwhelmed at the opening, and it was not until an hour had elapsed that the orders had finally been tabulated and the opening transaction placed at 150,000 shares at $1.87, off $3.12 from Saturday's close.

This was the largest opening transaction for any stock in the history of the stock exchange, but was exceeded by the 225,000-share opening in Cities Service in the curb market in November, 1929.

The day's total turnover in Kreuger & Toll reached some 670,000 shares. The only one of the controlled match company issues listed here, International Match preferred, was also under heavy pressure, some 270,000 shares being sold. The turnover in these two issues accounted for almost half the day's total volume of trading in the stock exchange.

Final Price Is $2.12.

The final price of Kreuger & Toll was $2.12, as against $5 on Saturday. After dropping to $11, International Match preferred closed at $12.37, off $5.12 net. Kreuger & Toll 5 per cent bonds dropped $160 per bond of $1,000 par value to $325. International Match bonds declined almost as drastically. Swedish issues generally were depressed, the Swedish Government 5½ per cents closing at $860, off $31.25. In foreign exchanges the Swedish crown dropped more than one-half cent to 19.55 cents.

Outside the Kreuger group, the turnover in the stock exchange was only little more than 1,000,000 shares. Eastman Kodak dropped $8 to $73.25, then recovered to $74.75. Selling was in small lots and the turnover was only 8,100 shares.

Lee, Higginson & Co., New York bankers for the Kreuger interests, received authoritative advices from Stockholm that the Kreuger Co.'s total banking loans in New York amounted to only about $9,000,000, a relatively insignificant volume. It was also learned that London institutions were negligibly involved.

These revelations squelched some troublesome rumors. Bankers close to the Kreuger interests expressed the opinion that the Swedish government's investigation of the Kreuger companies would reveal a relatively good situation.

WETS GAIN AS HOUSE BEATS REFERENDUM

Submission to States Lost, 227 to 187; 4 Women Favor Proposal.

to adopt a wet or referendum plank in its next platform. Nearly all of its leaders are wet. What the Republican party will do is uncertain, but, as of today, it is regarded as a dry party, for the reason that its leader, President Hoover, is classified as a dry.

Republicans Lead Liberals.

However, in yesterday's voting, there were more Republicans on the liberal side than there were Democrats, a circumstance that is expected to have considerable weight at the Republican national convention. The vote actually was on the question of whether the House should discharge the judiciary committee and consider the Beck-Linthicum resolution for State control of the liquor traffic.

Ninety-seven Republicans voted for consideration, as against 90 Democrats. Of the 227 who voted against consideration, 112 were Republicans, 114 Democrats and one a Farmer-Laborite.

Eighteen members were absent, some because of illness, some because of business, and some, no doubt, because they were afraid. There are two vacancies in the House, caused by deaths.

Representative James M. Beck, of Pennsylvania, eloquent leader of the Republican wets, had this to say about yesterday's vote and its relation to the Republican party:

"It is significant that a majority of the affirmative voters were members of the Republican party. Over 90, largely representing the great industrial States, so voted, and this fact can not be without significance to the delegates to the next Republican national convention.

Held Warning to G. O. P.

"Today's vote makes it plain that if the Republican party adopts a dry platform in June, it will court disaster at the polls."

While the House was preparing to vote yesterday, a delegation from the Hotel, Restaurant, Club and Allied Industries, called on President Hoover and petitioned him to either bring about strict enforcement of the Volstead act or to consider a modification of the law.

Paul Henkel, chairman of the delegation, said that the $5,000,000,000 hotel industry and the $10,000,000,000 restaurant industry were "facing ruination" because of the "unfair competition of the speakeasies, which are to be found throughout the country."

As is his custom, President Hoover had no comment to make on the hotel men's petition.

Garner Fails to Vote.

Those who hoped that the House vote would throw light on the prohibition stand of Speaker John N. Garner were disappointed. The Texan, who has been bombarded with queries as to his position on prohibition since he became a presidential possibility, did not vote. By refraining, he followed practice. As a rule, a Speaker votes only to break a tie. However, had Garner desired to vote, he could have instructed the clerk to call his name.

The debate and the roll call on the prohibition question yesterday lasted only about an hour. For that length of time, however, the House was saturated with excitement.

Noisy, applause attended every speech, although Speaker Garner had asked the members and the spectators who crowded the galleries to restrain themselves.

Nor did the applause end when the calling of the roll began. There was a particularly lusty burst of it after Representative Edith Nourse Rogers (Republican), Massachusetts, voted for consideration of the liquor resolution.

Four Women for Resolution.

Up until yesterday the six women in the House had been evenly divided on the prohibition question, with Mrs. Rogers lined up with Ruth Bryan Owen (Democrat), Florida, and Effiegene Wingo (Democrat), Arkansas, on the dry side.

By her vote yesterday Mrs. Rogers aligned herself with Florence P. Kahn (Republican), California; Ruth B. Pratt (Republican), New York, and Mary T. Norton (Democrat), New Jersey, all of whom want the prohibition issue referred back to the States.

Mrs. Norton was jubilant over the 4-to-2 line-up among the women members.

"The drys have been saying that it is the women who want this law in the Constitution," Mrs. Norton said. "I say that this is not so. I have received letters from women all over the country, and I know that it is not so.

"Mark my words, in the end it will be the women of America who will repeal this vicious law."

Many Surprises in Vote.

There were repeated surprises throughout the calling of the roll. One came when McDuffie (Democrat), of Alabama, the House whip, voted with the wets. None of the wet leaders had expected his support. Neither were they prepared for the "aye" vote of Buchanan (Democrat), of Texas.

Rainey, of Illinois, the Democratic leader, a dry, had announced in advance that he would vote for the motion.

Snell, of New York, the Republican leader, likewise had made it known that he would vote against it.

A great many of the dry votes, of course, came from Southern members. The South, however, was not "solid" on the question. North Carolina and South Carolina both were represented in the wet or liberal column. Three out of the nine Virginians voted for consideration of the wet resolution, including Representative Howard Smith, of Alexandria. Representative Ed Crump, Democratic boss of Memphis, Tenn., also voted to take up the resolution.

Kansas Offsets New Jersey.

Kansas, the only State that has sent in a majority of dry ballots in the Literary Digest poll, voted solidly against considering the resolution.

New Jersey, on the other hand, voted soddidly wet.

There were three surprise votes in the Indiana delegation. Will Wood, the dean, voted for the motion to consider the liquor resolution, but explained later that he would have voted for the resolution itself only if it contained a safeguard against the return of the saloon.

Wood was joined in supporting the motion by Representatives Griswold and Vestal, both from supposedly dry districts.

Two Minnesota members, from hitherto dry, rural districts, voted "aye." They were Andresen and Clagg. Three other Minnesotans joined with them made the delegation 5 and 5, whereas it was unanimous in voting for the Volstead act 12 years ago.

Ohio Gives Wets Majority.

Ohio, for the first time in prohibition history, presented a majority wet delegation, 13 voting "aye" and nine voting "no." Notable among the affirmative voters was Representative West, who hails from the district which embraces Westerville, home of the Anti-Saloon League.

Michigan, once represented by a delegation overwhelmingly dry, voted 9 to 4 to have a showdown on the resolution. California voted 7 to 4; Illinois, 17 to 9; Massachusetts 13 to 3; and Maryland 5 to 1.

Douglas, of Arizona, the only representative of his State in the House, also took the "liberal" stand.

Royal Johnson (Republican), of South Dakota, an erstwhile dry, voted "aye," and explained later that he wanted to get an expression of opinion from the 4,000,000 or more former service men who had no chance to vote on the eighteenth amendment; from the millions of women who had no vote in 1918, and from the approximately 12,000,000 young men and women who have reached the voting age since the eighteenth amendment was adopted.

Defeated in Committee.

The Beck-Linthicum resolution, which submits to the States an amendment to the eighteenth amendment, one which would permit the States to be wet or dry as they chose, was voted down by the House judiciary committee several weeks ago.

Taking advantage of the new liberal rules of the House, Representative Linthicum filed a petition which, if signed by 145 members, would automatically force a vote in the House. The 145 signatures were obtained, and yesterday Linthicum moved that the judiciary committee be discharged from further consideration of the Beck-Linthicum resolution, and a vote taken on the resolution itself.

A majority vote is required to carry such a motion. While the wets were shy of a majority, the vote on whether or not the resolution should be considered was generally regarded as a vote on the resolution itself, although some who voted "aye" were prepared to insist that the resolution be amended so as to bar a return of the saloon.

Question Brought Up Early.

The question came up immediately after Chaplain James Shera Montgomery had finished the prayer. In the gallery were Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longsworth, Jules Henry, secretary of the French Embassy; Dr. Edwin C. Dinwiddie, of the Prohibition Board of Strategy; Ernest Cherrington, of the Antisaloon League, and other notables.

Representative Linthicum, who opened the brief debate, was cheered lustily when he went to the well of the House.

"The crucial time in the history of this proposition has arrived," he said. "Today, after twelve years, we have reached a chance to vote upon whether the eighteenth amendment shall be submitted to the people. Scripture tells us that he who is not with us is against us, and I say that he who votes against this resolution is not willing to submit the question to a vote of the people."

Representative Moore (Republican), of Ohio, opened the debate for the drys.

"This puts the question of prohibition in politics every two years, not only in the States, but every two years in the national election."

"Where else is it?" the wets chorused.

Would End Unholy Alliance.

Representative Boylan (Democrat), of New York, declared that the hour had arrived to divorce the "unholy alliance between the God-fearing people in this country and the bootlegger, the hi-jacker, the extortionist and the kidnaper."

Representative O'Connor (Democrat), of New York, recalled that prohibitionists like Senators Jones, of Washington, and Sheppard, of Texas, and Bishop James Cannon, jr., were saying twelve years ago that the people ought to have a chance to vote on the prohibition question.

"Today is the day when we can give it to them," he concluded. "Gentlemen, it is the Ides of March. Let us stand up and be counted."

Representative Sumners (Democrat), of Texas, chairman of the judiciary committee, argued that economic conditions being what they are, this is a bad time to bring up the prohibition matter. Anyway, he contended, there was no chance of two-thirds of the House or Senate voting to submit the question to the States, and less chance of three-fourths of the States voting to ratify a change.

"Give them a chance," shouted Sabath (Democrat), of Illinois.

Representative LaGuardia (Republican), of New York, made the same plea, and was followed by Representative Beck.

Eleven Absentees Opposed.

Of the 18 absentees, 11 would have voted against consideration of the liquor resolution, it was announced. These were Vinson, Gilbert, Cary, Chapman, Carden and Gregory, all Kentucky Democrats; Lambeth (Democrat), of North Carolina; Wood (Democrat), of Georgia; Drane (Democrat), of Florida; Collier (Democrat), of Mississippi, and Reid (Republican), of Illinois.

In statements issued last night leaders of national dry organizations expressed themselves as well pleased with the vote in the House. If it demonstrated anything, they said, it was the repeal of prohibition still is a long way off. Leaders of wet organizations, on the other hand, hailed the vote as the beginning of the end of national prohibition.

F. Scott McBride, general superintendent of the Antisaloon League, said that after "ten years of intensive effort, lavishly financed, favored with unlimited publicity and helped by the depression, the liquor forces failed to get even a bare majority in favor of a roll call on the repeal of the eighteenth amendment." He pointed out that a two-thirds vote was necessary to submit the question to the States.

Propaganda, Dinwiddie Charges.

"The vote," he said, "shows that prohibition can hold the lines if the drys fight and that it will be lost unless they organize and fight."

Mr. Dinwiddie, of the board of strategy, said that the vote was "purely for propaganda purposes."

"The wets," he said, "will have a hard time convincing the American people that making Uncle Sam a national bartender or authorizing the States to act in that capacity will tend to reduce drinking or drunkenness which their protestations so vehemently deplore."

Henry Curran, president of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, said:

"Congress is catching up with the people. Two years ago there were 77 liberal members in the House. Our estimate for today's test was 190, and the vote was 187. Next time we will put it over."

Rufus S. Lusk, of the Crusaders, said the vote marked the beginning of the end of the "noble experiment." The most sanguine wets, he said, did not expect more than 175 votes.

Mrs. William Beverly Mason, chairman of the local division of the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform, congratulated the wets and promised that the women voters would punish the drys at the polls.

The Congressional Districts Modification League said that the drys will need all the consolation the Antisaloon League can give them, for in the next elections "it will be just too bad."

Free Flour Asked From Ten States

Chairman of Red Cross Says 5,675,000 Pounds Are Sought.

(Associated Press.)

Applications from ten States for 5,675,000 pounds of free flour under the recently enacted 40,000,000 bushel free wheat bill, were reported to President Hoover yesterday by John Barton Payne, chairman of the American Red Cross, which is distributing the grain.

Judge Payne said he told the President the Red Cross had not yet reached an agreement with the millers as to a basic price for conversion of the wheat into flour. Nevertheless, he said, orders have been dispatched to the Chicago distribution headquarters of the Red Cross to fill all requests immediately, with the price still to be agreed upon applying to any necessary conversion.

Several carloads of unmilled wheat already have been dispatched to the Dakotas, Judge Payne said, for use as feed for live stock.

You'll Always Be Glad You Bought a Cadillac or La Salle

Now and then it is our privilege to demonstrate a Cadillac or La Salle for someone who has previously owned only lesser automobiles. And the reaction is almost invariably one of complete surprise at the vast difference in general excellence. The richness of the upholstery fabrics—the luxurious depth to the cushions and seats—the beauty of the tailoring and the fitments . . . all are so outstanding, by comparison, that they come as a startling revelation to the customer . . . And the difference in performance is, of course, equally pronounced. The steadiness on the road at all speeds—the marvelous smoothness and silence of the motor and chassis—the easy and certain control under all driving conditions . . . none of these can ever be appreciated without an actual test drive at the wheel. . . . Why not come in and learn for yourself how much more delightful it is to drive a Cadillac or La Salle?

☆ [The G. M. A. C. plan of payment is recommended to all buyers of Cadillac and La Salle motor cars] ☆

3,000 RUSH TO PAY TAX UPON INCOMES

Returns for Year 1931 Must Be Filed With Collector by Midnight.

More than 3,000 persons invaded the office of the deputy collector at the Bureau of Internal Revenue yesterday to file their income tax returns. This number is expected to be more than doubled by midnight tonight, the deadline for filing returns.

Taxpayers are reminded that any extension of time for filing their returns must be obtained from the collector of internal revenue in Baltimore, and that this privilege can not be extended by the local bureau. The application for extension should reach Baltimore before midnight tonight, and should be accompanied by an explanation of why the extension is desired.

Further reminder is given taxpayers that their returns of applications for extension must reach the collector's office by midnight, and that a mere postmark before midnight will not be satisfactory.

Citizens falling into the following classifications must file returns: having a gross income of $5,000 or over for year 1931; $1,500 or over if single or married, or separted from husband or wife; $3,500 or over if married and living with husband or wife.

A corps of experts are on duty at the deputy collector's office to assist citizens in making out returns. However, there is no need to go to this office for assistance as Government men are on duty for this purpose at the following banks during banking hours: Riggs National, National Metropolitan, Federal-American National Bank & Trust Co., Union Trust Co., Columbia National and Lincoln National.

200,000 Motoring Parties Expected

Estimate Is of Bicentennial Visitors From Beyond Mississippi.

Trans-Mississippi automobile parties, 200,000 in number, will visit Washington before the close of the George Washington Bicentennial, on Thanksgiving Day, according to a prediction made yesterday by Cecil Hawley, of New York, a representative of the Texaco National Road Reports.

Mr. Hawley, who yesterday visited the office of the District Bicentennial Commission, made the estimate to Dr. George C. Havenner.

His estimate, he explained, is from figures of travel prospects from Chambers of Commerce, automobile clubs and other organizations in touch with the motoring public.

According to police, a car struck the colored woman at Delaware avenue and H street southwest, and failed to stop. Sunday, Hardy came into the Fourth Precinct station and admitted he was the driver, according to police. Two other men, Charles Loving, colored, of 476 K street southwest, and John Brown, colored, of 1327 Union street southwest, were in the car with Hardy. They were also held for the action of the grand jury.

$600 Stolen From U. S. Ship's Safe at Hamburg

Baltimore, March 14 (A.P.).—Theft of more than $600 in cash from the safe in the purser's room of the steamship City of Newport News, of the Baltimore Mail Line, while the vessel was tied up at Hamburg, Germany, was reported here today.

Capt. Henry R. Lewis, marine superintendent of the line, said the money had not been recovered. The boat sailed for Baltimore yesterday and is due to arrive here a week from Tuesday. German police, it was understood, have been working on the theory that one of the German workmen placed board the boat while she was discharging the cargo may have been implicated in the theft.

WENDEL WILL FIGHT UNDER WAY IN COURT

250 Lawyers and About 200 of 1,500 Claimants Are Present at Opening.

New York, March 14 (A.P.).—Ready for their fight to prevent the $70,000,000 Ella Von E. Wendel estate from going to charity, nearly 250 lawyers appeared in surrogate's court today to object to admitting the will to probate.

Lawyers and about 200 of the 1,500 claimants to the estate milled about the courtroom as ponderous proceedings got under way.

Richard Cummins, presiding in the absence of Surrogate James A. Foley, who is ill, suggested each of the many claimants might have to file bills of particulars, including proof of kinship from a common ancestor.

No definite order was given, however, nor was there decision on the question of whether each claimant will have to file a $20 jury trial fee and an additional $10 fee for objecting to probate of a will.

Meanwhile claimants continue to appear. The newest, represented by Col. Lewis Landes, is Mrs. Anna Bechler, of Danzig, Germany, who claims to be a great granddaughter of John Gotlieb Wendel.

Landes said today Mrs. Bechler relates that John Wendel left a wife and two children in Germany when he sailed in 1799 for America. Proof of this would mean his later marriage here to Elizabeth Astor was bigamous, the lawyer said.

Arthur Garfield Hays, who represents some 50 of the claimants, including Rosa Dew Stansbury, of Vicksburg, Miss., heretofore regarded as the closest surviving relative of Miss Wendel, said he would seek to have the case transferred to Westchester County, on the ground Miss Wendel was a resident there at time of death.

Col. Landes will oppose this move, he said.

Shelby Smith, of Capital, Files Claim to Estate

A claim to the Wendel estate was filed yesterday by Shelby Smith, chief of publications and supplies division of the Department of Labor, as the closest blood relation to the late wealthy New York spinster.

Mr. Smith, a resident of Mount Rainier, Md., claims he is the great-grandson of the father of Miss Wendel and traces his ancestry through two family Bibles, one of which was owned by John Gotlieb Mathias Wendel. He says Gotlieb Wendel and his wife had one son, John Daniel Wendel, whose daughter, Mary Louella Wendel, eloped to Ripley County, Ind., with James Henry Smith, grandfather of Shelby Smith, and declares there were two children, Minnie Smith and Henry John Smith, father of Shelby Smith.

When "insurance" means
INSURANCE

INSURANCE—as written by stock companies—brings to you not only dependable indemnity but the pledge of many services which prevent those losses for which money cannot pay.

Leadership in fire prevention—better building standards—the testing of materials and devices—the improvement of waterworks systems and fire departments—the prevention and punishment of arson; all these mean insurance to the last degree.

STOCK FIRE INSURANCE actually insures you the advantages of these activities.

ROCKVILLE BEATS FIREMEN, 33-23, IN A. A. U. TOURNEY

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

Biloxi, Miss., March 14.

THE training camp of the Washington ball club has been adorned for the past two days by the presence of Roy Van Graflan, of the American League's umpiratical staff, who has been waiting about until tomorrow to get in his dastardly work behind the plate.

Mr. Van Graflan, whose corpulence belies his declaration that he is in prime condition to call 'em as the fans don't see 'em, is the special selection of Mr. C. C. Griffith to umpire the training games of the Nats, Mr. Griffith having discovered long ago that it is pound foolish to hire minor league umpires who might not know a balk from a banana and thus give his rookie pitchers a false interpretation of the big league rules regarding the same.

Mr. Van Graflan will have as his coworker in the early exhibition games here Nick Altrock, who will umpire on the bases while Van is calling the balls and strikes. Altrock's presence is meant as no offense to the umpiratical profession, although the Nats' funny man insists that the step is not a large one to take.

It has been observed by the correspondents in the Nats' camp that Mr. Van Graflan's spring training for his arduous campaign consists chiefly of wiggling his thumbs vigorously that they may be supple and alert for his duties on the ball field. Mr. Van Graflan's thumbs, like all umpiratical thumbs, are the most precious part of his anatomy, for the upturned thumbs of an umpire are all that is necessary to convey with conclusive emphasis to the batter or base runner that he is out, irrevocably and irretrievably out.

A thumbless umpire is about as useful as a burst appendix. Mr. Van Graflan has found devious ways to give his thumbs their required workout without interferring with his routine. He can be noticed about the lobby with his hands thrust deep into his pockets as if in profound meditation, but his thumbs are protruding, protruding and wiggling in a semi-fenzy that might mean a strange specie of St. Vitus Dance or other unfortunate affiction if it were not for the fact that Mr. Van Graflan is an umpire.

It would not do to say that Mr. Van Graflan is all thumbs, for he manages very well with the dining room utensils three times a day, but the stamp of his profession is indelibly upon him. After each repast he inserts his thumbs in the shoulders of his vest in the manner of a successful business man and agitates his fingers with great vigor. This makes for strength and emphasis in the expression of his thumbs.

With six years in big league regalia behind him, Mr. Van Graflan still points with pride to the fact that he is still the youngest major league arbiter in uniform. He admits to 33 years, and says he first saw the light of day one morning when the sun came up in Rochester, N. Y.

Mr. Van Graflan set a precedent in the umpiratical profession when he became the first umpire ever to be purchased by the major leagues from the minors. Ban Johnson, then president of the American League, paid the Pacific Coast League $2,500 for the release of Van Graflan's contract in 1927, a fact that Mr. Van Graflan does not care to live down.

Van set a record among big league umpires when he was selected to work in the world series of 1929, between the Athletics and the Cubs, after he had been in the majors only three years. His turn to work behind the plate in the series came on that memoriable day when the A's knocked down the Cubs' eight-run lead by scoring ten runs in the seventh inning to win the game and the series, 10 to 8.

On that occasion, Van was personally felicitated by the late American League President Barnard for the manner in which he called the balls and strikes on the nine pitchers who found their way into the game.

With the momentary catch rules out last winter, Van Graflan expresses himself as completely satisfied with the playing rules, except in the case of the home run out of the lot.

The present rule provides that the umpire must call the ball fair or foul at the moment it passes over the fence, but Van Graflan prefers the former ruling that called for the decision by the umpire at the time the ball disappeared from sight. Very often a ball that was fair as it passed over the fence dropped foul by several feet when it finally disappeared, Van Graflan contends.

Making the decision on the ball as it disappears from sight eliminates the risk of snap judgment, he says. Thumbs down on the new rule.

Bass, Loser on a Foul, Threatened by Fans

Pittsburgh, March 14 (A.P.).—Benny Bass, Philadelphia lightweight, was disqualified in the third round of his ten-round bout with Frankie Bojarski, of Erie, Pa., tonight. The bout was awarded to Bojarski on a foul and Bass' purse was held up.

Bass was escorted from the ring by police after Referee Red Robinson stopped the fight. The crowd hooted Bass until he left the hall.

Bass tore into the Erie boy with both gloves in the first round, but was warned by Robinson in the second.

In the third the referee waved the boys to their corners, but the Philadelphian refused to budge. Bojarski went to his stool, while Bass argued with the official. Then the police were called.

REDS GAIN HERMAN; DEAL WITH DODGERS SHIFTS SIX PLAYERS

Brooklyn Gets Stripp, Cuccinello, Sukeforth in Swap.

Lombardi and Gilbert to Cincinnati; No Cash Involved.

TAMPA, Fla., March 14 (A.P.).—The trade winds, wafting rumors through the camps of the broken Dodgers and Cincinnati Reds for the past few weeks, blew up a sudden gale today that lifted Babe Herman, Ernesto Lombardi and Wally Gilbert into the ranks of the Reds, and carried Joe Stripp, Tony Cuccinello and Clyde Sukeforth over to the Dodgers.

It was by far the biggest trade of the year and it completely reorganized the infields of the two National League clubs. In addition, the Reds acquired in Herman one of the most colorful outfielders in the game, a tremendous drawing card in Brooklyn for the past six years, a .393 clouter in 1930 who fell off to .313 last season.

The trade was fostered by club difficulties with at least three of the six players involved over contracts for the coming season. Herman, his wages slashed below the $16,500 reported awarded Hack Wilson for entering the Dodger fold, has been a persistent holdout, while Cuccinello and Stripp have not signed Cincinnati contracts. No cash was involved in the trade, it was announced.

Robins Gain Fine Infielders.

To make up for the loss of Herman, at times an indifferent fielder but always a slugger, the Robins have gained two of the finest young infielders in the league. Stripp, at third base, hit .306 and .324 in his last two years with the Reds, while Cuccinello, only 25 years old and a brilliant second baseman, has averaged .312 and .315 in two years of major league play.

To replace Stripp at third base, the Reds now have Gilbert, a steady fielder, who came up to the Dodgers in 1928 from Atlanta and has batted an average of .281 over four seasons. He reached his high in 1929 when he hit .304, but he slipped to .294 in 1930 and .266 last season.

In the swap-off, the Reds gained one powerful young catcher in exchange for a veteran receiver. Lombardi, immediately christened "Schnozzle" upon his arrival in Brooklyn, from Oakland in the Pacific Coast League last year, is a long distance hitter, a bit slow, but a fine prospect. He hit .297 in brief periods of action last season, while Sukeforth, on the Reds catching staff for the past five years, averaged only .256 in the 1931 campaign. Sukeforth's major league average over the five years is .277, with a high of .354 for 84 games in 1929.

Sukeforth's future prospects were further endangered by a hunting accident last fall when a gunshot wound in the head almost cost him his sight.

Trade Ends Infield Troubles.

The trade apparently settles Max Carey's stubborn infield problem where Fresco Thompson failed to fill the bill at second base after coming to Brooklyn with Lefty O'Doul in 1930. It further completes the reorganization that brought Hack Wilson, fallen thumper, of the Chicago Cubs, into the Dodger outfield to team now with O'Doul, and either Frederick, Ike Boone or young Al Cohen.

The Dodgers now boast one of the most powerful infields in the league with Del Bissonette at first base, Cuccinello at second, Glenn Wright at short and Stripp on third.

Sukeforth undoubtedly will be used to assist Al Lopez, brilliant young Spanish catcher, behind the Dodger plate, while Lombardi has a chance to step into a first-string role in Cincinnati. The trade, which baseball men believe carried with it bundle of cash to Cincinnati, apparently leaves the Reds in a scrambled condition.

Cincinnati has Mickey Heath and Harvey Hendrick for first base duty, with George Grantham at second base, Joe Morrissey, Rookie from St. Paul, and the light-hitting Leo Durocher at short, and Gilbert at third.

The Reds now boast a powerful outfield, however, with Herman to team with Taylor Douthit and Estil Crabtree for regular duty.

BABE HERMAN, who joins the Reds as the result of yesterday's trade.

RUPPERT AND RUTH FAIL TO AGREE

Both Say They Held to Original Terms After Meeting.

By ALAN GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor).

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 14 (A.P.).—Babe Ruth, baseball's most famous holdout, remained deadlocked today with Col. Jacob Ruppert, owner of the New York Yankees over salary terms for 1932.

After a half-hour's conference in the training field clubhouse the home-run monarch and the man who has paid him nearly $700,000 in the past dozen years apparently were not much nearer agreement than they were two months ago when the Babe turned down a $70,000 contract, representing a $10,000 "cut."

The only hint of compromise talk at today's meeting was the colonel's remark afterward to newspapermen was:

"All I can say is that we are a little warmer, maybe with a little better understanding, but we have not yet reached any basis for a definite agreement."

Both Stood on Original Terms.

Pressed for details, both the colonel and the Babe insisted they stood on their original terms, the owner repeating his offer of $70,000 for one year only and the slugger countering with a demand for $80,000 again or, if he takes the cut, a 2-year contract.

Since Ruppert was more insistent upon the one year feature than anything else, the camp followers stood by their belief that the eventual agreement will be on a compromise basis of $75,000 for this season.

"We will both consider matters over night," asserted the colonel. "I hope we can get together tomorrow, but all I can assure you is that I will give you boys plenty of notice when we get down to the business of signing. You know I've got to have time to doll up for the movie cameras."

Conference Is Friendly.

The Babe, nattily dressed in blue suit and brown cap, smoking a cigar, handled his share of the joshing, but when asked point blank whether he planned to sign in time to play in an exhibition game tomorrow said:

"It don't look like it now."

Babe Herman Surprised; Says Reds Must Pay

Los Angeles, March 14 (A.P.).—Informed he had been traded by Brooklyn to Cincinnati, Babe Herman, Dodgers' holdout outfielder, appeared greatly surprised today.

He said he had no intention of reporting to the Reds "unless they pay the dough," when asked if he intended to make the same salary demands that he had been asking of Brooklyn.

Herman has been holding out for $16,500. Brooklyn cut his salary from $19,000 to $15,000. He thought he should get as much money as Hack Wilson, obtained from Chicago via St. Louis.

Grakle, 8-1, Choice In Grand National

London, March 14 (A.P.).—The probable starting field in the Grand National Steeplechase at Aintree Friday was reduced to 38 today with the announcement of the withdrawal of Mrs. A. E. Berry's Remus. The 7-year-old jumper was injured in a workout last week.

C. B. Taylor's Grakle, winner last year, still remained the favorite today with 8 to 1 offered against his chances. Mrs. C. S. Bird, jr.'s, Heartbreak Hill, an American-owned mare was the second choice at 11 to 1.

Mrs. M. A. Gemmell's Gregalach, winner in 1929, and runner-up to Grakle last year, was quoted at 100 to 7; Lord Glenapp's Annandale and Capt. J. V. Bridges' Vinicole at 22 to 1, and H. D. Cherry-Downes' Hauk, E. T. Tyrwhitt Drake's, Holmes and John Hay Whitney's Dusty Foot at 28 to 1.

Nats Eagerly Await First Contest

Warmer Weather to Bring Baltimore Game Today.

Judge Spry in Drills; Burke Pleases in Workout.

By SHIRLEY L. POVICH,
(Sports Editor of The Post).

BILOXI, MISS., March 14—Barring Biloxi's coldest March 15 in the 300 years of the town's history as a settlement, which the estimable Chamber of Commerce gentlemen are certain to assure us is a fact in the event that it is necessary to postpone the game, the Nats will taste competitive action for the first time this season when they meet the Baltimore Orioles here tomorrow afternoon.

From the neighboring city of Gulfport, the Orioles will bring their International League pennant contenders to battle the Nats in the game that was postponed from last Sunday when the wintry blasts from the Gulf of Mexico kept the athletes indoors. On the Baltimore team will be three erstwhile members of the Washington Club, Ed Kenna, the catcher; Baxter Jordan, first baseman, and Wally Tauscher, a rookie pitcher.

Manager Johnson tonight hewed to his previous determination to assign the pitching duties to three of his rookies, Frank Ragland, Lynn Griffith and Bob Friedrich, who will be firing away in an effort to impress the Nats' pilot with their value as second string members of the hurling staff, or mayhap regular performers. The order in which they will appear has not been announced.

Mayor Throws to Mayor.

As a prelude to the opening battle, Mayor Kennedy, of Biloxi, will toss out the opening ball to Mayor Miltner, of Gulfport, the Biloxi boys band will strike up the national anthem, and Anthony Ragusin, little giant of the Chamber of Commerce, will greet the managers of both teams in behalf of the Chamber of Commerce.

The Nats are slated to look at the pitching of Joe Gumpert, Oriole ace, who held them to one run in fourteen innings last year. Beryl Richmond, the International League's outstanding pitcher, will not be seen on the mound in deference to his comparative lack of conditioning, but if Gumpert is in form the Nats may see all the pitching they desire tomorrow afternoon.

Johnson's regular infield of Kuhel, Myer, Bluege and Cronin will take the field at the start of the game, with replacements to be made in the form of Joe Judge at first base and Johnny Kerr at third. Dave Harris, who has been dividing his time here between the outfield and third base, may be seen at the latter position if his requisition for a pair of shin guards is filled.

Sammy West will take his regular position in center field, but Carl Reynolds will play only a few innings in right field, as neither Griffith nor Johnson care to overwork this star or risk injury in the exhibition games. Ralph Boyle and Sam Rice are also available for outfield duty.

Bolton and Maple To Catch.

The catching will be divided by Cliff Bolton and Howard Maple. Moe Berg's late arrival has hardly fitted him for work behind the plate for another week, and Roy Spencer's berth as the regular ctacher is so certain that he will not be expected to do much work in the training games.

Twenty-eight players were in uniform when the Nats took the field this morning under the kindly rays of a penetrating sun for a long workout.

The Nats meet the Orioles at Gulfport on Wednesday, with Carl Fischer already nominated to appear on the mound. Fischer's colleagues probably will be two other veterans, Crowder and Marberry, or Monte Weaver.

President Griffith looked on approvingly this morning as Bobby Burke cut loose for a spell into the mitt of Roy Spencer, his roommate. Whether Spencer made the balls thud into his mitt with a boom as a friendly gesture to his roomie, is not known, but Burke was southpawing his pitches over the pan with great gusto, and is apparently ready.

Plenty of action is scheduled for all the pitchers this week with five games slated within the next six days. After the games with Baltimore tomorrow and Wednesday, the Nats

Athletics and Cards Held at Even Money by Bookmaker.

St. Louis, March 14 (U.P.).—The St. Louis Cardinals and Philadelphia Athletics are odds-on favorites to repeat their major league baseball championships, and there is little betting except on these clubs, Tom Kearney, veteran St. Louis betting commissioner, told the United Press today.

It's even money that both the Cardinals and Athletics win the 1932 pennants. You can get odds of 1 to 4 that the Athletics will finish second, but you can't even get a bet that the Athletics will finish any further down the list. It's 2 to 5 that the Cardinals finish second, and 1 to 5 that they are third.

Injuries to stars or protracted holdouts may cause changes in his chart of odds, Kearney pointed out.

President's Cup Game May Be Abandoned; Coast Guard Retires

UNLESS the Army or Navy produce teams, the President's Cup football game, enlisted men's annual service gridiron classic, will be abandoned as a result of a decision announcing the withdrawal of the Coast Guard from the series made yesterday by Rear Admiral F. C. Billard. This leaves the Marine Corps the only branch of the service sponsoring a team to contest ownership of the cup, donated by President Coolidge in 1924.

The reason advanced by Rear Admiral Billard for the Guardsmen's withdrawal was that the Coast Guard can not spare the men necessary to the formation of a team because of the shortage of personnel and press of other duty.

The 1932 cup game had been scheduled for December 4 in Griffith Stadium. The Coast Guard holds the cup at present by virtue of a victory over the Marines last December.

SHERRY WINS IN BOLLING FEATURE

Bartush, Green and Montana Also Win Matches.

BEFORE an enthusiastic audience that included Assistant Secretary of War Trubee Davison, the Bolling Field Athletic Association last night scored with an interesting series of wrestling matches at Bolling Field Armory.

Despite the nonappearance of "Bull" Martin, who failed to show due to an automobile accident in Philadelphia, Paul Bowser's men pleased with action and color aplenty.

Jack Sherry, generally recognized as the world's "uncrowned grappling king," made good with something to spare in the headliner. Using a crouch hold with telling effect, Sherry crashed Mike Zangalavich to the mat in six minutes.

Sherry Outclasses Opponent.

From the start it was evident that Sherry was far too much for Zangalavich. Tearing into his man with genuine ferocity, big Jack had tossed him from pillar to post with a varied series of holds before finally pinning him for the count.

Outweighed by some 16 pounds, Zangalavich attempted valiantly to make a battle of it, but lacked the class to make an impression.

In another finish go Billy Bartush, a pronounced favorite locally, was extended to the utmost to take over Ivan Brusiloff in 35 minutes. After weakening the Russian with successive head-locks, Billy finally finished him with a body and barrel hold.

It remained for George Gemas, one of the world's worst boxers, to provide the preliminary thrills. Paul Pinsky, Hebrew matman, fell victim to Gemas in 16 minutes, an airplane spin paving the way to his downfall.

Ever the showman, Gemas mixed it freely all the way, frequently making use of his pugilistic experience during the latter stages of the match.

Montana Throws Hamer.

Joe Montana, a fast and shifty worker, was far too good for 'Tex' Hamer, former University of Pennsylvania football star, disposing of him with a body back drop in 18 minutes. Hamer apparently weakened under the aggressiveness of his opponent, relishing not at all the punishment dealt out by Joe as the bout progressed.

"Dutch" Green, Mohawk Club product, drew a big hand following his draw with Tony Lasky in the curtain raiser. Both lads turned in a neat performance, Green unfolding surprising cleverness and agility throughout.

Rob Roy Mackey made good in his debut as a referee, while picturesque Billy Jones again handled the main events in flawless fashion.

Don George on Next Bolling Field Program

The Bolling Field Athletic Association will go big league next Monday night when it unfolds one of the finest wrestling shows ever offered locally at Bolling Field Armory.

Ed ("Don") George, former heavyweight champion of the Bowser troupe, is to oppose Dr. Fred Meyers, Jewish champion, in one of the features of a five-star bout.

Four other matches of exceptional merit are to be announced shortly.

BLAZING THE BASEBALL TRAIL

West Palm Beach, Fla., March 14 (A.P.).—Phil Ball, owner of the St. Louis Browns, indicated today that he had no intention of carrying on protracted negotiations with the three salary holdouts—Red Kress, Walter Stewart and Rick Ferrell.

"They'll either sign at what we've offered or they can pick fruit all summer," Ball said as he boarded a train for St. Louis today.

A chilly wind cramped the workout of the Browns today by playing tricks with the ball.

Clearwater, Fla., March 14 (A.P.).—A three-run attack off Waite Hoyt in the second inning paved the way for the Newark Bears' 5-4 victory over Brooklyn today.

The Dodgers, rallying in the ninth, scored two runs on three successive singles by Wright, Thompson, and O'Doul and a base on balls, but Warner hit into a double play with the tying and winning runs on base.

New Orleans, La., March 14 (A.P.).—A return of warm weather today gave the Cleveland Indians occasion to stage their most thorough workout in the past two weeks of their training season here. Manager Roger Peckinpaugh put the Tribe through a two-hour batting practice in an effort to remedy weak hitting, evident yesterday when the Indians collected but six hits off the New Orleans Pelicans. Tomorrow the Tribe plays an exhibition game with the Toledo Mud Hens.

San Francisco, March 14 (A.P.).—Rain prevented today's Pittsburgh Pirates-Missions ball game, but that didn't stop the Buc curvers from getting a workout.

Manager George Gibson, putting in a lot of extra time with his pitching department, had his boys curving them in midseason form in the stadium.

Lott and Shields Win But Are Far From Impressive.

U. S. Stars Extended to Beat Comparitive Unknowns.

By GAYLE TALBOT.

NEW YORK, March 14 (A.P.).—Seeded stars of America and France continued to streak through the national indoor tennis tournament today as their round matches were completed, but hopes of an American victory in the final Saturday were not enhanced by the showing of two of this country's leading players, Frank Shields and George Lott, jr.

Both won, along with eleven other seeded entrants, but they were far from impressive. Lott, No. 1 on the American list, had a real tussle before he turned back young S. Ellsworth Davenport 3d, of New York, 6—1, 11—9, and Shields likewise had to put his best foot forward to silence Lieut. Richard Watt, jr., of the Brooklyn Navy Yard, 6—4, 11—9.

Watt Uncovers Severe Service.

Shields, No. 2 on the domestic list and Davis Cup singles star, was extended to the limit to down the diminutive Watt, who exhibited one of the most severe services seen in the tournament. Only by breaking Watt's delivery once in each set was Shields able to triumph. Lott, still unfamiliar with the hard footing of the Seventh Regiment Armory, called on all his court strategy to trim Davenport.

Other favorites came through their third-round matches with ease, Jean Borotra, of France, leading the way with a 6—0, 6—0 victory over Merritt Cutler, of New York. The bounding Basque, seeking his fifth American indoor crown, played flawless tennis.

Gregory Mangin, of Newark, defeated E. Ramey Donovan, of Fordham University, 6—1, 6—1; Sidney Wood, jr., of New York, eliminated Julius Tavelin, of St. John's College, 6—3, 6—3. Without removing his sweater, Christian Boussus, of France, defeated Stanley Harte, of New York University, 6—3, 6—4; Berkeley Bell, of New York, recovered after an unsteady first set to down Frank Salichs, of New York, 9—7, 6—1, and Eddie Jacobs, of Baltimore, won from Morris Adelsberg, of Cornell University, 6—2, 6—4.

Gentien, French Star, Winner.

Others survivors were Julius Seligson, Eugene McCauliffe, Edward Jenkins, jr., Harold Gerkin, Frank Bowden, and Lincoln Halberstadt, all of New York; Ernest Koslan, of Hamilton, N. Y., and Antoine Gentien, third member of the French team.

With the field reduced to 16 in singles, that department will be more or less neglected tomorrow, while the doubles is gotten under way. Only two fourth round singles matches are scheduled, Borotra meeting Eddie Jacobs in one and Bell playing Ernest Koslan in the other. All first round doubles matches will be played.

Among the favored doubles combinations are Bell and Mangin, Lott and Van Ryn and Borotra and Boussus, the latter pair the defending champions.

SECOND ROUND—Eddie Jacobs, Baltimore, defeated Robert Glickstein, New York, 6—0, 6—2.

THIRD ROUND—Gregory Mangin, Newark, defeated E. Ramey Donovan, Fordham, 6—1, 6—1; Julius Seligson, New York, defeated W. V. Eipsman, New York, 6—1, 6—4; Eddie Jacobs, Baltimore, defeated Morris Edelberg, Cornell, 6—2, 6—4; Sidney B. Wood, New York, defeated Julius Tavalin, New York, 6—3, 6—3; Harold Gerkin, New York, defeated Alphonso Smith, New York (default); Christian Boussus, France, defeated Stanley Harte, New York, 6—3, 6—3; Ernest Koslan, New York, defeated Henry Dresher, New York, 6—2, 7—5; Lincoln Halberstadt, New York, defeated Irving Pratt, New York, 6—1, 6—3.

George Lott, Chicago, defeated Ellsworth Davenport, New York, 6—1, 11—9; Eugene McCauliff, New York, defeated Edward Jenkins, New York, 6—4, 6—2; Frank Shields, New York, defeated R. M. Watt, U. S. Navy, 6—4, 11—9; Antoine Gentein, France, defeated Sidney Seligson, New York, 6—2, 7—5; Jean Borotra, France, defeated Merritt Chiler, New York, 6—0, 6—0; Edward Jenkins, New York, defeated Walter Arensberg, New York, 6—1, 6—1; Berkley Bell, New York, defeated Frank Salichs, New York, 9—7, 6—1; Frank Bowden, New York, defeated Albert Law, New York, 6—3, 3—6, 13—11.

Dempsey Recovering From Attack of Flu

Toledo, Ohio, March 14 (A.P.).—Jack Dempsey, former ruler of the heavyweights, recovered sufficiently from his slight attack of influenza to travel to Clarksburg, W. Va., tonight. Dempsey is scheduled to box an exhibition there Wednesday night.

Dempsey was confined to his bed here following his ring appearance Saturday night. Leonard Sacks, Dempsey's manager, reported tonight that Jack has a slight chest cold, but felt able to leave on a late train for Clarksburg.

Chick Hafey Seeks $17,000 for Year

Cardinals' Star, at Home, Says He Is Ready to Play Ball.

St. Louis, March 14 (A.P.).—Chick Hafey, holdout slugger of the world champion St. Louis Cardinals, has asked the club for a one-year contract at $17,000, after failing in a bigger demand.

"Club offers $13,000 and refuses to negotiate further," Hafey wired the St. Louis Post-Dispatch from his home at Berkeley, Calif. "Have asked $17,500 for two years. Submitted new proposition, $17,000 for one year. Working out regularly. In good condition. Ready to play. Refuse to leave California until terms agreed upon."

Hafey held out last spring after receiving $9,000 in 1930. He was signed late at $12,500, but was paid only $10,500 because of time lost. He led National League batters with an average of .3488.

SUBURBAN QUINTET IS LED BY LANIER; CENTRAL FIVE WINS

"C" Club Extended by Palace Rally, Wins, 34-25.

Dixiana Wins 16-15 Thriller; Eagles in 17-10 Victory.

By BOB CONSIDINE.

ANOTHER favorite took it on the button last night at Tech High in the District A. A. U. basketball tournament when the D. C. Fire Department team, after a busy day putting out fires, found itself put out of the running by the totally unexpected strength of the Rockville A. C. five, 33 to 23.

The upset reared above a busy night of basket ball in The Post's tournament, in which Central's "C" Club outfit showed outstanding form in eliminating the Palace A. C., 34-25. In another game, which capped the tournament night in thrilling manner, the Dixiana Barbecue team outdistanced the Sport Mart five, 16 to 15, in a gusty finish. Two ambitious young 100-pound teams opened the night's games, in a tussle which resulted in a 17-10 victory for the Brookland Eagles over Mount Rainier.

A long, hungry looking courtman named Fred Lanier was the difference between the Firemen and Rockville last night. A former varsity man at the University of Southern California, Lanier treated a good house to an ofttimes dazzling display of how basket ball should be played. He only scored 11 points, but they were registered at the most critical stages of the close conflict. It was his floor play, mostly his uncanny interceptions, that made him as welcome with the fire eaters as a stiff breeze in a feed store conflagration.

Firemen Trail At Half.

The Fire Department Team, a bit too confident, was a little surprised to find itself trailing, 13 to 14, at the end of the first half of play. But it did no begin to see the handwriting on Mr. Tech's wall unil a few minutes after the start of the second half, when Lanier snared a pass intended for an opponent and flipped the ball in from the center of the big court. He tallied on top of this for 18 to 13 and put the game on ice two minutes later with another peculiar wrist motion long shot.

He was ably backed up in scoring by Becker and by the splendid team play of his club and their great natural height. The Rockville outfit took 95 per cent of the backboard balls. Morris Clarke was most of the losing team, but, as of old, would not shoot.

Palace A. C. Defeated By Central "C" Club

A vastly improved Central High Team bore the standard of the "C" Club to its second tournament triumph last night. The Mount Pleasant quintet bowled over the Palace A. C., 34-25, but not until the latter had staged the greatest rally of tournament play in the last eight minutes of the game.

Central clicked on all cylinders in the first half. A short-passing attack that penetrated the Palace defense as a knife cuts through soft butter, enabled the team to compile a 21-7 lead. Bill Burke and Buddy Nau were spearheads in the attack.

Starting the second half, Palace was again held in check. Not until twelve minutes of time had elapsed were the eventual losers able to register a field goal. But when they did hit their stride they not only scored in rapid fashion but also held Central to a single point. Dougherty and Scanlong sank long pot shots to inaugurate the rally. Smith followed with a snowbird and Dougherty contributed another long one. Following the ball incessantly, Palace peppered the basket with a machine-gun volley of shots, stopping only when the score reached 25 and the whistle ended the fray.

Dixiana Five Defeats Sport Mart by 16-15

A determined second half rally gave Dixiana its 16-to-15 victory over Sport Mart, a team which had gone into the second half with a 10-to-7 advantage. By the end of the third quarter Dixiana had knotted the count, 12 to 12. The baskets of Curtin and Ingalls amounted to one more point than the three foul shots the losers tallied in the last quarter.

Sport Mart could have won the game on fouls, for its missed four of the free throws near the end. The game was vigorously contested from the start, with a total of 30 fouls committed.

Brookland Eagles Win In 100-Pound Battle

The Brookland Eagles and Mount Rainier 100-pound teams opened the evening's program with a spirited game which the Eagles won, 17-10. Playing on the main court, the little fellows were well nigh exhausted when the game ended, so hard did they play.

The game was closely contested for the first three periods, although the

J. C. C. FACES CASEYS IN TOURNEY

Old Rivals Meet in 'Rubber' Game at Tech Gym.

SIX basket ball games, including one of the greatest of the entire tournament, the Knights of Columbus-Jewish Community Center conflict, will be dispensed tonight at Tech High Gymnasium as the third week of the District A. A. U. court elimination sponsored by The Washington Post swings into guaranteed thrilling action.

It is doubtful if very many A. A. U. basket ball games were ever ramified with more interesting sidelights than this meeting between the Caseys and the Center club. Natural rivals from 'way back, added incentive has been meted out to the game because the teams have met twice this year and each holds a victory.

The K. of C. has bolstered its club tonight with Jack Hickey, its first water center, who was not with the club when it almost was eliminated in the first round of the tournament by the Crescents. On the team is Tommy Nolan, judged by many old hands as the best floorman in the entire tournament.

J. C. C. Slight Favorite.

But the Caseys go into tonight's battle slightly in the role of underdogs. The J. C. C. has two great basket ball players in Lester Singman and Cody Shapiro, and the strength of the remainder of the squad is a bit better balanced than that of the rival club.

The Knights won the first game of its series with the J. C. C., 21-20, and the Center team took the second bristling battle, 29-21. Both teams are in their best shape of the season. The bout goes on at 9 o'clock.

With a view to speeding up the progress of the tournament, the giant door which cuts the Tech gym in two will be swung closed tonight for the four preliminary games to be played before 9 o'clock, at which time the barrier will be swung back for the big game.

A bang-up game follows the J. C. C.-K. of C. "rubber." The 10 o'clock fray mates the Knights of Columbus Boys Club and the Washington Boys Club, favorite 145-pound clubs. Tonight's card in general has everything, including girls' games, 100-pound "epics," and all for the price of 25 cents.

McKenna Is Beaten; Vince Dundee Wins

Special to The Washington Post.

Baltimore, Md., March 14.—Vince Serio was given a well-earned decision over Sailor McKenna, of Washington, after six rounds tonight at the 104th Medical Regiment Armory.

In the feature encounter, Vince Dundee, showing a vast improvement over his last appearance in a local ring, pushed over Vincent Forgione, of Philadelphia, in the fourth session of a scheduled ten-rounder. The result was scored as a knockout, a light punch on the chin doing the work.

JAZ AGE UPSETS DOPE IN FEATURE RACE AT TROPICAL PARK

Gelding, 7-1, Scores by A Neck

Flying Heels, Heavily Weighted Favorite, Second.

Veteran, Buddy Ensor, Pilots Home Three Winners.

TROPICAL Park, Fla., March 14 (A.P.).—The last week of racing at the picturesque home of the Gables Racing Association got under way this afternoon with a fine program, which attracted another large attendance. The talent was badly let down and one of the surprises materialized with the running of the featured Orange State Handicap, a dash of five furlongs. J. Parmelee's gelding Jaz Age drove to a neck triumph over the heavily weighted Flying Heels to pay $16.60 for $2.

It was the third stirring finish of the day with the gray five-year-old Silver Cord, taking third money another neck behind. Jaz Age made the fast time of :59 4-5 under 108 pounds and a fine ride by J. Leyland.

Silver Cord Is Always A Threat.

Silver Cord, which made his first start since 1930 here a few days ago, turned in a smart effort. He broke on top and set a sizzling pace. Pancho Lopez and Flying Heels gave chase and the latter began his move around the bend moving into second place ominously. Silver Cord saved ground and looked as if he might win. But Leyland brought Jaz Age from fifth place on the inside turning for home aided by the ground saved thereby Jaz Age gradually wore down the leaders to score going away.

Buddy Ensor's followers again backed a winner when the popular saddle artist recorded his third victory of the afternoon astride Please, favorite in the sixth contest. Ensor brought his mount home with three parts of a length to spare over Battling On. Pass in Review was eight lengths away in the third hole. Ensor held the winner in restraint behind Pass in Review, which led in the middle of the bend. There, Please responded to urging and dashed to the front to open up plenty of daylight. Battling On closed with a belated rush but Please was in hand. He paid $3.60. Ensor's other winners were Common, in the third, and Click, in the fifth.

New Orleans Feature to Sergeant Donaldson.

New Orleans, March 14 (A.P.).—Sergeant Donaldson, which frequently stops in the stretch after gaining a long early lead, kept right on running today to win the Chef Menteur purse by six lengths at the Fair Grounds.

The 4-year-old son of Whisk Broom II, from M. F. Dollar, jr.'s stable, beat the barrier and steadily drew away from his field. The battle was for second and third, Sister Zoe, from the Four Oaks Stock Farm beating S. W. Labrot's Open Hearth.

With Gilbert Elston in the saddle, Sergeant Donaldson ran the mile in 1:40. He paid $6.80 for $2 in the mutuels.

Godwin-Lawson Match Tonight Promises Action

Southern Champion Favored in Nursery Feature Bout.

By JACK ESPEY.

BOB GODWIN'S travels along the fistic trail bring him face to face with a determined challenger for his Southern light heavyweight title tonight when he encounters handsome Eric Lawson, of Newport News, Va., in the main event of eight rounds on the Day Nursery's benefit card in Portner Arena, Alexandria. The show opens at 8:30 o'clock.

The match, substituted last Friday for the Jack Portney-Stumpy Jacobs lightweight battle after Jacobs reported his lip injured in training, seems, fortunately for the Nursery fund, one of the most attractive of the indoor season in this vicinity. Officials in charge stated yesterday that the advance sale has been brisk.

Godwin and Lawson both carry into the clash winning streaks of three victories each, gained hereabouts, with the title holder having defeated Billy Schwartz, Sammy Weiss and Reds Barry and Lawson having conquered Schwartz, Billy Strickler and Vince Forgione.

Godwin Logical Favorite.

Godwin's record, together with his greater experience, probably warrants the choice as favorite, though his edge, if such exists, is rated small even by his own supporters. Lawson not only is his match in speed and cleverness, but brings into action a determination to stamp out a previous defeat which bodes no good for the champion. Lawson bowed to the Georgia star last year on a decision in Norfolk before one of the largest crowds ever to witness a boxing bout in that city. Godwin emerged from that scrap with plenty of respect for Eric.

The weights will favor Lawson with the Virginian scaling approximately 6 pounds more, 169 to 163, but a weight handicap is neither new nor disheartening to Godwin who only last Tuesday conceded 26 pounds and defeated Reds Barry. Also when he defeated Joe Knight for the championship and held even Maxie Rosenbloom, world's light heavyweight title holder. Godwin gave away precious poundage.

Lawson is one of the most confi-

Two-dollar mutuels paid—COMMON, $10.00, $7.30, $5.50; CHICAGO GIRL, $16.50, $8.80; COOTS, $6.80.

COMMON, rated along under restraint in early stages, waited until rounding the far turn before making his effort, moved up gradually and easily disposed of COOTS in stretch run. CHICAGO GIRL, shuffled back at start, finished strong and outgamed COOTS in final drive. Latter broke well, but was taken back off TANTALIZING when latter went to front, assumed an easy lead rounding far turn, but flattened out when challenged.

JAZ AGE avoided the early pace and raced under slight restraint to top of home stretch, responded with good courage when called on and finished stoutly. FLYING HEELS trailed SILVER CORD until rounding the turn into home strech, finished with good courage, but Leyland outrode Snider when it came to a finish. SILVER CORD broke rapidly and set a fast pace. VACILLATE tired.

SAND FIDDLER was outrun for five furlongs, began moving up after leaving back stretch and, overhauling PEACH ROSE in stretch, won going away. PEACH ROSE, outrun early, gained rapidly on outside around bend, forged to the front, but could not stand off winner's challenge. JIMMIE L. displayed fine speed for six furlongs, then tired. DIODORO, always well up, ran fair race. WANDERING GOLD made up some ground.

AUDITORIUM STAGE GETS BIG TEST

Pinetzki and Roebuck Put 535 Pounds in Action.

FIVE HUNDRED AND THIRTY-FIVE pounds of rassle-on-the-hoof will be shot at the unsuspecting public Thursday night when the man mountain of them all, Leo Pinetzki, and Tiny Roebuck bring their symphony of the obese to the Washington Auditorium.

Pinetzki, who has been merrily dubbed the Polish Corridor, is a vacant-stared Himalaya of bone and perhaps muscle who was tracked down in an elephant hunt in Poland three months ago by Jack Pfeffer, one of the powers of Eastern rassling. He is a tremendous spectacle, with arms 8 feet long, a huge head, size 14 feet, 285 pounds of weight, a truly giant's chest and a totally unlooked-for knowledge of rassling, with cauliflower ears and all.

He no sprik Anglaise.

Roebuck Proves In and Outer.

Roebuck, 250 pounds, gives some of the best and some of the worst exhibitions of all the matmen Matchmaker Turner brings here. For the first time in many appearances here Tiny will be outweighed Thursday night. The boys have met twice before in New York, and Pinetzki won both times, but the last time out Roebuck detained him for 30 minutes, an unprecedented length of time for the Corridor to work for one decision.

Pinetzki has made two appearances here and has spent eight minutes in the local ring. He beat Don De Laun in two minutes and Herbie Freeman in six. He seems to have no particular mind of his own, but is coached from the sidelines by Pfeffer, in German.

The rest of Thursday night's card is Fred Grobmeier vs. Marshall Blackstock, George Manish vs. Leon Smith. Sam Stein vs. John Burke and Jack Washburn vs. Milo Steinborn.

Rex Firefly Tops Lexington Horse Sale

Lexington, Ky., March 14 (A.P.).—Twenty-five head of show horses of all ages were sold for $5,590, an average of $223.60, as the annual three-day spring sale of the Kentucky Sales Co. opened here today. Approximately 250 horses are to be sold before Wednesday night. Veteran horsemen said the prices, topped by the $1,100 paid for Rex Firefly, were "very good."

Rex Firefly, 13-year-old stallion by Rex Peavine out of Golden Firefly, was consigned by Hugh Lawson, Fayetteville, Ark. He was purchased by J. H. Murphy, Stanford, Ky. The Lawson consignment was the largest single consignment sold this morning. Sixteen horses in this lot sold for $3,870, an average of approximately $241.

ROCKVILLE TEAM WINS IN TOURNEY

Eagles always held the upper hand The score at the half was 6-5, and at the end of the third quarter, 9-8 Mount Rainier tired badly in the homestretch and Brookland continued at a steady gait to win the decision Gagnon, Liggett and Trainor shone for the winners. The latter scored a goal for the opposition when he attempted to pass to a teammate from a corner of the floor. It was a beautiful one-hand shot. Mathias' clever floor play was outstanding for the losers.

"I tell you I'm trying to figure out my income tax, but if you keep on nagging me to play bridge I'll go out and shoot some pool."

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

THE INCOME TAX RETURN THIS YEAR.

Income From Business or Profession.

IF you owned a business in 1931 have you placed the responsibility and if so do you intend to sue? If you practiced a profession give list of persons from whom you borrowed money.

FARMERS' INCOME SCHEDULE—If you know of any farmer who had an income during the past year do not write the Government; phone or wire at once.

KIND OF BUSINESS—Describe kind of business at top of Page 1, as "delicatessen," "soup house," "aspirin tablet manufacturer," &c. If in fur, automobile, diamond, orchid or theater business, enter same under head of Losses by Storm and state location of free milk station at which you are hanging out. If you are a stock broker, do not mention it; this is no longer a business.

TAXES—Use both sides of paper in listing taxes paid by you. Don't shout; we can hear you.

II.—Deductions.

DEPRECIATION—Enter on pages 12 to 16 estimate of your depreciation and state whether administration radio talks have made it worse. Have you been depreciating long, and are you doing anything for it?

LOSSES—Losses incurred in trade, business or profession should be presented this year in book form, but limited to two volumes, neatly bound. And never mind the old one about what you lost in South American bonds, Radio common or the first preferred railroad stock your uncle left you as depression proof.

INCOME FROM PARTNERSHIPS—Anybody who had any income from a partnership last year is requested to call the White House immediately. It will make a great argument for the coming campaign. Ask for Simeon Fess.

INCOME FROM RENTS—This must have been stuck in by mistake; the Government can't really be that crazy.)

PROFITS FROM SALE OF REAL ESTATE, BONDS, ETC.—That's a good one, only I heard it in a different way.

CAPITAL NET GAINS—Aw, quit talking like an idiot, will ya?

DIVIDENDS—State whether you heard them pass and give an approximate idea which way they went.

OTHER INCOME—Now we know it's a hoax.

WARNING.

REMEMBER, folks, that the Government will give away 100 1932 model green or yellow roadsters for the best answers submitted to this year's income tax questions. Positively no blanks. Simply write your name clearly in the upper left-hand corner and accompany your answer with 50 wrappers from the Simeon Fess cigars.

COTTON PRICES DROP ON SOUTH'S SELLING

May Contracts at Close Decline 10 to 12 Points; Buying at Liverpool.

New York, March 14 (A.P.).—A slight opening decline in response to relatively easy Liverpool cables, was followed by recoveries on covering and trade buying in cotton during today's early trading, but prices broke quite sharply later under Southern selling and liquidation promoted by the weakness in the grain and stock markets. May contracts sold off from 6.99 to 6.86 in the late trading, and closed at that figure with the general market closing barely steady at net declines of 10 to 12 points.

There appeared to be some uneasiness as to the possible effects of the Kreuger affair on financial markets, but there were no evidences of foreign selling in cotton, and houses with continental connections were credited with buying a little at the opening.

The demand was by no means active, however, and offerings increased later in the day, when there seemed to be some further Southern selling, together with an increased volume of liquidation or local and commission house selling.

Prices broke into new low ground for the month, with October selling off to 7.25. Closing quotations were at the lowest point of the day, with active months showing declines of some 30 to 33 points from recent high prices.

Exports today were 73,644 bales, making 6,360,728 so far this season.

WHEAT PRICES DROP ON WET BILL DEFEAT

Loss of 3½ Cents Recorded on Dry Repeal Vote; Fall of Stocks Aids Sag.

Chicago, March 14 (A.P.).—Wheat suffered a sudden maximum fall of 3½ cents a bushel today, most of the loss after Congress had defeated efforts toward repeal of prohibition.

A wave of stop loss selling started when the outcome of the prohibition repeal vote became known, and grain values gave way fast. Weakness of securities, especially during the late dealings, contributed to the unsettlement of cereals.

Wheat closed wavering at almost the day's bottom figures, 2⅝ to 3⅜ cents under Saturday's finish. Corn was down 1⅛ to 1½ cents; oats, ¾ to ⅞ cents, and provisions unchanged to 12 cents down.

Stop loss orders appeared in profusion once the wheat market began to tumble, and the downswing speedily took prices to the lowest level since February 10, overcoming resistance points that had prevailed for more than a month.

Corn, oats and rye followed the lead of wheat, and an increase of 983,000 bushels in the corn visible supply, acted as a further weight on that market.

New York, March 14 (A.P.).—February sales of Studebaker, Rockne and Pierce-Arrow cars totaled 6,966 units, compared with 4,822 in February, 1931. For the first two months of 1932, sales were 11,973 units, against 9,676 in the like period of last year.

Several refiners have reduced the price of refined sugar 15 points, to 4 cents a pound. This is the first change in the price of refined for several weeks, and is an adjustment to the persistent downward trend of raw sugar prices during the past fortnight.

The Sharon Steel Hoop Co. has reduced operations from 50 per cent to 35 per cent of capacity, according to reports from Youngstown. The drop is said to be due to irregularity in the market for steel sheet and strip.

A more favorable report from the Youngstown district is to the effect that the Carnegie Steel Co. has resumed operations at its No. 2 blast furnace at Farrell, Pa., after a shutdown of more than three months.

A syndicate composed of the Security-First National Co. of Los Angeles, R. H. Moulton & Co., Inc., and Dean, Witter & Co. is offering $1,225,000 California 4½ per cent bonds, due February 1, 1939, to 1944, inclusive, priced to yield 4.25 per cent.

Stockholders of the United Founders Co. at their annual meeting today voted to reduce the authorized capital by scaling down common stock to $45,054,240 from $152,161,365 and class "A" stock to $250,000 from $1,000,000.

The result of the drive against hoarding is indicated by the recent shrinkage of money on circulation. During the last five weeks the circulation has contracted by $87,000,000, against an average seasonal shrinkage of but $5,000,000 for the corresponding periods of 1929-30.

Earnings of the Canadian Pacific Railway for 1931 dropped to 62 cents for each of the 13,400,000 shares of ordinary stock outstanding, as compared with $2.54 per share in 1930. Net revenue was $13,834,472, from which preferred payments were deduced. Net earnings were $25,682,872, to which was added $10,951,964 in special income. In 1930 net earnings were $38,248,658, and special income was $20,042,923.

The Union Tank Car Co. reports net profit of $1,872,948 for the year ended. December 31, equivalent to $1.48 a share, compared with $2,546,646 or $2.03 a share in 1930.

Mill agents report that consumers are ordering flour against contracts in small lots, indicating no general tendency to anticipate requirements. They regard the market as showing encouraging firmness, however, in the face of the light volume of buying and keen competition.

Robert C. Lee, vice president of Moore & McCormack, Inc., owners and operators of the American Scantic Line, announced yesterday that contracts have been awarded to the New York Shipbuilding Co., of Camden, N. J., and other contractors, for the rebuilding of four of the eleven vessels of that fleet.

Steel Dividend Action Watched After Report

New York, March 14 (A.P.).—The annual report of the United States Steel Corporation, made public today, was of interest to Wall Street chiefly as throwing light upon dividend prospects.

In January, the directors ordered a disbursement to common stockholders of 50 cents a share, based on the final quarter of 1931, and warned that further dividends on the common would require improved earnings.

The first quarter of 1932 is now nearing a close, and the corporation's ingot output has shown but slight improvement from the low level of 24 per cent of capacity reached in December. The biggest steel maker's backlog of unfilled orders at the end of February fell to the lowest volume since 1904.

Directors will meet April 26 to consider dividend disbursements based on this quarter's results. Prospects for a further distribution to common stockholders, it is widely felt in Wall Street, are anything but bright. The dividend has not been omitted since 1915.

U. S. Steel's pamphlet report pointed out that 1931 production was so far under the average of the past ten years that pent up demand should soon begin to be felt.

BANKING GROUPS GET NEW HEADQUARTERS

Riggs National Bank to Pay Semiannual Dividend of 7½ Per Cent.

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

Effective May 15 the District of Columbia Bankers Association and Washington Chapter, American Institute of Banking, will have new headquarters and classrooms for students of the second organization in the Bond Building, at the southwest corner of Fourteenth street and New York avenue northwest. A commodious suite of offices and classrooms have been secured for these organizations on the seventh floor of that building.

For the last six years the organizations have maintained officer and classrooms on the third floor of the Becker Building, at 1316 F street northwest, and for three years prior to that their headquarters were in the Masonic Temple Building, at Thirteenth street and New York avenue northwest. Although the bankers' association is 31 years old it did not have a permanent headquarters until 1924, during the administration of President Harry V. Haynes.

The need of larger quarters for the chapter's growing classes was officially brought to the attention of the bankers' body by Past President Frank M. Perley of the chapter at the convention of the bankers' association at Hot Springs, Va., last June. Informing the group of the congestion of the present location he said, "The interior walls are not sufficiently soundproof, frequently resulting in one class disturbing another, to say nothing of the objectionable traffic and other noises reaching the classrooms from the street."

The board of directors of Riggs National Bank, at its meeting held yesterday, declared the regular semiannual dividend of 7½ per cent, payable April 15 to stockholders of record at the close of business March 31.

The statistical position of carded cotton cloths at the end of February indicates further progress in the cotton goods industry's efforts to overcome the effects of past overproduction. The Association of Cotton Textile Merchants of New York, reports stocks of 239,654,000 yards, a decrease of 5.7 per cent from the end of January and the smallest since the beginning of comparable figures in January, 1928.

Wholesale Prices Gain As Commodities Rise

Due to better prices for fats and oils and grains, feeds and live stock, wholesale prices moved up slightly during the latest week. The wholesale price index of the National Fertilizer Association advanced a fraction of a point during the week ended March 12.

During the preceding week the index declined 5 fractional points, while two weeks ago there was a slight advance of 1 fraction. The latest index number, 62.7, is one fractional point above the record low point reached on March 5. A month ago the index number was 63, and a year ago the index number was 75.8.

The index number 100 represents the average for the three years—1926-1928.

Twenty-eight commodity prices moved up during the latest week, while the prices for 21 commodities were lower. During the preceding week 16 commodity prices advanced and 27 declined.

Westinghouse Net Declines Sharply

Annual Report Shows Readjustments in Capital; Wages Reduced.

Special to The Washington Post.

New York, March 14.—Operations of the Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company during 1931 resulted in a loss of $3,655,689, compared with net income of $11,861,705 for 1930.

The report signed by A. W. Robertson, as chairman, and F. A. Merrick, as president, stated that loss was incurred largely in the first and last quarters of the year; in the first quarter because the reduction of expenses inaugurated had not had time to make its full impression, and in the last quater principally because of a sharp contraction in volume of new business. The loss is after provision for taxes, depreciation and all other charges and includes operating losses of the wholly owned companies not consolidated.

All salaried employes contributed their vacations and 10 per cent of their salaries. Combined, these reductions in salaries amounted to 25 per cent.

"Sales billed by Westinghouse and its manufacturing subsidiaries for 1931 were $115,398,082, compared with $180,283,579 for 1930 and $216,364,588 for 1929. Orders received by the company and its manufacturing subsidiaries during 1931 totaled $128,014,820, a decrease of $42,295,447, or 24 per cent, from 1930 and a decrease of 46 per cent from 1929. Because of certain orders for large equipment, notably electric locomotives for the Pennsylvania Railroad electrification, the value of unfilled orders on hand at December 31, 1931, was $40,024,390, compared with $40,208,181 at the end of 1930 and $62,025,399 at the end of 1929.

"Direct charges against surplus were made during the year 1931 amounting to $5,671,379. This includes provision for the depreciation of marketable securities to the market value as of December 31, 1931. During the year cash dividends of 7¾ per cent were paid on the par value of the preferred and common stocks outstanding, amounting to $10,328,283.

"Inventories December 31, 1931, were $44,180,682, compared with $49,096,162 at the end of 1930, and $66,376,402 at the end of 1929.

THE MARKETS AT A GLANCE

STOCKS sold off sharply when the European reaction to Ivar Kreuger's death more than offset the bullish influence of the German elections. The annual reports of U. S. Steel and R. C. A. also were heavy notes.

BONDS lost ground in sympathy with stocks.

CURB stocks and bonds moved in line with the general market news, which was notable for the wont of lifting trade statistics.

WHEAT sold off about 2 cents a bushel on the weaker tone of the stock market.

Steel Corporation Shows Heavy Loss

Annual Report for 1931 Reveals Sale of Assets. Tax Refunds Aid.

Special to The Washington Post.

New York, March 14.—The thirtieth annual report of the United States Steel Corporation and subsidiaries, covering operations for 1931, shows a net deficit of $49,165,485 after the payment of dividends at the rate of 7 per cent on the $100 par value preferred stock and of 4¼ per cent on the common stock of $100 par value. This compares with a surplus of $18,836,097 for 1930 after dividends, indicating a net decline of $68,001,583 for 1931.

Earnings for 1931 before dividends, charges, interest and taxes amounted to $46,483,999, compared with $157,710,231 for 1930, a decline of $111,226,231.

The deficit for the year was the second in the history of the company, and by far the largest. In 1914 earnings failed by $1,722,909 to amount to anything on the common stock after the payment of $25,219,677 in dividends on the preferred.

The report showed decreases of nearly $115,000,000 in total assets; of $34,778,660 in cash and general accounts; $121,931,523 in current assets; $44,992,306 in current liabilities and $76,939,217 in net working assets.

In 1921 net earnings after expenses, but before charges, were $92,726,058.

The deficit of 1931 was piled up despite the fact that bond interest and sinking fund charges were at the lowest level in the company's history owing to the retirement of funded debt in recent years. Were it not for the fact that in 1931 the company received special income of $19,341,659 in the form of profits from the sale of fixed property, interest on Federal tax refunds in 1930 and net adjustments of various accounts for both years, there would have been no earnings on the preferred stock.

Against net earnings of $46,483,999 after expenses, charges and allowances for depletion, depreciation, amortization and obsolescence amounted to $47,317,894, bringing the net deficit before interest to $833,894, against a net profit of $99,160,111 in 1930. Charges for depletion, depreciation, amortization and obsolescence in 1931 were less by $11,232,225 than in 1930.

After interest payments on bonds of the parent company and subsidiaries the deficit mounted to $6,303,518, compared to a surplus of $93,520,015 in 1930.

The consolidated balance sheet showed total assets of $2,279,802,813, a decline of $114,741,798 from the total of $2,394,544,611 reported at the close of 1930.

Swedish Money Drops On Match King's Death

New York, March 14 (A.P.).—Foreign exchanges were somewhat unsettled today, Scandinavian currencies declining following the death of Ivar Krueger, the Swedish "match king," in Paris Saturday.

The Swedish kroma broke to 19.55 cents, compared with a rate of 20 3-16 cents at the end of last week. The same money, however, sold as low as 17.96 cents last December and dealers believed that it acted well today, considering the circumstances. Exchanges of Norway and Denmark also declined moderately.

The British pound sterling and The French franc improved mildly, the former gaining ⅝ of a cent to $3.62⅞ and the latter ⅜ of a cent to $3.94 cents. The German mark and the Dutch guilder both firmed. The Spanish peseta eased fractionally, as did the Canadian dollar. The Japanese yen rallied slightly.

New York, March 14 (A.P.).—Dull statistical studies of the Nation's progress against the depression were swept aside in the principal security markets today as they turned their attention most solely to the drama of two startling suicides.

The stock market spent most of the day trying to gauge the effects that Ivar Kreuger's unexpected death might have on listed values and business conditions. Then late in the trading day it was again caught unawares by another startling suicide announcement. The death of George Eastman probably caused no great amount of liquidation, for at no time was there any concern as to his own finances, but the sentimental effect was depressing. The founder of the kodak business that bears his name was highly esteemed in Wall street.

Sales on the stock exchange totaled 2,034,045 shares, a fairly large proportion of which was believed to be for European account. It marked the first time in nearly a month that sales for any one day had passed the 2,000,000-share mark.

Stocks declined 1 to 3 points in a majority of instances, but there were numerous specialties, and especially those stocks of companies in which Kreuger and Eastman interests were large, that declined more than 3 points.

The average price of 90 stocks used in the Associated Press-Standard Statistics compilation was down 2.3 points.

The bond market suffered a rather severe sinking spell with only United States Government loans maintaining any show of stability.

A slump in the securities of companies controlled by Ivar Kreuger, adversely affected all classes of mortgages. There were mild rallying attempts at times, but losses predominated at the close.

While none of the Kreuger stocks is listed on the curb, the death of the Swedish "match king," and the resultant slump of his company's shares and bonds on the big board, had a generally unsettling effect on this list.

Softness of the utilities was especially noticeable. Electric Bond & Share, while attempting sporadic rallies, was unable to maintain its minor gains and closed with a net loss of ¾ of a point at 7⅞, another new low for the year. American Gas & Electric also sagged 1½, to 32⅞. Commonwealth Edison gave up 3½ points, and Cities Service declined fractionally.

64 ENTRIES IN A. A. U. SWIM

G. W. Leads With Team Of 18

Rote to Compete in Events Starting on Friday.

Central High Enters 14; Miss Lawrence Defends Title.

A FIELD of 64 men and women will compete in the District of Columbia A. A. U. indoor swimming championships to be held Friday and Saturday nights in the Venetian pool, of Shoreham Hotel, it was announced last night by A. Earl Weeks, chairman of the District swimming committee.

George Washington University will make a determined bid for the team trophy, won last year by Central High School, the George Washington entry numbering 18 natators, including the redoubtable Max Rote, holder of District indoor records for the 50 and 100 yard free style dashes.

Central will defend its title with a team of 14 swimmers, while the Washington Swimming Club and the Ambassador Club are next in line in point of numbers with teams of eight each.

Other organizations represented in the field are Georgetown University, the "C" Club, Washington School of Physical Education and the Y. M. C. A.

Among the defending champions to appear are Rote, holder of the 100-yard free style title; Beverly Carter, 200-yard champion, and Robert Varela, 150-yard back-stroke leader. Onalene Lawrence, champion in the women's high dive and 100-yard breast stroke, will compete as will many of the District's outstanding female swimmers. However, the lists suffer the absence of Lois Bates, diminutive Washington Swimming Club star, who holds records for the 50, 100 and 220 yard dashes and the 100-yard back stroke.

GODWIN-LAWSON TO CLASH TONIGHT

dent fighters ever seen in the Alexandria ring. It takes an awful sock to wipe that winning smile from his unmarked features. In fact, when he is leading the Virginian is inclined to "grand stand," but Godwin should keep him too busy tonight to indulge in that sort of pleasure.

Body Attack Chief Reliance.

The experts are figuring Godwin to win by virtue of a body attack which the Georgian's father-manager, Pa Godwin, revealed the other day as Bob's chief reliance. These experts delcare that Lawson "can't take it downstairs" as indicated by his wincing and complaining two weeks ago when he fought Vince Forgione at Ritchie Coliseum. However, a lot of wise boys may be upset, not to mention Godwin, if Eric can cope with Bob's assault and, meanwhile, execute his own punches.

The eight-round semifinal brings the return to action of Billy Schwartz, Alexandria light-heavy, against tough Joe Finazzo, of Baltimore, with the home-town pride slightly favored. Patsy Lewis, popular Baltimore southpaw, and Jack Quigley, are opted to furnish the best of the preliminary milling which also lists George Esrick, Baltimore, and Marino Marini, Washington, lightweights; Bob Portna, Bolling Field, and Harry Groves, Baltimore, featherweights, and Jesse Belt, Washington, and Bob Golsby, Fort Howard, welterweights.

April 2 Listed D. C. Night In Norfolk Title Pin Event

Large Entry List Expected; Bankers Night One of Features; Harrison-Miss Fischer Will Defend Mixed Doubles Title.

GEORGE ISEMANN is fully in accord with President Hoover's antihoarding campaign. The secretary of the National Duckpin Bowling Congress is working overtime sorting entries these days, but the number received thus far would be augmented by a good many more were not the good but badly frightened folk hanging on to the filthy lucre.

Despite the fact that the size of the entry list has been stunted by the lack of cash, George is still confident that it will be as large as that of last year, when 205 teams vied for national honors. Duckpins has at last obtained a footing in Philadelphia, a tenpin stronghold, and two teams from the Quaker City will make the trip to Norfolk. Virtually the entire South has been lined up for the championships.

Bankers' Night One of Features.

One of the features of the tournament this year will be "Bankers' night." Rosslyn Trust and W. B. Hibbs Co. already have teams entered, and District National and National Savings & Trust Co. are contemplating entering teams. Another feature will be the battle for supremacy among the mixed doubles teams. Elsie Fischer and Paul Harrison have assumed a "do or die" attitude in defense of their laurels.

Jack Williams, president of the Congress and a member of the first duckpin team ever organized, is just as enthusiastic over the tournament as he was over the first match. Not as spry as he once was, Jack still makes 'em sit up and take notice when he rolls in the Masonic League.

"Booster" prizes, a regular feature of the tenpins tournament, will be inaugurated by the duckpinners this year. In addition to giving the little fellows a chance to share in the booty and glory, it will add a few shekels to the purse of the major prize winners.

April 2 has been designated as "District of Columbia Day" at Norfolk. The rate at which reservations are being made presages a full house when the "Charley Mac" of the steamboat company sails away. Quite naturally the majority of the bowling houses will be dark that night, but what a time there will be on the boat. On to Norfolk!

Hitting The Head Pin

By LEWIS F. ATCHISON

"REDS" MEGAW and his Northeast Temple henchmen defeated Ray Barnes' Victorians, of Baltimore, in a five-game special match rolled at Temple last night. The final score was 3,056 to 2,893.

Chester Bild had the pins playing dead for him, and he rolled a set of 664, which included a game of 151. Ray Barnes led his team in scoring, mauling the maples for a score of 630. The teams started off at a break-neck pace. Temple led at the conclusion of the first game, 603 to 600, but with the second game, when the locals rolled 674 to the visitors' 579, the Victorians became a lost chord.

Maxie Rosenberg's Northeast Hup team crashed into Young and Simon (more automobile salesmen), at Lucky Strike, and the Hups came off best with a 2-to-1 victory. Their scores were 577, 521 and 655. The defeated team rolled 569, 578 and 572. Maxie mobbed the maples for a game of 150 and set of 377. Lee Atwell's 353 and Ben Hare's 140 topped Young and Simon.

Business was brisk and scores were high at Lucky Strike last night. Manning and Owens tied for individual game honors in the General Counsel loop at 134, but the former continued his pin pounding to cop the set honors with 356. The Athletics rolled into team prizes on the strength of their 542 and 1,553 efforts.

Eddie Goodman's 161 game and a 390 set by Noack led the class in the Typothetae League. Washington Typographers No. 1 bagged team game honors with 641, and the Gibson Bros. kidnaped the set prize with the aid of an 1,805 score.

In the Eastern Star circuit Johnson topped the timber for another 161 score for the ten boxes, and Owen came home dragging the set prize behind him. A 372 score turned the trick. Washington Centennial No. 1 led the teams with its 558 and 1,596.

Thomas' 125 and 351 efforts were high in the Western Union fraternity. T. and R. rolled 528 and Simplex 1,540 to top the teams.

Miss Charles' 111 game and Miss Bauman's 300 set led the field in the General Counsel Ladies' loop. Civil's 455 game and Answers' 1,309 total for three were the best of the team scores.

Rendezvous had its dash to the title in the Ladies' District League momentarily halted by King Pin at Lucky Strike, when the latter copped the odd game. The winners rolled 577, 528 and 502, to Rendezvous' 484, 513 and 537. Lorraine Gulli's 141 game and 382 set were prize-worthy. Margaret Leaman bounced the bottles around for a 131 game and 339 total for the three.

Joe Hickey and another Joe, Saunders this time, whacked up the honors in Section 1, of the North of Washington League, at Silver Spring. Hickey rolled a game of 141, and Saunders a set of 385. Kensington's 575 and 1,648 accounted for the game honors.

Mayne Fleharty's 128 and Celeste Cunningham's 304 were the best individual efforts recorded in the Ladies' Agriculture League at Columbia. Accounts was high among the teams with 482 and 1,326.

Harry Dixon continued his quest for the individual crown of the Men's Agricultural Economics loop by chalking up a game of 137 and set of 382 at Columbia last night. Grain's 584 and Nomic's 1,646 took the team awards.

Dick Wittington twitted the sticks for a 152 game to swipe the bacon in the King Pin Business Men's League at King Pin No. 2. Logan's 390 provided the set feature of the evening. Lansburgh No. 1 pounded the pins for a set of 1,688, and King Pin scored a 628 game.

BLAZING THE BASEBALL TRAIL

ball clubs today saw the Phils defeat the Athletics, 5 to 4, in ten innings.

Cold weather greeted the players and the wind made things difficult for the outfielders.

A blistering triple by Chuck Klein tied the score at 4-all in the ninth. Les Mallon, the Phils' diminutive second baseman, in the tenth inning smacked his fifth single of the game, bringing George Knothe home with the winning tally.

Savannah, Ga., March 14 (A.P.).—Earl Webb, the two-base slugger, belted a pair of baseballs over the fence here today when the Boston Red Sox squad defied the cold weather and held a long batting practice.

All of the regular pitchers were in action, but Manager "Shono" Collins ordered them to take matters easily. Cy Moore was hit on the head with a foul ball, but was able to return to the workout after simple first aid measures were taken in his behalf.

San Francisco, March 14 (A.P.).—Manager Bucky Harris, of the Detroit Tigers, still is seeking a combination that will instil into his Bengals the batting punch which has been lacking for more years than he likes to think about. The Tigers have won four out of the seven exhibition games played against the Seals and the Missions, but in only two of the games has their batting been impressive.

In two games Sunday Nolen Richardson, at third, was the only player to hold down the same position throughout. Today's game with Oakland, first of a new series, was called off because of rain.

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 14 (U. P.).—Pepper Martin, world series sensation of last fall, scored three runs for the St. Louis Cardinals today when they broke loose from their losing spell of the exhibition series and beat the Boston Braves at Waterfront Park, 4 to 1.

In addition to making these three tallies, Martin got the longest hit of the game—a home run over the left field fence, and starred with Orsatti and Watkins in the field.

Two rookie hurlers worked for the Braves while Rhem and Teachout were the only veteran flingers of the four men St. Louis used in the box.

San Antonio, Tex., March 14 (A.P.).—The Chicago White Sox regulars, batting against Tommy Thomas and Jim Moore, a pair of veterans, gave the second stringers another beating today, 7 to 3.

Thomas, making his first serious effort of the training season, was combed for two hits and a sacrifice, which, with a pair of walks, gave the regulars three runs in the second. Bruce Campbell was the big hitter of the day, with a double and a pair of singles.

GORILLA JONES CHASED.

Holyoke, Mass., March 14 (A.P.).—State Boxing Commissioner Daniel J. Kelly, in attendance here tonight, ordered the ten-round feature between Gorilla Jones, of Akron, and Frankie O'Brien, of Hartford, stopped at the end of the eighth round. Kelly asserted the middleweights were not trying.

Referee Jack Watson thereupon disqualified Jones, whose purse was held up.

SONNENBERG WINS.

Manchester, N. H., March 14 (A.P.). Gus Sonnenberg, former title claimant, tonight defeated Stanley Penton, of Chicago, two out of three falls to win the main bout of a wrestling show.

President Griffith Says Story Misquoted Him

Special to The Washington Post.

Biloxi, Miss., March 14.—Clark Griffith, president of the Washington Ball Club, was caught on the rebound of a misquotation today.

Griffith had remarked that a winning pitcher was worth $50,000 to any ball club. His statement gained wide publication throughout the Nation on Sunday, in a story which interpreted it to mean that he was in the market for a winning pitcher and had $50,000 to part with.

This afternoon he received the following telegram dated from Newcastle, Pa.: "Send ticket and Indian Bill, southpaw pitcher, will report immediately." The wire was signed "Kyh."

Both Indian Bill and "Kyh" are strangers to Griffith. He sent no ticket.

ASHER HEADS D. C. GOLF GROUP

Lower Junior Limit; Year's Schedule Is Ratified.

By HENRY LITCHFIELD WEST.

THE District of Columbia Golf Association, at its annual meeting held at the Racquet Club last night, ratified the schedule of golf events as previously arranged by the executive committee, elected officers for the ensuing year and discussed matters affecting the golf situation in this section.

Clyde B. Asher, of the Columbia Club, was elected president, with Robert Stead, jr., Chevy Chase, and O. L. Veerhoff, Washington, chosen first and second vice presidents, respectively. Dr. William C. Barr, Washington, was reelected secretary-treasurer for the teenth time. D. L. Thomson, Manor, the retiring president; Dr. Bruce L. Taylor, Congressional, and Albert E. Steinson, Woodmont, were named as members of the executive committee.

On motion of Albert R. Mackenzie, donor of the junior championship trophy, the age limit for contestants in that event was reduced from 21 to 18 years. Some time was devoted to the discussion of the possibility of sponsoring an interscholastic golf championship to be held just before the close of the school year, and Everett Eynon, Columbia, was made the chairman of a special committee to consult with the athletic advisers of the high and prep schools concerning the number of young golfers who might compete. If the competition can be staged, the usual trophy and medals will be provided.

In arranging the season's program it was decided to devote two days, eighteen holes each day, to the seniors' championship. The dates decided upon were as follows:

Army-Navy invitation, May 3 to 6, inclusive; Chevy Chase invitation, May 17 to 20, inclusive; Congressional invitation, September 20 to 23, inclusive; junior championship, Army-Navy, September 1; District championship, September 7 and 8; senior championship, Woodmont, October 11 and 12.

Maier; Chevy Chase, Robert Stead, jr., R. P. Davidson; Columbia, G. P. James, W. C. Evans; Congressional, Dr. Bruce L. Taylor; Indian Spring, J. William Harvey, jr., Thomas M. Belshe; Manor, D. L. NATS AWAIT FIRST TEST WITH ORIOLES meet Louisville at Biloxi on Friday and at Mobile on Saturday and Sunday.

Joe Judge's actions in practice belie the fact that he is slated to serve as understudy to Joe Kuhel at first base. The veteran first sacker is larruping the ball to the fences and acquitting himself around first base with all the ease and grace of yore. Kuhel, too, is hitting the ball hard, and the battle for the regular job would be interesting if it were not for the very well defined leanings of the Nats' management toward Kuhel.

The choicest bit of hot news concerning the training camp is the fact that Trainer Mike Martin today was able to encase his gouted foot in a shoe for the first time in a month.

GEORGE'S KICK WINS.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., March 14 (A.P.)—Ed Don George won a wrestling match here tonight with a hefty kick under his opponent's chin.

Pat McKay, of New York, had George by the heels and was swinging him when George got a foot free and promptly kicked McKay "cold." He waited until McKay came to, then pinned him down quickly, as the New Yorker was dazed from the kick. George weighed 205, McKay 210. The end came in 34:39.

TUFTS LEADS FIELD.

Pinehurst, N. C., March 14 (A.P.). Richard S. Tufts, of Pinehurst, carded a 76 for a 54-hole total of 229 and retained his lead in the annual Tin Whistle golf tournament here. Halbert J. Blue, of Aberdeen, clung to second place with a 76, for a total of 231.

NICKEL NET INCOME TOTALS $5,094,497

Profits Represent Loss of $6,675,563 Over 1930; Borden Sales Drop.

New York, March 14 (A.P.).—The annual report of the International Nickel Co., of Canada, issued today, shows net profits of $5,094,497, equivalent to 22 cents a share on the outstanding common stock, compared with $11,770,060, or 67 cents a share in 1930.

President Robert C. Stanley, in presenting the report, said while "forecasts of any character made at this time may prove entirely misleading," he believes that in due course "industry will emerge from the present depression and the company's future will parallel the progress made in the years following the somewhat similar conditions which existed in 1921."

The company's statement shows net current assets were $25,452,174, against $30,102,999 a year previously and current liabilities $3,793,027 compared with $7,142,883 in 1930. Cash and marketable securities totaled $3,112,019, against $10,030,042 at the close of the previous year.

Borden Sales Drop.

The Borden Co., for 1931, shows sales of $284,586,876, compared with $345,422,778 in 1930, a decrease of 17.6 per cent. After taxes, net income from ordinary operations, before provision for profit sharing, was $16,812,268, or $3.82 a share on the outstanding capital stock. This is comparable to $21,681,213, or $5.12 a share on about 160,000 fewer outstanding shares in 1930.

Notwithstanding a shrinkage in earnings, the company's cash position improved. This item totalled $15,027,552, an increase of $5,207,131 over 1930. Current assets were $58,666,086, as compared with current liabilities of $15,019,234.

Senate to Investigate Union Mortgage Bonds

(Associated Press.)

The Senate yesterday ordered an investigation of the conduct of the Justice Department in the case of the Union Mortgage Co., of Cleveland, Ohio.

Without debate the Senate adopted a resolution offered by Senator Bulkley (Democrat), Ohio, for an investigation by the judiciary committee of the "action or inaction of the Department of Justice in the case involving alleged use of the mails to defraud" by the mortgage company or its officials.

The committee was directed to inquire particularly into the dismissal of the indictment against S. C. Crobaugh, president of the company, and the failure to obtain indictments against other officers.

An appropriation of $1,000 for expenses of the inquiry was approved.

Commission Allows Acquisition by Southern Pacific to Stand Unchanged.

(Associated Press.)

The Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday denied the petition of the Missouri Pacific and Texas & Pacific railroads for reconsideration of the commission's order allowing the Southern Pacific Co. to acquire control of the Cotton Belt Railroad.

The commission on January 12 authorized the Southern Pacific to acquire control of the St. Louis Southwestern Railway, also known as the Cotton Belt, and incorporate it in its system.

The Missouri Pacific, which runs from St. Louis to Texarkana, Tex., and other points in the Southwest, and the Texas & Pacific, a subsidiary which competes directly in Texas with the Southern Pacific, fought the application of the Southern Pacific.

After the commission, in an effort to prevent the Cotton Belt from having to default on a bond issue due June 1, authorized the acquisition, the Missouri Pacific and the Texas & Pacific sought to have the case reopened on the ground that the commission had not adequately investigated the deal.

The Cotton Belt, under the commission's consolidation plan of 1929, was assigned to the Illinois Central system. The Illinois Central did not want the road and efforts were made by the Southern Pacific and the St. Louis-San Francisco-Rock Island to have it transferred to one of the two systems. This was accomplished by the commission's order of January 12.

Thom Asks Control Of Motor Carriers

(Associated Press.)

Alfred P. Thom, jr., general counsel of the Association of Railway Executives, told the Senate interstate commerce committee yesterday that Congress has the power to regulate contract motor carriers operating in interstate commerce and should exercise it.

Appearing in the committee's hearings on the Couzens bill to regulate bus and truck traffic, Thom said to deny the power to prevent chaos in interstate commerce."

He added that if contract carriers could not be regulated they could "set at naught the approved principles of regulation, which require reasonable rates, prohibition of rebates, favoritism and unjust discrimination."

"Our used car sales are not keeping up with our splendid output of new De Sotos and Plymouths—so here they go at give-away prices." —OSCAR BLANTON.

We have never before, and probably never will again, offer so many fine automobiles at prices that are so much less than their real value. You must come and see the cars on our floors before you can really appreciate what a wonderful chance you now have to save money. LIGHTMAN ELECTED AGAIN AS THEATER OWNERS PRESIDENT

300 Delegates Register for Convention of Motion Picture Men.

NOTABLES TO ADDRESS TWO SESSIONS TODAY

Famous Film Stars Guests at Banquet 1,000 Will Attend Tonight.

Election of eight national officers marked last night's executive meeting of directors of the Motion Picture Theater Owners of America following an open business session in the afternoon.

M. A. Lightman, of Memphis, Tenn., was reelected national president; M. J. O'Toole, Pennsylvania, national secretary, and Jay Emanuel, Philadelphia, national treasurer. Five vice presidents elected last night were M. E. Comerford, Love B. Harrell, A. Julian Brylawski, of Washington; Walter Vincent and John Denniston.

Under the new regulations of the M. P. T. C. each of numerous units throughout the country name a member of the board of directors, and these directors elect the national officers without submitting the election to the entire membership in open meeting. An executive committee is then named to act with the officers on matters of importance after the convention closes.

Important Addresses Today.

Two important speakers are listed on today's business program, both of whom will probably crowd the convention room at the Mayflower Hotel. They are C. E. Milliken, former Governor of Maine and a high executive in the Will Hayes organization, and Sidney R. Kent, former Paramount-Publix executive, who has just assumed a position as vice president of the new Fox Film management in complete charge of that company's operations. Both men are expected to have messages of importance to all exhibitors.

Others listed on today's program, which begins at 10 o'clock, are Senator James J. Davis, Maj. L. E. Thompson, of New York; Joseph Hornstein, of New York; Fred Wehrenberg, of Missouri; Love B. Harrell, of Georgia; P. J. Wood, of Ohio; Martin Quigley, William Orr, of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer; Ed Kuykendahl, of Mississippi, and Earl Van Hyning, of Kansas.

Notables at Banquet Tonight.

Tonight will bring the climax of the three-day conventon when the annual banquet will be held in the main ballroom of the hotel. More than 1,000 guests will be seated for this affair, at which an array of screen and stage talent seldom gathered under one roof will furnish entertainment. The program will be in charge of Eddie Dowling, who arrived last night, and will include Bebe Daniels and Ben Lyon, Billie Dove, Claudette Colbert, Lee Morse, Ernst Lubitsch, Bert Lytell, Jacquline Logan and Clive Brook.

Mr. Kent will speak briefly at the banquet as will Conrad Nagel, president of the Motion Picture Academy of Arts and Sciences. President Lightman also is scheduled for an address, and M. E. Comerford, vice president and former director, will preside. However, the major portion of the program will be given over to entertainment, a large part of which will be broadcast over WRC and N. B. C. stations.

Bicentennial Tableau.

Exhibitors last night were guests of the RKO-Keith management at that theater, where "The Office Girl" and a vaudeville program was presented to an enthusiastic audience. Members of the Diplomatic Corps also were guests of honor because of the fact that the picture was made in England. The Boys Independent Band furnished music before the show.

Yesterday's single session of the convention was opened with a Bicentennial tableau. Sidney Lust delivered the opening address, substituting for A. Julian Brylawski, chairman of the local program committee. Mr. Lightman then called the business meeting to order and reports of the national officers were received.

Routine business occupied the attention of the exhibitors during the four-hour session. The convention will close tomorrow with a single meeting, beginning at 10 o'clock in the morning. More than 300 delegates are registered.

Permission for Terminal Is Asked by Greyhound

The Greyhound Bus Lines yesterday applied to the Public Utilities Commission for permission to maintain a terminal on the north side of New York avenue, between Thirteenth and Fourteenth streets, just across from its present depot. Approval by the commission was deferred.

One of the first to comply with the order which requires all interState buses to vacate the congested area by April 1, the Greyhound Lines intend to use a curb terminal until August 1, by which time a new offstreet depot will have been completed in accordance with the second provision of the bus order.

Piney Branch Residents Discuss District Bills

Lacking a quorum due to illness among members, the Piney Branch Citizens Association, meeting informally at the Hamline M. E. Church, Sixteenth and Allison streets northwest, discussed a number of the bills now before Congress that pertain to the District. Capt. G. L. Shorey, acting president of the organization, led in the discussion.

Informally indorsing the additional allotment of playground space, favored by the Federation of Citizens Associations, the advantages of added playground facilities during summer months was stressed by attending members. An informal indorsement of Senator Capper's bill in regard to jury selection also resulted from the discussion session.

Second-Floor Room Robbed.

Leonard Davis, of 1253 Thirty-fifth street northwest, reported to police yesterday that $26 in cash was stolen from a box on a dresser in the bedroom on the second floor of his home. Entrance was gained through a window.

BRIGHTEN M. P. T. O. MEETING

HIGHER RATES URGED FOR MONEY LENDERS

Northeast Citizens Group Adopts Resolution; Vice Bill Wins Favor.

Contending that the present low rate of interest allowed money lenders in Washington made their business impractical and enabled out of town loan sharks to fleece borrowers, the Northeast Citizens' Association, at their meeting last night, at the Ludlow School, Sixth and G streets northeast, adopted a resolution, favoring an increase of the interest rate on loans up to $300 from the previous 1 per cent to 2 per cent.

The organization, presided over by President Evan H. Tucker, adopted a resolution favoring the antihoarding campaign, and endorsed the big brother and big sister movement, which functions for the purpose of decreasing juvenile delinquency.

The citizen group approved a bill before Congress, increasing the penalty for taking bets on races, and operating or allowing the operation of disorderly houses. The bill also penalizes owners of the property in which the houses operate. The organization approved a bill providing for service of civil process on persons in jail or in custody in the District.

Bills before Congress requiring insurance concerns operating under the District Code to maintain their principal offices in Washington were approved by the association. A bill allowing professional boxing and wrestling in the District met disapproval.

Johnson Selected Masonic Speaker

Alexandria Rapidly Makes Plans for Dedication of Temple May 12.

Melvin M. Johnson, past grand master of Masons in Massachusetts, has been named principal speaker at the dedication of the George Washington National Masonic Memorial Temple, to be held on May 12, it has been decided by the board of directors of the memorial association, attended by Dr. Robert S. Barrett, of Alexandria. Dr. Barrett is senior warden of Alexandria-Washington Lodge of Masons, of Alexandria.

Percy Cranford, president of the contracting company which is constructing the temple, has announced that all work to be done on the building before the dedication will be completed by the last week in April. Only a portion of the interior of the building will be completed by that time, and only the memorial auditorium, with its twenty fluted marble pillars, will be shown in a finished state. Two or three years more will be required for entire completion of the building.

In addition to the large number of bands which will be in the parade at the dedication there will be several large Masonic choirs.

Miss Trader Falls Dead; Veteran Federal Worker

Miss May D. Trader, 64 years old, of 1213 N street northwest, fell dead yesterday afternoon while at work in the Interior Department Building. She was removed to the emergency room there and pronounced dead by Dr. Charles O'Connor. Death was apparently caused by a cerebral hemorrhage.

Miss Trader was a senior clerk in the homestead division, General Land, Interior Department. She entered Government service in 1894.

Time Is Extended On Gas Payments

Penalty on Bills Reduced From 10 to 5 Per Cent by Utility Commission.

The Public Utilities Commission yesterday issued an order extending the time of payment of gas and electric bills by consumers from 15 to 20 days and at the same time reduced the penalty for bills more than $5 from 10 to 5 per cent.

The Washington Gas Light Co. and the Potomac Electric Power Co. were said to have no objection to the extension of time, which is desired so as to include one of bimonthly paydays.

The commission feels that a penalty of 10 per cent on bills of more than $5 is too excessive as it far exceeds the cost of notifying the consumer of the lapse.

11 MEN, 2 WOMEN TRIED IN RUM PLOT

22 Alleged Associates Have Already Pleaded Guilty to Indictment.

Eleven men and two women, alleged members of a liquor ring, went on trial yesterday on an indictment charging them with conspiring to violate the national prohibition law. There were 36 named in the indictment, but 22 have plead guilty, and one is being detained in a jail in Maryland.

One of the features of the trial was the exclusion from jury duty of all persons who have contributed to the Antisaloon League or the Crusaders. With those limitations, and with attorneys objecting to various jurors, it took three hours to pick a jury of eleven men and one woman.

Harold W. Orcutt, assistant United States attorney, and James R. Kirkland, another assistant, claim that 1,500 overt acts took place in the conspiracy. Those who went on trial were:

Frederick Spasaro, Bruno Caparrotta, Frank Naida, Michael Spinell, Thomas M. Crane, John T. Traynor, Rocco Pellicano, Antennetta Pellicano, Angelo Schiattareggia, Rose Caparotta, James Caparotta, James R. Posey and Adolph R. Moder. The trial will probably last until the Easter recess of court.

Stanton Park Opposes Federal Employe Curb

Disapproval of proposed legislation in Congress which would prevent promotion and filling of vacancies in the Government service as economy measures was expressed last night by the Stanton Park Citizens Association which met at Ludlow School.

The group believes that the Government should make every effort to sustain employment within its own ranks. Approval of the Thatcher bill which would make kidnaping a Federal offense punishable with death or life imprisonment was made in a resolution adopted at the meeting. The association expressed disapproval of the Kvale bill for abolishing capital punishment in the District.

Woman, 69, Is Found Lying on Pavement

Possibly suffering from cold and exposure, Kate Hamilton, a 69-year-old charwoman, was removed to Emergency Hospital last night after policemen of the First Precinct discovered her lying on the pavement at Tenth and D streets northwest.

She was in a semiconscious condition and physicians were unable to diagnose the reason for her collapse. Police said she lives at 918 D street southwest. There were no marks of violence, the doctors stated.

Child Labor Law Change Is Opposed

Monday Club Is Against Lowering Age Limit for Theaters.

Modification of the child labor law of the District in the favor of children appearing in the theater was opposed in a resolution adopted at the meeting of the Monday Evening Club at the Willard Hotel.

The Senate District committee will hold hearings on the proposed legislation this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Hearings by the judiciary subcommittee of the House District committee will be Friday morning at 10:30 o'clock.

The club adpoted a second resolution offering cooperation to any effort to secure from Congress sufficient funds to meet the present emergent situation in regard to employment relief in the District.

Maine State Society To Observe Entrance

The annual meeting of the Maine State Society will be held tonight at the Washington Club at 8 o'clock. Today is the anniversary of the entrance of Maine into the Union.

There will be a short business meeting, followed by dancing, cards and refreshments.

Doctor Stops Hospital Blaze.

A small fire in a laundry chute at the Tuberculosis Hospital, Fourteenth and Upshur streets northwest, was extinguished yesterday by Dr. W. R. Risk, house doctor, with only slight damage. Pedestrians, who observed the smoke pouring from the building, called the fire department.

OFFICIALS WILL SEEK NEW SENIOR HIGH IN FORT RENO SECTION

Addition to Alice Deal School Also Will Be Proposed for School Budget.

BALLOU REVEALS PLANS AT ASSOCIATION MEETING

Declares Money Could Be Made Available Early Next Year.

Insertion of items in the 1934 school budget for construction of a new senior high school in the Fort Reno section and for an addition to the Alice Deal Junior High School in the same community is the objective of the Board of Education and school officials, Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of schools, revealed last night to the Home and School Association of the Deal School.

Dr. Ballou said work on the new budget will begin in about a month. If the specified items reach Congress and the appropriations are made, the money could be made available early next year through a special clause, the superintendent pointed out. The school budget, now before Congress, carries an appropriation of $50,000 for the drawing of plans for the new senior high school. Land for the school has already been purchased on Chesapeake street.

New Elementary School.

Dr. Abram Simon, president of the Board of Education, declared that the board "is profoundly interested" in making the Reno section a new educational center of the Capital. He revealed that the board plans to ask for a new elementary school in the community. Growing congestion in high schools makes it essential that a new one be built, he added.

Dr. Ballou said the proposed addition to the Deal School would consist of 10 or 12 classrooms and a gymnasium. A similar addition will be sought in the future, he added.

Playground Development.

Miss Sybil Baker, director of the District playground department, discussed plans for ultimate development of the section as a recreational community center. For the present she recommended development of the ground adjacent to the Deal School as a playground. Plans for the senior high school include a stadium and playground facilities.

The meeting was attended by 120 representatives of a number of home and school and citizens associations. S. B. Fracker, president of the Deal association, presided.

Old Confidence Game Resumed

C. O. D. Express Package Comes in Name of Declared Person.

An old confidence game is being worked again in Washington, according to a warning issue by the Better Business Bureau yesterday.

The scheme is perpetrated upon the families of persons who have recently died. The family of the deceased person receives a cash on delivery express package addressed to the dead person.

The scheme is to make the family believe that the deceased ordered the article shortly before his death, hoping that they will pay. The article contained in the package is usually a Bible or a fountain pen engraved with the deceased person's name.

Police to Enforce Law On Speed at Platforms

Motorists were warned in Police Court yesterday that continued violation of the regulations governing the speed with which automobiles shall pass street car loading platforms will be strictly enforced. The speed is 15 miles an hour, but few motorists pay any attention to that restriction, it was said.

Eleven arrests have been made for violations of the regulation in the last two days. The fines are usually $10.

Big Water Pipe Burst In New Browne School

Workmen were busy draining the basement of the new Browne Junior High School, Twenty-second street and Benning road northeast, of three feet of water yesterday. It was flooded Sunday when a water main burst.

Cafeteria equipment and school supplies were ruined by the water and a thick coating of mud which seeped in. The inundation was not discovered until yesterday morning. The school will not be occupied until approaches to the building are completed.

2 Buildings To be Razed In Mall Area

Because the heating plant for the group of temporary Government buildings in the vicinity of Sixth street and the Mall is unable to carry the load much longer, two of the buildings will be demolished this summer, it was announced yesterday by Col. U. S. Grant 3d, director of the Office of Public Buildings and Public Parks.

Col. Grant explained that by eliminating two buildings the heating plant could handle the reduced load and supply other temporary buildings for another year or more. The two buildings to be demolished have not yet been decided upon. They will either be buildings F and G or F and D, it was said.

The Census Bureau, now housed in one of the temporary buildings, is to be transferred to the new Department of Commerce Building. Agriculture Department personnel in the temporary building will probably move to the new Extensible Building now under construction in Southwest Washington. The ultimate plan is to restore the Mall to its original status as park property.

DISTRICT ROW ON AID FOR IDLE EXPECTED

Employment Group to Meet Today to Decide on Asking Congress for Fund.

A hectic meeting and probably a debate on the advisability of appealing to Congress, for direct relief to enable the District committee on employment to carry on its activities this spring is expected this morning when the organization convenes at 11 o'clock in the board room of the District Building.

Although E. C. Graham, chairman; District Auditor Daniel J. Donovan, treasurer, and others have already taken steps to squelch the proposal of Paul L. Benjamin, executive secretary of the committee, some members of the committee are reported ready to fight for appropriation. In fact, only one member of the steering committee objected to the proposal when it was first submitted last week.

Whether the proponents of the Benjamin suggestion will be able to garner enough votes to place the matter before the District Commissioners is conjectural. The special subcommittee named to gather data and draft a resolution on the proposal, it is understood, is prepared to offer an adverse report and an alternative plan.

Dr. Luther H. Reichelderfer, chairman of the Board of Commissioners, yesterday denied that, so far as he knew, President Hoover has already vetoed the appeal to Congress. Should the matter be presented to them, he said, the Commissioners will doubtless send it to Congress unless the Bureau of the Budget objects.

A statement issued Saturday by Mr. Graham asserted that another appeal may be made to the Community Chest, despite the latter's threatened $500,000 deficit, and Elwood Street, director of the Chest, said yesterday that an executive committee meeting has been called for tomorrow to consider the problem.

Spelling Club to Hold Free-for-All Contest

The Capital City Spelling Club will hold a free-for-all contest at the Mount Pleasant Library, tomorrow, at 7:30 p. m. Four prizes will be awarded the winners.

As the last contest did not eliminate all the participants, the tie will be spelled off by those remaining. They are Miss Sarah Waterman, 214 Fourth street southeast; Mrs. Dorothy Tanty, 1460 Irving street northwest; Willard B. Smith, Clarendon, Va., and the president of the club, Elmer C. Helm, Brentwood, Md.

Trial of $250,000 Balm Suit Is Begun

Evidence in Bierley Action Against King Starts in District Court.

Before a jury of twelve men, a $250,000 alienation of affections suit was begun in the court of Chief Justice A. A. Wheat yesterday. Herman M. Bierley, the husband of Mrs. Verdie A. Bierly, seeks that amount of money from Charles W. King, jr., for allegedly alienating the affections of his wife, Mrs. Verdie A. Bierley.

Mr. Bierly himself was the first witness on the stand. He testified to his marriage in 1910, and of subsequent years of married life. The couple, he said, have three children. Guided by his attorney, Lester Wood, Mr. Bierley said that his wife left him in 1928.

George D. Horning, jr., attorney for Mr. King, was cross-examining the husband and father when court was adjourned.

GROUP TO SETTLE DISTRICT-VIRGINIA BOUNDARY SOUGHT

Representative Smith's Bill Would Have Three Named to End Dispute.

SUIT BY U. S. PROMPTS LEGISLATION PROPOSAL

Border Should Be at Low-Water Mark, According to Measure's Sponsor.

Appointment of a special commission to determine finally the boundary line between Virginia and the District of Columbia, long a matter of civil and court dispute, was asked yesterday in a bill introduced by Representative Howard W. Smith (Democrat), Virginia.

He proposed a commission of three, one member selected by the President, one by the Governor of Virginia and a third by these two.

The step was precipitated by action of the Government in bringing suits against property owners on the Virginia shore, affecting property in possession of present owners many years, yet claimed to have been at one time below the high water mark on the Virginia shore.

Proposed Boundary Line.

Representative Smith would fix the boundary along the low water mark of the Potomac shore, in conformity with lines already established between Virginia and Maryland.

"That this is the just and commonsense solution is shown by the fact that this is exactly what was done by the commission appointed by Virginia and Maryland to settle the boundary on the south shore of the Potomac between the two States," he said.

"The findings of this commission were confirmed by the Leislatures of the States and the Congress of the United States. There is no excuse for a different boundary between the District of Columbia and Virginia than that between Maryland and Virginia.

Titles From Crown.

"Both States derived their title from the English crown, the Lord Baltimore grant for Maryland calling for the 'farther shore' of the Potomac, thus including the river. As the District of Columbia was ceded by Maryland to the Federal Government, there is no rational excuse for contending that the Maryland shore extended any further south on that part of the river within the District of Columbia than on that part without the District."

The real point of the present controversy is over land between the present low water mark and what appears to have been the high water mark, as shown on maps of the area made 150 years ago, Representative Smith points out.

Many years ago much of the marsh and lowland on the Virginia side was covered by water at high tide. Gradually much of this was reclaimed and improved. Opponents to Representative Smith's contention assert, that because of the fact that at one time these lands were below high tide, they belong therefore to the Federal Government.

Result of Controversy.

As a result of the controversy, a portion of the Washington-Southern Railway is involved in a suit, as well as other property which has been filled in, improved and occupied more than a century.

Representative Smith declared it "a surprising fact" that no action to determine finally the boundary has been taken heretofore.

"Not only are private titles affected," he said, "but the question of jurisdiction for the trial of criminal and civil matters, arising in the affected area is uncertain. There are many spots on the Virginia side where, if crime were now committed, the question of jurisdiction would be so indefinite that the administration of justice would be seriously hampered."

Students to Assemble On Pan-American Day

Students of Washington's schools and universities will assemble on the Ellipse as a feature of Pan-American Day, April 11, it was announced yesterday by the Pan-American Union.

The Ellipse ceremonies, under the auspices of the District Commissioners, will be presided over by Dr. Luther H. Reichelderfer, and Vice President Curtis will address the gathering. Flags of all the American republics will be raised to the music of the Army Band. This will be the second observance of Pan-American Day, which is celebrated in all Latin-American countries, and in many schools and colleges of this country.

Taft School Funds Declared Promised

Brookland Citizens Told $250,000 More Will Be Available.

Assurances that Congress would appropriate $250,000 for the proposed Taft Junior High School, to be erected at Eighteenth and Quincy streets northeast, were made at the meeting of the Brookland Citizens Association last night at the Brookland Masonic Temple.

W. M. McLean, chairman of the schools committee of the association, reported he had been assured the appropriation would be passed by Congress. The plans are already nearly finished, he said, and construction will begin when the appropriation, to supplement one of $200,000 of last year, is made available.

The body adopted three resolutions, one commending the splendid work of the Fifth Precinct police in handling school children safely in traffic; another opposing any increase in real estate tax rates, and the third requesting the District Commissioners to grade and surface Fourteenth street northeast from Newton street to Michigan avenue.

A committee was named to promote the display of the flag in the neighborhood on patriotic holidays. Dr. A. S. Mobray addressed the members on "George Washington."

LAMONT'S PARKING REQUEST REFUSED

Van Duzer Tells City Heads Restricting Fifteenth Street Would Not Help.

The District Commissioners yesterday informed Secretary of Commerce Robert P. Lamont that they could not grant his request that Fifteenth street between E street and Constitution avenue be set aside for the unrestricted parking of automobiles owned by Commerce Department employes.

Inclosing a report by Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer, the Commissioners explained that the section of Fifteenth street specified would offer little relief to the 1,345 employes who use their own cars and that it would be contrary to the District's policy. They pointed out that they have no jurisdiction over Constitution avenue between Fourteenth and Fifteenth streets, which Secretary Lamont also requested. This is under the control of the Office of Public Buildings and Public Parks.

Recalling the exhaustive report of Dr. Miller McClintock, Traffic Director Van Duzer said that angle parking, which Secretary Lamont suggested, offers a serious handicap to traffic flow, but that even with this use only about 73 cars could be parked on the west side of Fifteenth street. If parallel parking were required, as on other streets, the number would be only 55.

Secretary Lamont, in bringing the matter to the attention of the Commissioners, explained that he was asking for only temporary relief, as Senator Arthur Capper, chairman of the District committee, has already introduced a bill providing facilities for Government employes to park their cars during working hours.

The Commissioners further point out that the hour-limit should be retained in order to give patent attorneys and other persons who wish to transact business with the Commerce Department a chance to park their cars. They also explain that the Department of Commerce is in the congested area and that the closing of Thirteenth and Thirteen and a Half street, between Constitution and Pennsylvania avenue, throws the burden of this traffic on Fourteenth and Fifteenth streets.

Half a million dollars worth of granite will soon be placed in position at the east approach to the Arlington Memorial Bridge, it was announced yesterday by Col. U. S. Grant 3d, executive officer of the bridge commission.

Col. Grant said that bids would be called for in the next two weeks. The contract for placing the granite blocks will be the last stage of work at the cemetery.

2 'BLUE SKY' BILLS ON REALTY ISSUES PASSED IN SENATE

Registration and Licensing of Investment Dealers Is Asked in Measure.

FOUR OTHER PROPOSALS APPROVED FOR CAPITAL

$50,000 Voted for Repair of Casualty Hospital; Credit Unions Up.

A "blue sky" securities law for the District and regulation of local real estate practices by a commission of three are proposed in two bills approved yesterday by the Senate.

The "blue sky" bill, identical with the measure which passed the last session of the Senate, not only provides for registration and licensing of investment dealers and salesmen, but for inquiry by the Public Utilities Commission before a security issue may be floated.

Disinterested Commission.

The real estate bill provides for licensing of all real estate brokers and salesmen in the District by a disinterested commission, comprising the district assessor, and two members named by the Commissioners. The commission could revoke licenses on proof of fraudulent acts, or conduct prejudicial to public interest.

A subcommittee headed by Senator John J. Blaine found that lack of regulatory laws governing real estate operations render the District public practically helpless to obtain redress against fraud and misrepresentation in real estate transactions.

The same subcommittee, named during the last Congress, developed that within the past six or seven years there have been issued or sold here approximately $100,000,000 in securities, many of them mortgage bonds or notes, "a very considerable portion of which are of highly dubious value, and in some cases utterly worthless.

Casualty Hospital Repairs.

Four other bills passed yesterday by the Senate and sent to the House would require insurance companies hereafter incorporating under the laws of the District to keep their principal records here; would appropriate $50,000 for alteration and repair of Casualty Hospital; would permit the Acacia Mutual Life Association to change its name to the Acacia Mutual Life Insurance Co. and broaden its scope of operation; and would permit a lot owner on Georgia avenue above Princeton place to extend his building line more than 3 feet beyond the established limit.

Senator L. J. Dickinson (Republican), Iowa, again objected to passage of a bill to incorporate credit unions in the District. He said he plans to offer amendments to the bill in line with suggestions of the Comptroller of the Currency.
